HAPPY NEW YEAR

Man Sentenced For Sex Offenses, CDS Distribution

A Garrett County man, Harold Eugene Faidley Jr., was recently sentenced in Garrett County Circuit Court for three counts of fourth-degree sex offense and one count of distribution of a controlled dangerous substance.

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Faidley, 37, to six months in the Division of Corrections for each of the sex offenses and two years for the distribution count, for a total of three years six months. The sentences will run consecutively.

Faidley was originally charged with 98 counts, which included second-degree rape, second-degree assault, child abuse, and second-degree, third-degree, and fourth-degree sex offense involving two children.

The charges stem from incidents that occurred during several weekends between August and December 2001 at a Finzel Road residence. According to police reports, whenever the children, ages 10 and 7, stayed at the residence, Faidley gave them Aimben in cups of hot chocolate. After the children fell asleep, Faidley committed various sex offenses against them.

Aimben is a prescription drug that is commonly used as a sleep aid for adults. Its chemical name is Zopidem Tartrate, and it is listed as a schedule IV narcotic.

Faidley pleaded guilty in 2003 to one count of fourth-degree sex offense and one count of distribution of a CDS. He entered an Alford plea of guilty to two counts of fourth-degree sex offense. Based upon those pleas, the remaining counts were not prosecuted. The defendant will be required to register as a sex offender.

A STILL AND CHILLY MOMENT — The quiet of this scene can nearly be heard, if that's possible, and the cold felt. The temperatures have actually risen, though, and the ice on Deep Creek Lake has receded to just the coves, where some have ventured out to ice fish for a while. The forecast predicts a warming trend, however, and fishing will have to cease until the next round of wintry weather. Rainy and in the 40s is the basic prediction for about a week, with snow not to return until maybe Sunday night. The roads should be safe for the New Year holiday, as long as people use wisdom and care, and as long as they do not get behind the wheel after drinking alcohol. Be safe, enjoy the fun, and have a happy 2004. Photo by John McEwen.

Motorists Warned Of Dangers Of Drunken Driving

Because more than half of the people killed in traffic accidents on New Year's Eve and on New Year's Day each year are drunken drivers and their victims, AAA Mid-Atlantic is once again reminding motorists that drunken driving is not an accident—it is a violent crime that can kill.

"The tragedy is that the death and destruction caused by drunken drivers is unnecessary and preventable," said John White, public and government relations manager for AAA Mid-Atlantic. "Drunken driving is a serious issue that costs Maryland millions of dollars each year in lost time, lost property and, most importantly, in lost lives and destroyed families."

On New Year's Day 2002, 57 percent of the traffic fatalities (94 of 165) that occurred nationwide were alcohol related. Last New Year's Eve, nearly half of the fatal crashes (57 of 123) nationwide involved alcohol.

Unfortunately, this year's AAA transportation poll showed that 10 times as many drivers cited factors other than drunken driving as the greatest threat to their safety on the roads. AAA Mid-Atlantic's public opinion poll suggests that the message isn't getting through—although responsible drivers could play a greater role in reducing the tragic results of drunken driving.

Before the celebrations begin, AAA Mid-Atlantic urges drivers and passengers to identify a designated driver who will not be consuming alcohol, or to arrange for professional transportation, such as mass transit, taxi, and limousine services.

To combat this ongoing tragedy, local law enforcement authorities will be conducting saturation patrols in a number of areas to arrest impaired drivers. AAA Mid-Atlantic is once again joining national partners like the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and other traffic safety organizations in an effort to save lives in Maryland and to help reach the national goal of reducing alcohol-related deaths nationwide to no more than 11,000 by the year 2005. In 2002, 17,419 people were killed nationwide in crashes

LOCAL KAYAKER TO REPRESENT THE USA – Shanna Powell, 24, a 1997 graduate of Northern Garrett High School and the Adventure Sports Institute at Garrett College, has achieved the opportunity to represent the United States in the 2004 Pre-World Freestyle Kayaking Championships. The event will take place in Penrith, Australia, Jan. 14-25, 2004. Powell, now a senior at Frostburg State University, earned this opportunity by placing in the top four in the U.S. Freestyle Team Trials at Rock Island, Tenn., in October. She is an unsponsored athlete and is therefore left with personally covering all expenses. The kayaker is trying to raise $4,250 for an airline ticket, food, lodging, registration fee, and transportation. Donations in any amount, from $10 and $1,000, would be greatly appreciated and would help provide Powell with the opportunity to represent the nation. Persons may contact her at 301-689-2202 or at spowell02-@frostburg.edu. Donations may be sent to the following address: 359 Valley View Lane, Frostburg, MD 21532. A feature story about Shanna will be published in next week's issue of The Republican.

New Grantsville Library Slated To Open Jan. 19

Because of delays in the installation of telecommunication lines, the public opening of the new Grantsville Library has been delayed until Jan. 19. The board of trustees of the Ruth Enlow Library says it regrets any inconvenience this may cause.

The grand opening celebration of the new library is now scheduled for April 16.

Deer Park Man Arrested After Alleged Assault

A Deer Park man was arrested following a reported domestic assault at a residence on Red Oak Drive Monday night, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Lash Rocky Larue Lloyd Jr., 26, was arrested and charged with second-degree assault.

He was released from the Garrett County Detention Center after posting $1,000 bond, according to a jail spokesperson.

In other police news, the driver involved in a single-vehicle accident Monday afternoon at the intersection of George Washington Highway and Garrett Highway was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital for possible injuries, police said.

Linda S. Delong, 57, lost control of her vehicle on the gravel shoulder of the road, skidded across George Washington Highway and struck a tree.

Gorman firefighters also responded to the 2:13 p.m. scene.

Maust Receives Award From Md. Hospice Network

Accident area resident Ida Maust, volunteer coordinator for Hospice of Garrett County, was recently honored with the "You Make a Difference" award during Hospice Network of Maryland's annual dinner and awards ceremony in Baltimore.

The awards are presented each year by the network for "extra ordinary commitment to the hospice concept and to its hospice patients and families."

Liz Freedlander, president of Hospice Network of Maryland, assisted by Kendel Ehrlich, first lady of Maryland, presented the award to Maust.

"Ida began as a patient care volunteer with hospice in 1983, and in 1995 she accepted the position of volunteer coordinator," said Brenda Butscher, executive director of Hospice of Garrett County.

As the volunteer coordinator, Maust's main objective is to see that all hospice patients and their family members have volunteers to give them needed support during a terminal illness.

Baby Boomer Generation Advised To Face Facts About Aging Parents

The Eldercare Locator, a nationwide service funded by the U.S. Administration on Aging that links older persons and their families to aging services, has announced the release of an action plan designed to encourage adults of the "baby boomer" generation to "face the facts" about their older relatives.

The guide, titled Face the Facts: Topics to Discuss Now with Your Aging Parents, is a checklist of financial, legal, and health insurance issues that persons in the boomer age group should be discussing with their parents.

"Over the years, the Eldercare Locator has seen an increase in inquiries from Americans in a crunch — people who need services to help determine what legal, financial, and health care options are available to their older relatives," said Josefina Carbonell, assistant secretary for aging at the U.S. Dept. of Health and Human Services. "This holiday season, we strongly encourage baby boomers to plan ahead by initiating an open conversation with their older relatives about issues that typically don't come up naturally." These issues can include power of attorney, Social Security, and long-term care insurance.

The Eldercare Locator reports receiving more than 10,000 calls per month from older adults and caregivers looking for information and services. Financial and legal issues are two of the most requested topics of information, a spokesperson said, with callers seeking services

Four Injured In Grantsville Area Collision

A Saturday afternoon traffic accident on Chestnut Ridge Road near Grantsville injured four persons, one of whom was charged by Maryland State Police troopers upon completion of their investigation.

At approximately 2:47 p.m., Jason Eric Bragnoll, 30, Frostburg, was traveling south on Chestnut Ridge Road when he attempted to turn left into the parking lot of the Chestnut Ridge gas station and liquor store. In doing so, police allege that Brugnoll failed to yield right of way to an oncoming 1994 GMC Sonoma operated by Tonya Sue Merrbach, 33, Hagerstown.

Brugnoll's 1994 Suzuki Sidekick struck Merrbach's Sonoma head-on, and the small pickup truck deflected off into a telephone pole. Merrbach and her two passengers, a 14-year-old boy and a 12-year-old boy, were transported to Cumberland Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad, as was Bragnoll. The Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department also responded to the scene.

State police charged Brugnoll with failure to yield right of way and failure to give full time and attention to his driving.

W.Va. Trucker Charged After Rig Overturns

A Lewis County, W.Va., truck driver escaped injury Tuesday evening when his rig overturned on Interstate 68 at Friendsville. Maryland State Police troopers charged the trucker with negligent driving in the 6:20 p.m. mishap.

David T. Harmon, 39, Weston, was traveling east when he reportedly lost control of his rig at the bridge spanning Bear Creek. The 1988 Volvo tractor and its trailer went onto the right shoulder and overturned.

The Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad and the Friendsville Volunteer Fire Department were summoned to the scene, but no hospital transport was necessary, police said.

Alleged Assault Leads To Arrest Of Local Man

A local man was arrested early Saturday morning when police were called to a residence on Sincell Street for a domestic situation, according to Oakland City Police.

Mark Metz, 30, was charged with two counts of second-degree assault and one count of reckless endangerment.

According to police, Metz allegedly assaulted his wife, Alicia Metz, and his father-in-law, Laurance Wolfe.

Metz was later released on bail. A Garrett County Sheriff's Office deputy assisted.

MAUST RECOGNIZED FOR MAKING A DIFFERENCE – Ida Maust, volunteer coordinator for Hospice of Garrett County, recently received Hospice Network of Maryland's "You Make a Difference" award durinig its annual dinner/awards ceremony in Baltimore. Microenterprise Council Gets Grant To Promote Western Md. Artisans

The Microenterprise Council of Maryland was recently awarded nearly $50,000 from the Appalachian Regional Commission. The grant will be used to create an "e-commerce and infoculture" web site to promote the work and visibility of artisans in Garrett and Allegany counties.

The council is headquartered in Annapolis. Executive director Mikal McCartney reviewed the project for the Garrett County commissioners last week.

The site will feature a virtual gallery of the products offered by western Maryland artisans. For example, online visitors could view products that are available at Penn Alps, the Garrett County Arts Council's Gallery, and Canal Place in Cumberland, as well as from individuals.

The site will also be a tool for the artisans themselves. For example, someone working out of her home could use a digital camera, upload a photo of her products, and market them, noted Charlie Teets, director of academic computing at FSU. Individuals at the university are donating their time and talents for the project.

Additionally, the project will help the artisans network with each other and link them to others who can help them develop business plans, get loans, obtain training and technical assistance, or learn more about marketing.

"This is the first level," said McCartney about the project. The site will eventually be used as a tool to promote cultural and heritage attractions as well.

"The key point is to make this inclusive. We haven't ruled out any participation," Teets said. "The ultimate goal is to run this into something larger."

"The difference between this project and traditional arts projects," said McCartney, "is this is art as business." The main goal of the project is community and economy development, and one way to achieve that is through tourism.

The executive director explained that many "urbanites" plan their weekend activities with the help of the Internet. "They want everything planned out before they get there," she said.

With cultural and heritage points of interests linked to the artisans' products, the site could be a "one-stop shop" to what is going on in the area, noted McCartney.

The Garrett County Chamber of Commerce also has projects that "dovetail" with the web site grant, she added. It and other local entities are working together to help microenterprises, which include snow removal and shoe repair businesses. "It involves a lot more than artisans," said Charlie Ross, chamber president.

The Garrett County and the Allegany County chambers of commerce are also working on a tourism project together and have applied for an ARC grant. The funding would be used to entice motorists traveling along the highways to stop and visit the area.

Kiosks would be set up in areas such as gas stations and visitor centers. The devices would provide the motorists with virtual tours

Friendsville Man Arrested For Drunk Driving

A Friendsville man was arrested for drunk driving after his vehicle was observed swerving on Deer Park Hotel Road Sunday evening, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Gary Lee Rodeheaver, 55, was arrested and charged with driving while under the influence (DUI), DUI per se, driving while impaired (DWI), and failure to drive right of center.

Driver Gives False Information; Leads To Arrest Charges

The driver involved in a traffic stop at the intersection of Shenandoah Ave. and Tuscawalla Street in Loch Lynn gave police a false name and date of birth, which led to his arrest, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Through the deputy's investigation, it was discovered that the driver was Deven Richard Brown, 20, Grantsville, and his driving status was suspended through Maryland.

He was arrested and charged with driving suspended, giving a false name to police, and failure to display registration on demand.

Brown is currently being held in the Garrett County Detention Center on $3,000 bond.

St. Paul's UM Church Changes Service Schedule

St. Paul's United Methodist Church, located at 318 East Oak Street in Oakland, has changed its Sunday schedule of services. Instead of two services, there will now be one at 9:45 a.m., and the Sunday school hour will get under way at 8:30 a.m.

The change is effective this Sunday, Jan. 3. For further information, persons may call the church office at 301-334-2391.

ranging from help in paying for prescription medications and managing finances to energy assistance and food stamps. The top request is for home health assistance, the spokesperson said. Fifty percent of the calls are from older adults themselves, while 41 percent are from family caregivers including adult children, spouses, siblings, and other relatives.

Face the Facts covers such issues as financial, legal, and health insurance information. Persons may find out what financial benefits are covered by Social Security and pensions, and if other financial programs may be available to them. Living will information is included in the guide, as well as Medicare and Medicaid benefit information.

The guide offers information on long-term care insurance, as well as home health.

The guide is being launched at this time of year, the spokesperson said, because families will be more likely to be together for the holidays. This should afford them the opportunity to discuss these issues.

"Initiating a non-threatening conversation about income and wills and health needs is not always easy to do," said Sandy Markwood, CEO of the National Association of Area Agencies on Aging. "It's all about realizing that the conversation is essential and remaining sensitive to the personality dynamics between yourself and the care recipient."

Communication tips are also provided in Face the Facts.

The Eldercare Locator can be accessed through its toll-free phone (1-800-677-1116) or at its web site: www.eldercare.gov. Information about the guide may also be obtained at the Garrett County Area Agency on Aging, which can be contacted at 301-334-9431.

Was It the Right Thing?...

Reflecting on the past year and making a prediction or two for the new year is a common activity of most of us on this holiday, and such is the direction of this column today, with the particular focus being on the war in Iraq and whether or not President Bush did the right thing.

While still more time is needed to make a final conclusion, most signs right now indicate to this writer that Bush was right on the mark with the decision to invade Iraq. One perhaps should ask the question, are the world and our nation safer today than prior to the Iraqi war? There answer is, without question, yes; and it's all because of the work our military has accomplished in Afghanistan and Iraq, resulting in the dismantling of the Taliban, total disruption of Al-Qaidah, and the overthrow of Saddam Hussein.

For nearly 25 years before Bush took office, our nation was brutally and continuously attacked by Muslim terrorist extremists, with little response other than verbiage. It was not random attacks, but a systematic, ongoing massacre of Americans. In 1979, Islamic extremists overran the U.S. embassy in Iran, captured 66 Americans, and held 53 of them for 444 days. In 1983, the U.S. embassy in Beirut was targeted by a truck bomb that killed 63. That same year, the U.S. Marine barracks in Beirut was likewise destroyed by a truck bomb, killing 242 of America's finest. In 1988, U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins, on a UN mission in Lebanon, was abducted, tortured, and hanged. In 1988, a bomb on Pan Am Flight 103 blew up over Lockerbie, Scotland, killing 259 on board (many Americans) and 11 people on the ground. In 1993, terrorists struck the World Trade Center in New York, killing six. Also in 1993, followers of Osama bin Laden killed 18 American soldiers and dragged their bodies through the streets in Somalia. In 1996, the Khobar Towers in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, were destroyed by a bomb, killing 19 Americans. In 1998, U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania were simultaneously bombed, killing 301. In 2000, the USS Cole was attacked in the port of Yemen, killing 17 Americans. Finally, the real kicker, 9/11 in 2001.

Our response to all but the last of these incidents was lame, with the exception of the first President Bush's Desert Storm. One failed rescue attempt, trade embargoes, and a few missiles lobbed at Libya were about it. There was no follow-through, no long-term commitment to bring an end to these brutal attacks against Americans. That is, not until President Bush made the decision, even without the support of the United Nations, to begin what truly was/is a war against terrorism, and at the moment, it seems to be a war that we are winning.

The capture of Saddam Hussein is huge, and isn't it interesting that fewer than five days after his capture, Moammar Kaddafi of Libya announced that his nation would give up all weapons of mass destruction? Isn't it interesting that Iran suddenly announced it would permit unannounced inspections of its nuclear energy program? Isn't it interesting that the hideous despot Kim Jong of North Korea, so defiant and threatening last spring, has been absolutely silent, and hasn't even been seen since October? And now, Hussein is beginning to talk, reportedly ready to reveal just where the weaponry, quite possibly weapons of mass destruction, are hidden.

Bush is accused of being the world's bully, and granted, at times his choice of words leaves much to be desired. He also seems to have a "strut" about him, whether or not intentional, that is not helpful. But who, really, has been the bully that has terrorized the playground for more than two decades, and who is it that finally had the courage to stand up to him, at enormous risk to his own future and place in history?

Even though there is still much work to be done, there are now actually good prospects for democracy in both Afghanistan and Iraq; democracy right in the middle of the Middle East, where warfare has been the norm for centuries; democracy replacing the former leadership that regularly inflicted torture and murder on its own citizens.

A prediction for 2004? Osama bin Laden will be captured or killed, the economy will continue to rally, and President Bush will be elected by a comfortable margin in November to serve a second term.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I hope every Republican reader took note of the December 18 article, "Lawmakers Want Transportation Funds Used for Transportation" (page B-2).

Point blank – it was horrendous for the last governor and general assembly to take $300+ million from the Transportation Fund and (mis)use it for the general budget.

Point blank - every voter should be up in arms and support Anne Arundel Republican delegate Leopold's bill to mandate the state may only take monies from the Transportation Fund for building roads and bridges, and improving public transit.

It's indeed ironic that a Republican governor, who has said he will not raise taxes, has siphoned the gas tax funds for other purposes and thus opened the door to what – an increase in the vehicle taxes, vehicle fees, and gas tax! And it is only another Republican who has said this is a skunk and has seen we can preclude further stink by closing the loophole to prevent diversion of the Transportation Fund.

With all due respect, every citizen needs to write a letter now, before the General Assembly gets back in session on January 14, to tell their state senators and delegates they need to support this bill in order to close the door to further abuse of the Transportation Fund. Only then can we be assured that gas taxes won't rise due to the inability of the politicians to cut spending in the general budget. Only then can we know that a promise not to raise taxes isn't a sly way to say, "Read my lips. Gas taxes are not included in my promise."

Sincerely yours,
Douglas Scott Arey

of the area, tourist information, and events, as well as the artisans' gallery of products.

Ross described the kiosks as "very simple tools" for getting tourists to visit the various attractions in the area. He said if the chambers can get them to one location, they may go on to others.

Grants for the Microenterprise Council's project total $143,000, said McCartney. She added that statistics show that for every dollar invested in projects such as this one, there is a $2.72 return.

"The ARC has a strong interest in entrepreneurialship," she said. "This project could lead to other support." The commissioners indicated that they supported the project, too.

The executive director described a microenterprise as a business with five or fewer employees. She noted that 60 percent of businesses in Maryland are microenterprises. Additionally, 60 percent of revenues generated by those businesses stay in the community, as opposed to 20 percent from chain stores and 12 percent from mega chain stores.

Although some of the local artisans have other jobs and only work part time on their crafts, "all contribute to the local economy," noted McCartney.

A former Garrett County resident, McCartney previously worked with Community Action to establish the Mountain Arts Cooperative in 1997. That project also began with an ARC grant. The group sells their products at various venues, including the Autumn Glory Festival. Most recently, the members marketed their wares at the Oakland Train Station during the holiday season.

The chamber recently established a visitors center in the train station. Although the center is currently only open part time at the station, the chamber is making plans for it to operate full time, Ross noted.

Art providers and business training resources in the area will be contacted during January and invited to participate in the web site project, according to McCartney. For more information about the project or to participate as an art provider, persons may call 410-514-7563 or e-mail info@emicromaryland.com.

Partners in submitting the grant request to the ARC included the Maryland State Arts Council, Frostburg State University, the Allegany Arts Council, and Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc.

Founded in 1999, the Microenterprise Council of Maryland is a statewide network of public agencies and private companies providing services and support to people starting a microenpeople starting a microenterprise. Information about the Microenterprise Council may be found on its web site at emicromaryland.com.

"SLIPPERS FROM SANTA" was the name of a unique gift project participated in by the fourth and fifth graders at Dennett Road Elementary School this holiday season. As a culminating activity in conjunction with December's character traits of caring and giving, the students opted to donate slippers to the elderly rather than have the traditional classroom gift exchange. Each child donated a new pair of slippers, wrapped in Christmas paper, to each resident of the Dennett Road Manor nursing home. Over 80 pairs of slippers were given for the project. The teachers involved (Diane Anderson, Darlene Taylor, Cheryl Smith, and Ron Skidmore) reported that the children were convinced that giving the slippers would be more beneficial and rewarding than them receiving a gift themselves. One child said he thought it was a good thing because he wanted the men and women to be able to walk safely down the halls with warm, comfortable slippers, and "maybe this will help them get more exercise." Another child said that he wanted them to know that even if they didn't have families, there were people who cared about them. The teachers said the youngsters were very excited to be involved in the effort. The fourth graders are pictured above, and the fifth graders below.

Gasoline Prices Holding Steady At Close Of '03

At the close of 2003, AAA Mid-Atlantic is reporting good news for motorists in the form of stable gas prices locally and nationwide. The cost of self-serve, regular unleaded gasoline has fallen for three months in a row. Since September, prices have been moving lower because of improving gasoline inventories and the expiration of summer fuel requirements in many locations.

Other factors include a relatively mild winter over most of the nation during the year-end holiday season, which reduces overall energy needs, and the stable cost of crude oil, which has hovered around $32 a barrel since before the holidays began.

"Considering the average price of gas and the relatively warm weather, it is easy to understand why holiday travel is up this year. People are taking advantage of these holiday surprises," said John White, public and government relations manager for AAA Mid-Atlantic. "AAA's advice, however, is to shop around for the best price on gasoline. Prices vary statewide. Also, don't wait until your tank is nearly empty, which could force you to stop at the first station you see regardless of the price."

Fortunately, the nation's high (orange) security threat level and continued violence in the Middle East have not pushed oil prices much higher. In Maryland, the average price of regular unleaded gasoline is $1.47 today, down from $1.62 on Oct. 1 and $1.69 heading into the Labor Day weekend.

Nationally, prices have remained at or near $1.50 per gallon since the beginning of October, despite government and industry price-watchers' warnings of possible price spikes associated with the national switch to lower sulfur gasoline and a conversion to ethanol-blended fuel in New York and Connecticut on January 1, 2004.

The following are today's average prices for self-serve, regular unleaded, nationally and in Maryland: national average, $1.42; Maryland average, $1.44; Baltimore, $1.43; Cumberland, $1.42; Hagerstown, $1.41; Salisbury, $1.36; and DC Metro (Md. only), $1.48.

AAA Mid-Atlantic serves 3.4 million members in Delaware, the District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Virginia. It provides a wide range of automotive, personal insurance, travel, and financial services through its 50-plus retail branches, regional operations centers, and the Internet. For more information on AAA Mid-Atlantic, persons may visit the web site at www.aaamidatlantic.com.

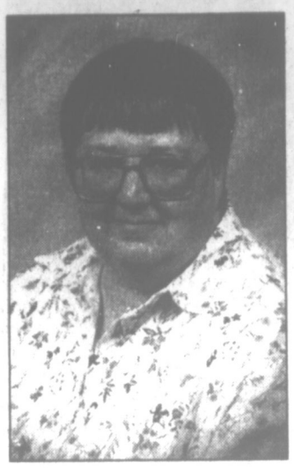
Oakland Poet Published In New Collection



Oakland resident Sharon Kight is the author of two poems that were recently published in an anthology compiled by the Famous Poets Society. Kight's poems "The Little Old Man by the Railroad Tracks" and "The Old Train" appear in the collection, titled Today's Famous Poems on the Wings of Pegasus.

The new release marks the sixth time works by Kight have been published. "My goal is to someday complete a book of my own poetry," she said, "but if I don't, that's okay because I feel good about seeing my material in print."

Kight is the daughter of Blaine and Katherine Kight of Oakland.

Little Yough Fest Planning Meeting Set In Oakland

The Greater Oakland Business Association will host a planning meeting for the 2004 Little Yough Summer Music Festival at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 7, at the Oakland town hall.

"Kidstuff" is the title of the creative dramatics for children in grades kindergarten through fifth. The first of several Kidstuff sessions will be held from 10:30 a.m. until noon on Jan. 3.

The classes will feature movement, stories, acting, art projects, mime, improvisation, puppetry, and other activities.

No reservations will be accepted after 5 p.m. on Friday before the class. If the weather is bad, persons are asked to call the theatre on Saturday to check for a cancellation.

"There is no cost for creative dramatics classes, although donations to the theatre are always gratefully accepted," said Jane Avery, artistic director.

Other dates for Kidstuff and Coolstuff are January 17 and 31, February 14 and 28, and March 13 and 27.

MSP Reminds All: Do Not Drink And Drive

The Maryland State Police (MSP) has issued a warning to all New Year's Eve celebrants that drunken driving will not be tolerated. Enforcement statewide will be strict and there will be no excuses, according to Col. Thomas E. Hutchins, MSP superintendent, as efforts are under way to make this New Year's an injury and fatality-free holiday on Maryland roads.

"Drinking alcohol and driving is illegal and will not be tolerated," Hutchins said. "I will personally be out with troopers this New Year's Eve as we work to remove drunken drivers from Maryland roads. This will be a priority. If you drink and drive, you will lose."

In Maryland, a blood alcohol level of .07 indicates impairment and a level of .08 is evidence of intoxication. There were 23,697 arrests in 2002 for DUI/DWI, he reported. Of those arrests, 8,326 were made by MSP troopers.

Hutchins advises persons planning to celebrate the coming of the new year to have specific plans as to how to safely get home, either by not drinking until arriving home or by securing a designated driver who will not be drinking alcohol at all.

"Don't think you can get behind the wheel and drive home safely after you've been drinking," Hutchins said. "It impairs your judgment and your decision-making ability. Plan ahead.

"Our message is this: Don't drink and drive, don't let family and friends drink and drive, and make this a happy, safe New Year's for everyone," the colonel continued. "We also wish to remind people to plan for the possibility of inclement weather over the holiday."

Husky Boys Roll Over Rams, But Fall To Wildcats In Finale

The Northern High School boys' varsity basketball team advanced to the championship of its own McDonald's Christmas Tournament with an opening round 55-47 win over Turkeyfoot Friday, but fell to Westmar in Saturday's finale by a six-point margin, 49-43. The Wildcats had made their way to the championship by downing Bishop Walsh in their opener, 70-65.

NHS's Jason Rice, who netted 34 points over the two contests, was named the tourney's Most Outstanding Player, while Husky guard Chris Speicher earned All-Tournament Team recognition.

Northern jumped out to a 14-6 first-quarter lead over Turkeyfoot, but the Rams battled back to knot the score at 24-all at the half. NHS regained the upper hand in the third stanza, which ended with the Huskies holding a 39-34 advantage.

Rice scored 25 points to pace the Huskies, while teammate Blake Walker hit for 14. Bob Lager and Seth Tressler had 11 points apiece for the Rams.

Northern's troubles with Westmar began early, as the Wildcats took a 12-9 lead after one quarter and were up 27-20 at the half. By the end of the third stanza the Huskies were down by nine, 38-29, but they rallied with a valiant effort for a 14-11 run over the final eight minutes to close the gap to six at the buzzer.

Speicher's 16 points led Northern, while Rice added nine. Jason Lee, tournament Most Valuable Player, scored a game-high 23 points for the Wildcat victors.

Joining Speicher on the All-Tourney Team were Turkeyfoot's Bill Hinvy, BW's Chris Hendershot, and Westmar's Aaron Shockey and Russell Miller.

Rams Lose, Win By One Point In Snowball Classic

One loss, one win, and one point making the difference in both contests was the experience of the Southern High School boys' varsity in the 27th annual Snowball Classic, sponsored by First United Bank & Trust and hosted by the Rams this past weekend.

Coach Tom Bosley's squad missed a berth in Saturday evening's title game by being edged by Frankfort, 56-55, in Friday's second game.

In Friday's opening contest, eventual tournament champion Linganore topped Hereford High in overtime, 65-57.

The Rams won the consolation round Saturday by nipping Hereford in the first game of the evening, 42-41, and Linganore disposed of Frankfort, 65-43, in the nightcap to claim the tourney crown.

The split sent the Rams into Tuesday's game at St. Maria Goretti with an overall record of 4-3 (see separate story on that matchup).

Friday's game against Frankfort was close from the opening tip-off, as the first quarter ended in a 12-12 deadlock and the Falcons were up by four, 23-19, at halftime. The third stanza was also evenly played, as Frankfort led 38-34 going into the fourth quarter.

The Rams erupted for 21 points in that final quarter, but the Falcons held on with 18 points to gain the one-point victory.

Evan Lantz and Dewaine Jones paced the Rams in scoring with 16 and 15 points, respectively, while Corey Tressler and Cory Bosley each finished with nine. All nine of Tressler's points were scored from long range, as were nine of Jones's total.

Tyler Oaks netted a game-high 19 points for Frankfort, while Josh Kuykendall and Matt Sisk also reached double figures with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

It was the third win in four starts for Frankfort.

Southern's Tressler, who was ultimately named to the all-tournament team, was the leader in the Rams' one-point victory over Hereford on Saturday.

The senior scored over half of his team's points (22) and led an eight-point rally in the final 2:42 of the game to give the Rams the win.

The Rams led by a handful of points at the conclusion of the first, second, and third periods, but found themselves down by seven at the 2:42 mark. Tressler responded with back-to-back buckets to cut the lead to three points, and teammate Lantz sunk another two-pointer to bring the Rams to within a point.

Tressler then hit the tying and winning points from the free-throw line with less than a minute to play, as Hereford missed a pair of shots and then turned the ball over just before the final buzzer sounded.

Lantz and Jones were second in scoring for the Rams with six points each.

The only Hereford player reaching double figures was Kerry Dugan with 10. Andrew Vogt and Matt Jones each netted seven.

The defeat dropped Hereford to 3-2.

Joining Tressler on the all-tournament team were Matt Sisk and Tyler Oaks of Frankfort, Leif Jackson of Linganore, and Matt Jones of Hereford.

Named the tournament MVP was Joe Alexander of Linganore, while Jackson was selected the Most Outstanding Player and also won the three-point shootout.

Linganore upped its overall record to 6-1 with the victories over Hereford and Frankfort.

Rams Play Well Again Vs. Goretti, But Fall, 56-47

For the second time this season, the Southern High School varsity boys played very well against a powerful St. Maria Goretti team; but for the second time their efforts came up short, as the Rams dropped a 56-47 decision to the private school Tuesday evening in Hagerstown.

The Rams, who were literally dwarfed in size by the Gaels, trailed the entire game, but staged a fourth-quarter rally that cut their opponents' lead to six points, 47-41, with just over two minutes to play.

However, the Gaels made good on their free throws in those final two minutes, as the Rams were forced to foul, and held on for the victory.

St. Maria Goretti's starting five include a 6-8 center and 6-7 and 6-5 forwards, while sophomore Evan Lantz is the Rams' tallest player at 6-4.

The Rams fell to the Gaels earlier in December, 47-42, in what may have been their best effort so far this season.

St. Maria Goretti opened the scoring with a three-point bucket by Tim Alexander and never trailed. The Rams were down 11-6 at the end of the first quarter, had a 24-15 deficit at intermission, and were behind by 10, 34-24, at the conclusion of the third stanza.

The rally in the final eight minutes was led by Dewaine Jones, who drained two three-pointers, and Corey Tressler, who hit one.

Tressler paced the Rams offensively with a game-high 21 points, while Jones finished with 12 and Cory Bosley netted 10.

The only Gael who reached double figures was Joey Spiemburg. Mike Nelson contributed nine points, and Alexander and Trevor Cobb each finished with eight.

Cobb was a perfect 6-for-6 at the foul line and Andrew Chambers went 3-for-4, with most of those points coming in the fourth quarter.

The Southern junior varsity was victorious in the opening game, 37-34, behind an 18-point performance by Bret DeWitt.

The varsity Rams, now even at 4-4, will resume their Western Maryland Interscholastic League slate at Fort Hill this Friday, and will play at Allegany next Tuesday. The jayvee contests will tip off at 6 p.m. and the varsity games will begin at 7:30.

SHS Girls Blast Blue Jays, Toppled By Mountaineers

The Southern High School girls' varsity basketball squad started off its annual appearance in the Maple City Classic in fine fashion Friday as the Rams downed Conemaugh Valley 70-41 in the event's opener. The tide turned in the following night's championship contest, however, as SHS's defense of its tourney crown from last year fell short in a 66-52 defeat at the hands of Berlin's Mountaineers. Berlin had gained its finals berth by downing host Meyersdale the preceding evening.

The Rams jumped out to a 17-12 first quarter lead over Conemaugh's Blue Jays en route to a 34-25 halftime advantage. By the end of the third stanza, SHS held an insurmountable 59-37 lead.

Southern's offense was sparked by guards Justine Pagenhardt and Robbin Gregg, who scored 23 and 22 points, respectively. Each hit for nine field goals, while Pagenhardt connected on five of eight free-throw attempts and Gregg went three-for-four from the foul line. Gregg also dished out a team-high eight assists, and Pagenhardt snagged a Ram-high six rebounds.

The Blue Jays' S. Collino led all scorers with 25 points.

The first half of the following night's championship battle between SHS and a powerful Berlin squad was a tight one through the first half, but the Mountaineers began pulling away after the halftime intermission on their way to a 14-point win over the Rams.

Southern had opened by taking an early lead and was up 15-11 after one quarter of play, and the contest was still up for grabs at the half with Berlin holding a slim 23-20 advantage. The Mountaineers doubled their lead to six at 42-36 heading into the final stanza, and the Rams were forced to foul to stop the clock. Berlin iced the game at the free-throw line by hitting 16 of 19 attempts in the fourth quarter.

Gregg led Southern with 27 points and seven assists, and Pagenhardt contributed 10 points and six assists. The Rams hit six three-pointers on the night, with Gregg netting three, Pagenhardt two, and Sabrina Scheffel recording one.

NHS Girls Take Sting Out Of Hornets, Slammed By Rams

The Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team stormed to a 48-16 win over Hyndman in the opening round of the Turkeyfoot Holiday Tournament Monday night, but were downed by the Ram hosts in the championship battle Tuesday, 56-37. Turkeyfoot defeated Salisbury in the other first-round game en route to the finals.

Perhaps the biggest news of the week for the Huskies may be small, as in their shrinking roster. The varsity lineup has dropped from eight players at the opening of the season to six at this point, with the latest loss coming against Hyndman Monday when junior guard Tiffany Yoder dislocated her knee.

Northern buzzed by the Hornets early by running up a 16-4 first-quarter lead and a 26-10 halftime advantage. As the fourth quarter opened, NHS was up 33-14.

Northern senior guard Lyndsi Butler netted 10 points, snagged nine rebounds, and added five steals, while junior forward Jeseca Gibson scored 14 points, sophomore center Sarah Stewart recorded 12 points, and junior forward Jayme Miller added seven rebounds.

Tuesday night's championship showdown with Turkeyfoot was a hard-fought battle that was fairly close for the first three stanzas. Northern was down 18-10 after one quarter, 33-22 at the half, and 42-31 as the fourth quarter opened. The rapidly tiring NHS line-up was outscored 14-6 over the final eight minutes.

NORTHERN (48)
Lyndsi Butler 3 3-6 10, Lakin Weimer 1 0-1 2, Jeseca Gibson 5 2-2 14, Tiffany Yoder 2 0-0 4, Jayme Miller 1 0-0 2, Amy Shaffer 2 0-0 4, Sarah Stewart 5 2-3 12. Totals 19 7-12 48.

HYNDMAN (16)
Mary Lakel 0 2-4 2, Amanda Shaffer 1 0-0 2, N. Shoemaker 1 0-1 2, S. Thompson 2 2-2 6, A. Silver 2 0-2 4. Totals 6 4-9 16.

Three-point goals - Northern 3 (Butler 1, Gibson 2), Hyndman 0. Total fouls - Northern 14, Hyndman 14. Fouled out - None.

Northern	16	26	33	48
Hyndman	4	10	14	16

Gibson paced the Huskies with 13 points, and Stewart contributed eight. Lakin Weimer pulled down 13 rebounds while Stewart grabbed seven, and Butler dished out four assists. Turkeyfoot's Courtney Smith led all scorers with 17 points, and teammate Kelli Nicholson recorded 13. The Rams hit four three-pointers to Northern's zero.

"Turkeyfoot played very aggressive defense that forced us to commit 28 turnovers," NHS coach Dave Yoder commented afterward. "We were able to break their press, but when we got down the floor we had trouble converting and would give the ball away. On the bright side, I was really impressed during the tourney with the way Lakin Weimer and Sarah Stewart have stepped in the rebounding department. They combined for 20 rebounds against Turkeyfoot, which was an excellent effort."

Several Northern players were accorded with post-tourney honors, as Weimer earned the Hustle Award and was joined by Stewart and Gibson on the All-Tournament Team.

The Huskies (3-2) have a busy week ahead, as they sandwich a battle with powerful Beall in between two contests with cross-county rival Southern. NHS hosts the Rams Saturday, then visits the Mounties Monday before traveling to SHS on Thursday, Jan. 8. Game times are 7:30 p.m. varsity and 6 p.m. for the junior varsity.

Huskies' Wolf Earns All-State, All-Area Football Recognition

Eight Garrett Players Overall Receive All-Area Honors

Northern High halfback Michael Wolf, who paced the area with a 160.2 yard-per-game average, received Honorable Mention accolades when the Associated Press Maryland All-State Football Team was announced recently. The recognition, bestowed by MdVarsity.com's online magazine, was for the state's small schools in the 1A/2A categories.

"It's great news that the state recognized Mike with All-State honors," said NHS head coach Phil Carr. "He had a great season, which we expected from him–and he even exceeded our expectations."

Wolf was also named to the Second Team of the All-Area squad in a poll of a small group of area head football coaches and sportswriters. Joining Wolf on the All-Area Team were seven other Garrett County gridders, four from Northern and three from Southern, each of whom received Honorable Mention accolades. NHS senior offensive linemen Chad Carr and Danny Ellis, junior defensive lineman Trevor Butler, and junior defensive backs Rocco Andres and Wolf were joined on the Honorable Mention roster by young Southern runner Andrew VanBogelen, just a sophomore, and senior Ram linebackers Chris Bennett and Karl Hillen.

Although comparatively small in stature, the 5-10, 165-pound Wolf showed no fear in darting through holes opened by his blockers along the NHS line. Despite statistics that put him at the top of the heap of area rushers, in the runner-up slot in scoring at 11.6 points per game, and third in all-purpose yardage, Wolf was passed by in favor of five other area running backs who received First Team recognition.

Upon closer look, however, area coaches would be hard-pressed to find a runner who meant more to his team than Wolf, who helped the Huskies rebound from a sluggish 0-3 start to take five of their last seven to finish with a 5-5 mark and narrowly miss a playoff berth. Northern's #24 tallied the most yards in a single season in NHS history, and his area-leading performance was the first time a Husky has led the area in rushing. Wolf also excelled on defense at strong safety, where his 78 tackles led all Northern defenders.

WOLF RUSHES ONTO STATE LIST – Shown above in his trademark form–speeding past the line of scrimmage untouched–Northern High School varsity halfback Michael Wolf rolled to Second Team honors on the Maryland All-State Football Team for 1A/2A schools. The Husky standout led the area in rushing by a wide margin, but a small group of coaches and several sportswriters from another publication passed over the junior runner in favor of five other backs who made the All-Area First Team. Wolf was selected to the Second Team on offense, and earned Honorable Mention accolades on defense along with four other Northern gridders and three Southern High Rams.

"Mike's a superb runner," Carr said. "What makes him great is that he's fast off the snap, reads the blocking real well, and explodes through the hole to make his moves beyond the line of scrimmage rather than dance around in the hole. That's great for his blockers, who don't wear themselves out fighting defenders any longer than they have to; he'll also be the first to tell you he had a fine offensive line ahead of him.

"You can't question Mike's toughness, because he came off knee surgery in July, and wasn't released for contact until two days before our opening game against Smithsburg. Although he didn't start, we brought him in before the half and he ended up with 71 yards on just 12 carries that day, and a lot of tackles on defense, too. I think his knee bothered him somewhat all year long, but he never said a word about it. He's just a great young man to coach."

Rams' Bosley, Nazelrod Named To All-Area Volleyball First Team

JULIA BOSLEY

KAYLA NAZELROD

Southern High School juniors Julia Bosley and Kayla Nazelrod have been recognized by area volleyball coaches with First Team All-Area Volleyball honors. SHS senior setter Megan Pike was named to the All-Area Second Team. The trio helped pace the Rams to a 13-3 overall mark through the 2003 varsity netter season, and both Bosley and Nazelrod will return next year to help anchor one of the most experienced programs the area will see. Pike will be the lone member of the SHS roster lost to graduation in the spring.

Frankfort High landed three of the eight slots on the First Team, as seniors Julie Cessna and Sarah Park were feted with co-Player of the Year designation. Falcon teammate Megan Bush rounded out the Frankfort trio, and making up the rest of the First Team were Lauren Mouse and Tracea Guthrie of Fort Hill, and Shannel Arnold of Bishop Walsh.

Bosley, the Ram squad's Most Valuable Player this past season, helped pace SHS to the Western Maryland Interscholastic League championship and into the Class 1A West Region semifinals, where Southern was eliminated by Boonesboro. Her honors also included a berth on the All-WMIL Team.

Bosley led the Rams in aces with 14, and was second in kills with 88 and service points at 114. The three-year starter has already snagged 266 career service points, topping the SHS all-time leaders list. "Julia was our smartest player on the court and is great at anticipating what is going to happen next," commented SHS coach Sue Newton. "That always put her in a position to get the ball and made her our best defensive player."

Nazelrod led all Rams in kills with 110 and blocks with 19. She joined Bosley as an All-WMIL team honoree. "Kayla really improved this season and became a very intense player," Newton said. "She became very aggressive at the net and learned to get the block."

Joining Pike on the Second Team are Natalie Athey of Fort Hill, Becky Smith, Sarah Wasson and Jeanna Barnes of Hampshire, Aushia Beavers of Keyser, and Jessica Burkett and Sara Harris of Beall.

Honorable mention status was awarded to Katie Lambert, Heather Harman and Jessica Phares of Petersburg, Samantha Lyons of Keyser, Katie Fisher of Moorefield, Lauren Hayes of Allegany, Katie Harvey of Westmar, and Quinn Coulehan and Lara Groetzinger of Bishop Walsh.

Ram Grapplers Roll To Easy Wins Over Indians, Applemen

The wrestling team of Southern High School recorded a pair of easy victories Tuesday night in a tri-match hosted by Musselman High School.

Coach Dave Taylor's squad dominated Berkeley Springs, 63-9, and then crushed host Musselman, 66-15. The Rams finished the evening with 14 pins.

Many of Southern's points in the match against Berkeley Springs came via forfeits, as the Indians left seven of the 14 weight classes empty.

MEETING A NASCAR LEGEND – Oakland area residents Jeremy Murphy, left, and his father Randy Murphy are shown flanking legendary NASCAR driver Bobby Allison recently at the ARCA (American Racing Car Association) banquet in Covington, Ky. A past champion of the vaunted NASCAR Winston Cup Series, Allison was on hand as a featured guest, and congratulated Jeremy Murphy and his fellow team members who helped pace top ARCA driver Frank Kimmel to his fifth consecutive circuit crown. She endeavors to use her expertise in matching the right volunteer with each family.

"She is greatly appreciated for her willingness to do whatever it takes to see that the patients receive everything that is needed," a Hospice spokesperson said. "Whether it's meals, errands, shopping, laundry, light housekeeping, or personal care needs, [Ida] tries to find the right persons to fulfill the need."

According to the spokesperson, the volunteers consider it an honor to work as patient caregivers for and with Maust. The following are some of their comments about Maust: "She is one of the nicest ladies I have ever met"; "She has a wonderful personality"; "She is kind, understanding, dedicated, tender hearted, loving, and caring"; "She is an angel on Earth"; and "She is compassionate and faithful in showing her appreciation to the volunteers."

Registration for the spring season of Casselman Valley youth soccer league, which operates under the AYSO (American Youth Soccer Organization) banner, is set for 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 9, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 10, at Grantsville Elementary School. (Snow dates will be the following Friday and Saturday, Jan. 16-17, at the same times.)

Players may also choose to pre-register online at www.eayso.org, but are reminded that they must still attend one of the registration meetings, a league spokesperson explained.

The Casselman Valley AYSO spring season will run from April through June for players ages 5 through 19 (with a birth date between Aug. 1, 1984, and Jan. 31, 1999). The registration fee is $30 per player, and those who elect not to participate in the non-profit league's fundraiser must add $25 to their registration fee for the first player, $20 for the second player, and $15 for the third player. There is a $60 maximum per family. Late registration, which begins after Sunday, Feb. 1, is $60 per player, provided that space is available.

Participants will receive a full soccer team uniform including socks, shorts, and a team shirt, membership in a medical reimbursement plan, subscription to the "Soccer Now" newsletter, and an invitation to the league's soccer picnic and mini-tournament, slated for Saturday, June 19.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE ADDS INCENTIVE TO DISEASE SURVEILLANCE PROGRAM

Commissioner of Agriculture Gus R. Douglass this week reminded cattle farmers and veterinarians that the West Virginia Department of Agriculture (WVDA) is offering a supplemental fee to veterinarians for collecting and submitting central nervous tissue samples from cattle that exhibit neurological problems associated with Bovine Spongiform Encephalopathy (BSE), or "mad cow disease."

"Thanks to a cooperative agreement with the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), we were in the process of setting up this program before the recent discovery of BSE in Washington state. In light of that discovery, we want to make sure that any remotely suspicious animals in West Virginia are tested," said Commissioner Douglass.

"It's important for consumers to know that, not only are this nation's agriculture professionals hard at work tracing and eradicating this current problem, but we have been protecting America's food supply for decades," he continued.

Cattle growers should be on the lookout for any signs of neurological problems – such as poor coordination, head shaking, excessive salivation, or cattle that cannot stand – and report them to their regular veterinarian. Those animals should not continue in the food chain. Instead, the veterinarian should euthanize the animal and contact the WVDA's Animal Health Division at 304-558-2214 for instructions on how to take and submit the sample.

Similarly, any livestock producers who notice unusual behavior or appearance in any of their animals, but who do not have access to a regular veterinarian, should contact the WVDA's Animal Health Division. Messages will automatically be forwarded to the state veterinarian after regular business hours.

Agriculture officials across America have been on the lookout for BSE because of the economic effect a positive case could have on U.S. cattle exports. Plus, a strong surveillance program is the best weapon at stopping BSE, or any other foreign animal disease (FAD) outbreak, in its tracks.

"Thorough surveillance of a disease outbreak of any kind is critical because early detection is the key to containing the spread of the disease," said State Veterinarian Joe Starcher. "Of course, early detection requires manpower and training, and it requires that people on the local level be educated about the signs and consequences of FADs."

According to Douglass, other diseases could be even more problematic than BSE. Unlike foot and mouth disease (FMD) and other contagious animal diseases, BSE does not spread through the air or through animal-to-animal contact. It can only be contracted through the ingestion of central nervous tissues of infected animals. The infectious agent is not contained in meat or milk, he noted.

"There is absolutely no scientific indication that the safety of either meat or milk has been compromised," he said.

Agricultural Producers Urged To Take Extra Precautions

West Virginia Commissioner of Agriculture Gus R. Douglass is calling on everyone involved in the livestock and poultry industries to be especially aware of biosecurity procedures in the coming weeks, because of the recent upgrading of the national threat level to Code Orange by the Department of Homeland Security (DHS).

"West Virginia is wide open to a disease threat due [to] its rural nature and . . . proximity to our nation's capital," said Douglass. "Hopefully, everyone in the agricultural community – from farmers to veterinarians to market operators – will be especially vigilant."

"If people can drive away with other people's cattle in the middle of the night, it would be simple enough for someone to introduce a disease in the same fashion," Douglass said in reference to continuing reports of cattle thefts in the Eastern Panhandle.

He added that agriculture is a segment of U.S. society that has been explicitly targeted by terrorist organizations, according to intelligence gathered since Sept. 11, 2001.

"The celebration of Christmas and New Year's during this time is not lost on those who would do harm on us," said Douglass. "They realize the many distractions Americans face during these final weeks of the year. But now is the time we must raise our guard, not lower it."

Among the recommendations for maintaining biosecurity on the farm and at livestock markets are the following:

- Be especially observant for signs of any foreign animal diseases, and immediately report any unusual symptoms or animal behavior to your local veterinarian. Call the state veterinarian at 304-558-2214 if you cannot reach your regular veterinarian. The West Virginia assistant state veterinarian is trained as a foreign animal disease specialist.
- If possible, keep animals in pastures away from main highways.
- Keep gates locked, and keep a closer watch on animals.
- Instruct employees to be on the lookout for unfamiliar people, vehicles, packages, or containers on or around the farm.
- When trucking animals, do not leave the vehicle unattended during rest stops. This is an ideal opportunity to introduce disease into the food chain!
- Maintain good records of all animal transportations. In case of an outbreak, these records will be critical in tracing all animals that may have been infected.
- Make sure feed and water supplies are accorded the same protection as animals. Stock up on feed in case intentionally adulterated products result in delayed shipments.

By the very nature of their work, the veterinary profession will be the first responders in any terrorist activity directed toward agriculture. Veterinarians have been afforded the opportunity to become more familiar with the symptoms of foreign animal diseases and should immediately contact the state veterinarian at the first sign of any suspicious activity.

Finally, veterinarians should monitor their fax machine or e-mail for notices from the state veterinarian's office. They should call to be added to the list if they are not already a part of WVDA's Animal Health Division's contact database.

The West Virginia Department of Agriculture protects plant, animal, and human health through a variety of scientific, regulatory, and consumer protection programs, as mandated by state law. The commissioner of agriculture is one of six statewide elected officials in West Virginia. Current commissioner Gus R. Douglass is the longest-serving agriculture commissioner in the nation. Farming On The Mountaintop

Dairy Farmer Workshop Set At Garrett College

A series of four workshops, including one in Garrett County, is being offered in January to give Maryland dairy farmers the tools and information they need to help manage financial risk in their operations. The workshops, which are part of a cooperative effort between the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the University of Maryland College of Agriculture and Natural Resources, and the USDA-Risk Management Agency, will include presentations on crop insurance products for dairy operations and financial management presentations as well as a discussion of "feeding to reduce environmental impact."

"Crop insurance is an effective risk management tool for farmers," said Maryland Secretary of Agriculture Lewis R. Riley. "AGR-Lite is an insurance product being offered for the first time in Maryland this year and may be particularly useful to dairy farmers and those with diversified production."

AGR (Adjusted Gross Revenue)-Lite protects against low revenue due to unavoidable natural disasters and market fluctuations that affect income. Most farm-raised crops, animals, and animal products are eligible for protection, including milk and animal sales. The deadline to purchase AGR or AGR-Lite coverage from crop insurance agents is Jan. 31.

Crop insurance also is available in Maryland for the first time for alfalfa and alfalfa/grass hay seeding. A policy for established hay also is available and the existing policy for corn silage has been upgraded to be more consistent with conditions in the region.

The workshops will begin at 9:30 a.m. with registration and coffee and end at 2:15 p.m.

The local workshop will be held Thursday, Jan. 15, at the Continuing Education Building at Garrett College in McHenry (contact person is Jim Simms, Garrett County Extension Office, 301-334-6960).

STUDYING THE SAW-WHET OWL – The tiny northern saw-whet owl was the subject of several activities of kindergarten students at Grantsville Elementary School recently. Jenn Clark, a student intern from Frostburg State University, coordinated the owl studies for Kim Collins's kindergarten class as part of her internship. The students first built houses for the small birds in mid-November. Kevin Dodge, professor of biology at Garrett College, assisted the youngsters, as did five of his college students. Dodge and his students routinely net and band northern saw-whet owls as they are tracked throughout the U.S. Dodge, pictured above as he introduces a saw-whet to the children, talked about different types of owls, showed slides, and demonstrated owl calls. The students then went to New Germany State Park on November 25 where Dodge, along with Eric Savage, a ranger at New Germany, installed five owl boxes in different wooded areas of the park. Dodge is pictured at right as he hangs one box, with the kindergartners keeping watch. The houses will serve as nesting boxes for the saw-whet owls. In other owl activities at the park, students dissected barn owl "pellets" (undigested animal parts). They found skulls, bones, teeth, and other animal parts. Pictured below left is Clark with student Zachary Yommer. The youngsters were allowed to use microscopes during the dissection work, as pictured below right. Shown from left are students Brian Mast, Bailey Stephens, and Matthew Maust.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Even though I was up before sunrise on this Monday after Christmas, I didn't try to call anyone before 10 o'clock, which means that most of my female news sources were already headed to town doing, I assume, some post-Christmas sales shopping. Any able bodied self-respecting Bittinger woman has already done the post-holiday cleanup. Or, like me, in deep holiday blues, the only thing that can pull me up from this despair is my daughters' presence, but unfortunately for me they are in Leisure World at my (soon-to-be) ex-in-laws with their father.

Of course, I could not deprive them of having time with Nana and Pop. But the house looks like there was a drunken, wild party here to have trashed the place this bad. I realize it is normal for kids to litter the floor with forgotten gifts and leave a mess behind as they rush to their next big holiday thrills. But I can't help but feel like a failure, as even my most fun gift to the girls ended up on the floor. I know how hard I tried to fold up left-over gift wrap paper. It is just something impossible to do with only one hand, like emptying trash cans, etc. I know what I should do and I want to do it, but all that gets for me is a big headache and heartache.

I still have a few holiday cards to send, especially to a family that used to attend our barn parties. I know how tough it must be for even good American citizens with the name like Ahmen. He was originally from Turkey. I hope my late card does not look like an anti-Muslim slight. But I must do something about this mess before I deal with overdue mail business. Actually the most pressing task is this, trying to dredge up some kind of notes from Bittinger to meet an early Monday deadline.

The sweetest thing I saw over the holidays was when my Caitlin gave her beloved red velvet jewelry box to Claire for a present because Claire loved it so much and Caity didn't have enough money to buy a good enough gift for her dear big sister. I could have afforded Claire's heart desire for Christmas, but I tried everywhere to find a Navy pea coat that she wanted so badly, but came up empty handed. She had plenty of presents, just not the one big thing she wanted.

We did have a perfect white Christmas as we got a snow shower when we left for Christmas Eve church service. It was not quite as perfect as the one we had when I was a newlywed and we came out from church with the air filled with the biggest soft snow flakes falling.

But it was a lovely Christmas Eve service (as usual). Especially the one opening attraction, which was an ensemble of our kids playing their band musical instruments, with Robbie on the tuba, Darryl on the trombone, Elliot on the saxophone, Blakely on the trumpet, and Claire on the clarinet. Their grandmother, Ruth DiPaolo, must have felt pretty proud of those beautiful, sweet, talented and dutiful kids. Darryl, Elliot and Robbie also played guitar music during the communion service.

Lana Brenneman performed "Happy Birthday, Jesus" for the little children. The children time even included a birthday cake for Jesus. Of course, that was too corny for the teenagers. Then we had our traditional candle-lighting ceremony as we sang "Silent Night."

As usual, the church was pretty full, with all the red and white poinsettias and the beautiful Christmas tree decorated with crismons. Unfortunately, the Sunday morning service after Christmas service was not so full, according to Ferne Beachy and, of course, she noticed my absence as always with the "We missed you on Sunday." We also had special music at the Sunday morning service with solos by Leslie Buckel and Lana Roby.

I decided to deliver some gifts to some homesick friends from Australia, Andrea Wilcox-Howe and her two daughters. I still have a few undelivered gifts. I don't know when I will have the heart and energy to deliver them.

It is nice to have a few warm and sunny days in December, but then during the cold nights what we have is ice.

I wish a "Happy New Year" to all my readers and friends.

Some have expressed concern about Olive Bender. I was happy to hear that she was staying for awhile with Karmen and Julius Carey in the Grantsville area, but now is residing in Ohio with some of her family. I have been worried about her, without Jimmy Glotfelty being around to help her, especially in the winter.

Ethel Buckel spent the holidays with her son, Dr. Ralph Buckel Jr., and Sarah in Chestertown. They were also guests of Lee and Julie Buckel in Stevensville.

Another news item this morning is that Bill Southerly had to take Sheila to the hospital in Oakland and then on to Cumberland for a severe case of kidney stones. Cannot find out tonight if she is hospitalized or just received treatment.

Robbie Glotfelty played the tuba in an ensemble for the Christmas Eve service at St. Luke's Lutheran Church in Cumberland. He has done so the past few years. It was good our service was at 8:00 so he could get there in time for their late service.

The Poholsky family and Clay Stanton were Christmas dinner guests of the Sam and Cindy Stanton and family.

Marci and Rodney Glotfelty and family hosted the annual Christmas dinner at their home on Christmas Day. All 10 grandchildren and in-laws were present, and a happy time was had by all. Also attending were Courtney Englar and, of course, Gram DiPaolo.

Lynn and Michael Smith, Timonium, were weekend guests of Rodney and Marci Glotfelty and family.

Kevin, Matthew and Emma Bass visited his sister in Altoona, Pa., Christmas night. His parents, Bill and Barbara Bass, from Anderson, S. C., visited the Kevin Bass family over the weekend.

News from Preston, Tucker, Grant and Mineral Counties.

AURORA/EGLON

Carl and Betty Flnt returned Dec. 21 to their home at Aurora after spending 10 days in Washington. On Dec. 13 they attended the graduation ceremonies at Western Washington University in Bellingham. Their daughter Tina received a bachelor's degree in business administration and will be employed by the Bellingham bank, where she had been working part-time while completing her classes. Also there for the occasion was Tina's sister, Carla Fint, of Morristown, N.J. After spending several days in Bellingham, the Fints allowed time for sightseeing in Seattle before returning home.

Reba Williams of Horse Shoe Run was admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital last week and later transferred to Ruby Memorial.

Word was received that there has been a slight improvement in the medical condition of James Pennington, and it was hoped that he could be transferred from Memorial Hospital in Cumberland to an Oakland facility to be nearer home.

Susie Warner of Bristol and her daughter Jill were among the guests this past week with her mother, Mrs. Ruth Parks, Eglon. They also visited Jill's sister and family, Michelle, Dwain, and Samantha Ford at Amboy. Also visiting with Mrs. Parks was another daughter, Doris Crawford, of Virginia. On Saturday the entire family gathered at the Parks home to celebrate Christmas.

Scott and Sharon Teets of Knoxville, Tenn., were Saturday visitors here with his brother and family, Mark, LaDeana, Tom, and Lindsey Teets at Amboy, and with his parents, Ellis and Marie Teets.

Visiting Friday to Monday with Tom, Linda, and Sara Lewis at Eglon were Chuck and Emily Young of Martinaburg.

Janet and Larry Melvin of Arkansas made a brief visit Christmas Eve with Janet's brother and family, Richard, Mary, and Caitlin Norwish, Eglon. They were on their way to Virginia to spend Christmas with their mother, Peggy Norwish.

AURORA CEOS ATTENDS PRESTON ACHIEVEMENT DAY – These members of the Aurora CEOS were on hand for the Preston County CEOS Achievement Day program at the UM Memorial Building in Aurora recently. The club's honors included a blue ribbon for its scrapbook, a project of members Virginia Martin and Deloris Slawter, and a red ribbon for its community project. Among the Aurora CEOS recognized with individual awards were Dorothy Spaid, who was named Club CEOS Member of the Year, while Certified Volunteer Hours certificates were presented to Martin, Spaid, Opal Myers, Ressie Conrad, Delores Douglas, and Kathy Hardesty. Pictured in the front row, from the left, are Dean Sisler, Conrad, Hardesty, Martha Bolyard, Michele Mouré, and Martin. Three Natural Ways to Control High Blood Cholesterol

Prescription medicines are available to help persons reduce high cholesterol levels. These medicines are especially important to those individuals who have inherited the trait to overproduce cholesterol. Even with use of these medicines it is important to limit intake of foods containing large amounts of cholesterol (e.g., eggs, liver) and foods that contain saturated fat (e.g., any animal fat, including chicken and turkey skin, pork, beef). Therefore, one "natural" way to reduce cholesterol is through attention to diet.

Another natural approach to cholesterol control involves the daily use of the fiber supplement psyllium. This fiber, which some people use to prevent constipation, can reduce cholesterol by as much as 20%. Psyllium apparently interferes with absorption of fats into the bloodstream from the intestine. Another natural approach involves eating foods that contain garlic or using garlic extracts in supplement form. Many studies have shown a significant drop in cholesterol among garlic extract users.

In many cities nationwide, there exist havens for the hungry...shelters providing nourishing meals for those, who for various reasons, are unable to nourish themselves.

Those who receive the gift of a meal at a shelter may have recently been more than self-sufficient. Life is not always fair. Ultimately, are we not all kindred souls, in search of the meaning and manna to strengthen us as we travel unpredictable paths?

Then how wonderful there is another haven...a shelter for hungry spirits where all are welcomed and encouraged! God has promised us in Matthew 5:6, "Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they shall be satisfied." As the New Year begins, visit our Father's sanctuary and experience the sustenance only He can provide.

Looking Back/Looking Forward

The month of January is named after the two-faced Greek god Janus, a god who could simultaneously look backwards and forwards. Indeed, January is a month when many of us look back at the year that has just ended while looking forward to the year to come. But unlike Janus, we are unable to simultaneously look forward and backwards, and our memories are as poor as our foresight is shortsighted. Therefore, we would do well to consider what we have accomplished in the previous year, and then consider what we would like to accomplish in the year ahead. As the saying goes: If you don't know where you are going, you will probably end up somewhere else. Unfortunately, most people resolve to work harder, to lose weight or to get in shape; all goals which are laudable but destined to mean very little in the grand scheme of things. Let me suggest that we think hardest about our resolve to be a better, kinder, more decent person. Surely, becoming a kinder, better, more decent person and having a closer relationship with God are more likely to have a greater effect on the people we come in contact with, and at the same time, these actions might just save our souls.

So then, as we have the opportunity, let us do good to all men, And especially to those who are of the household of faith.

'CSI: Miami' star made splash in 'West Wing'

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Emily Procter

Q: Wasn't Emily Procter of "CSI: Miami" on "The West Wing" previously? Is she related to Elizabeth Mitchell of "The Lyon's Den"? I notice what appear to be many similarities between them. –Edna H., Sacramento, Calif.

A: Yes, before landing her "Miami" role as Calleigh Duquesne, Procter – who is not related to Mitchell – made a big splash on "The West Wing" as feisty Republican lawyer Ainsley Hayes, a recurring role she played from 2000 to 2002. That Southern accent is the real deal, by the way: Procter hails from Raleigh, N.C.

Q: At the end of a recent episode of "Still Standing," there was a tribute "In loving memory of Jacintha Van Dal." Who was she? –K. Myers via e-mail.

A: A CBS publicist for the show says that Van Dal was the longtime executive assistant of "Standing" co-executive producer Regina Stewart. Van Dal died last summer.

Q: Is there a new Stevie on "Malcolm in the Middle" or have the original actor's looks and voice changed a lot since last season? –Gary Calhoun, Ann Arbor, Mich.

A: Chalk it up to puberty. At 14, Craig Lamar Traylor – who continues to play Stevie, as he always has – is undergoing an unusually striking transformation into young adulthood.

Q: Why did BBC America drop "Eastenders"? My friends and I were addicted to it! –Sandra O. via e-mail.

A: "That was a very painful decision for us, because obviously we loved the show a lot, too," a BBC America publicist tells me. "Unfortunately, we rely on commercial advertiser support, and 'Eastenders' was a wonderful show that just never found much of an audience over here, no matter how much we promoted it or how many times we tried different places on the schedule."

Q: What was the name of the sitcom starring Ted Knight as a San Francisco cartoonist? –Louise Gardnick, Oakland, N.J.

A: Knight played professional illustrator Henry Rush in "Too Close for Comfort," an ABC sitcom that ran on the network from Nov. 11, 1980, to Sept. 15, 1983. Broadway musical star Nancy Dussault played his wife, Muriel, with Deborah Van Valkenburgh and Lydia Cornell as daughters Jackie and Sarah and JM J. Bullock (as the comedian spelled his name in those days) as flaky friend Monroe.

After ABC canceled the show, "Comfort" moved into first-run syndication, eventually changing its title in early 1986 to "The Ted Knight Show." The series had been renewed for the 1986-87 TV season, but those plans were scuttled when Knight, who had been battling cancer behind the scenes, died during the summer of 1986.

In Focus

Nia Long, who plays good cop Monroe to Bosco (Jason Wiles), the hotheaded officer, finds a young man (guest star Warren Blosjo) bleeding in an alley in the 100th episode, "A Call for Help," of NBC's "Third Watch" Friday, Jan. 9.

This segment, shot in a 360-degree style, shows what happens when the police and paramedics try to figure out what happened. When Sergeant Cruz (Tia Texada) arrives, she tries to take over, and turf squabbles ensue as paramedics and police try to solve the murder.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Tony Blair is now the prime minister of Great Britain, but he didn't always hold so distinguished a post. He once was a guitarist in a band called "Ugly Rumours."

• The Irish have some truly imaginative curses. For example, "May the lamb of God stir his hoof through the roof of heaven and kick you in the rear down to hell."

• Not all monarchs are truly beloved of their subjects. Charles II of France was widely known as "Charles the Fat." One of his successors, Charles VI, was called "Charles the Mad." And France's Louis V was called "Louis the Indolent" or "Louis the Lazy."

• It was Thomas Carlyle who made the observation: "Love is not entirely a delirium, yet it has many points in common therewith."

• A lump of clay contains millions of particles of magnetite. When a clay pot is fired, the intense heat of the kiln erases these particles' tiny individual magnetic fields. As the pot cools, the particles align themselves with the Earth's north pole. Scientists can study pots made thousands of years ago to measure changes in our planet's own giant magnetic field. This is why you so often see archaeologists and geologists fighting over ancient pottery.

• Before she got married, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, then known as Jackie Bouvier, worked as a newspaper columnist at a salary of $42.50 per week.

• Are you cnidophobic? I wouldn't be surprised. Most people are afraid of being stung.

• Munich, Germany, is home of the original Oktoberfest. The first one was in 1810, and it's now the largest festival in the world. It's been reported that the 6 million attendees collectively drink more than 10 million pints of beer.

• On Jan. 9, 1806, Lord Horatio Nelson, the British naval hero credited with saving Britain from an invasion by France, is buried at St. Paul's Cathedral in London. A column was erected to his memory in the newly named Trafalgar Square.

• On Jan. 5, 1895, French officer Alfred Dreyfus, condemned for passing military secrets to the Germans, is stripped of his rank in a humiliating public ceremony in the courtyard of Paris' Ecole Militaire. In 1898, Major Hubert Henry, discoverer of the original letter attributed to Dreyfus, admitted that he had forged much of the evidence against Dreyfus and committed suicide.

• On Jan. 6, 1912, New Mexico is admitted into the United States as the 47th state. Spanish explorers passed through the area that would become New Mexico in the early 16th century, encountering the well-preserved remains of a 13th-century Pueblo civilization.

• On Jan. 10, 1920, the League of Nations formally comes into being when the Covenant of the League of Nations, ratified by 42 nations in 1919, takes effect. • On Jan. 7, 1924, 26-year-old composer George Gershwin completes jazz symphony "Rhapsody in Blue." In 1935, he wrote his masterpiece, jazz-opera "Porgy and Bess."

• On Jan. 11, 1928, Leon Trotsky, a leader of the Bolshevik revolution and early architect of the Soviet state, is deported by Soviet leader Joseph Stalin to Alma-Ata in remote Soviet Central Asia. He lived there in internal exile for a year before being banished from the USSR forever by Stalin.

• On Jan. 8, 1962, at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., Leonardo da Vinci's masterpiece, the Mona Lisa, is exhibited for the first time in America. Over 2,000 dignitaries, including President John F. Kennedy, came out that evening to view the famous painting.

Cigar Bands

Q: I have a collection of vintage cigar bands that were manufactured around 1900. Do you have any suggestions of how I can market them? — Dominic, Westlake, Ohio

A. There are several collectors, including Jiseph Hruby, 1511 Lyndhurst Road, Cleveland, OH 44124; and Steven Gilbert, 230 Forge Hill Road, Wrightville, PA 17368. Wayne Dunn might also be helpful. He is an appraiser of cigar label art and may be contacted through his mailing address, P.O. Box 3902, Mission Viejo, CA 92691.

Q: I have an old sewing machine that was made in occupied Japan. Although there's no brand name on the machine, I suspect it is valuable. — Mae, Richmond, Va.

A. Items marked "Made in Occupied Japan" were manufactured from the end of WWII in 1945 until April 1952, the years of the American occupation of Japan. Many of these items have become quite collectible, with values varying considerably.

One of the better reference guides is "Occupied Japan Collectibles: An Identification and Value Guide" by Gene Florence published by Collector Books. Although it doesn't have sewing machines listed, it does have hundreds of other products with current market values.

To find out about your sewing machine, you might want to contact The Occupied Japan Club, 29 Freeborn St., Newport, RI 02840. Two serious collectors are Margaret Bolbat, 8714 Alicia St., Philadelphia, PA 19115; and Stephanie Seguin, The Occupied Attic, 1 Gleneagles Blvd., Ballston Lake, NY 12019.

Helping Fido Settle In

Q: We purchased Jake, a golden retriever puppy, just in time for Christmas as a gift for our 6-year-old son. Jake is more than 3 months old and fully weaned. We've had him for two weeks, and he still won't stop crying at night. It's keeping everyone awake. Help! — Tony, via e-mail

A. Jake's continued crying after two weeks is an indication that he hasn't fully settled in to his new home. No matter how much love and attention you lavish on him, he still just left the litter, and he misses his mother, brothers and sisters. It's natural.

However, two straight weeks of crying isn't common.

Check with your veterinarian first. He or she may ask you to bring Jake in for a look to make sure the puppy isn't experiencing health problems that were missed or that developed since his first visit. If Jake hasn't visited the vet yet, take him right away to assess his health and start his first round of shots.

Next, make sure the puppy has all the basic comforts: a crate to sleep in, food and water dishes, a collar and leash, grooming gear and a carrier. Add puppy-safe chew toys and treats.

Now, put yourself in Jake's place. Imagine your first day in summer camp, or kindergarten, or other childhood settings that were new and unfamiliar. Jake could feel very much the same: alone and confused. Give him lots of attention during the day, play with him often — and start his training in basic obedience. Spend more time on play at first than on obedience, but structure his day nonetheless. Make him feel like he belongs to the family and has a purpose in the household.

A last tip: At night, place a blanket or towel containing your scent in Jake's crate along with a ticking clock. You might even try wrapping the towel around a warm water bottle. In short, make the crate feel like a new home. Settling Jake in may take a few more days, but it is possible to ease his transition.

DEGREE DAYS

Q. What are "Degree Days"? Why do they matter?

"Degree Days" are a convenient way of standardizing a measure of the weather over a period of time; it gives a fairly good indication of how much heat it takes to keep a house warm. This in turn allows you to estimate how much gas, oil, or electricity you'll use – based on experience from the past.

In order to have one standard that everybody agrees on, the temperature of 65°F is taken as the zero point. If the average temperature for the day is 65°F, that particular day has zero degree days. If it's a cold day and the average temperature is 30°F, that day has 35 degree days. If the high for the day is 40°F and the low at night is 20°F, it's a fair guess that the average temperature will be around 30° F. (You can calculate it hour by hour, but the increase in precision isn't worth the extra effort.)

In the summer, there are cooling degree days, calculated in the equivalent way: If the low at night is 70°F and the high is 90°F, there are 15 cooling degree days associated with that day. Since nearly all air conditioners run on electricity, the electrical utilities in big cities pay close attention to the number of cooling degree days, because it's a good predictor of how much electricity people will draw.

The reason for picking 65°F is simply because it's easy to agree on – very few people feel the need to either heat or cool their house when the daily average is 65°F. If the country ran on the Celsius temperature scale, the zero point would probably be 20°C (which equals 68°F) because it's easy to do the calculations.

You can figure out the efficiency of your own house by studying your records from the past. You can look up the number of degree days for all last winter in the archives of the National Weather Service, reached from www.cpc.ncep.noaa.gov (the numbers pertaining to Morgantown, W.Va., are the most useful). Then look at your bill for oil or gas or whatever you heat your home with. Divide the total gallons of oil (or total cubic feet of gas, or total kilowatts of electricity) by the number of degree days in a season, and you've calculated the rate at which your house loses heat. The calculation is no harder than figuring the miles per gallon that your car gets.

Suppose the heating season for the past year added up to 4,000 degree days, and you used 600 gallons of oil. You would calculate 0.15 gallons per degree day for your house. On a day this week that has 20 degree days, you would then expect to burn about 3 gallons of oil.

This is not a terribly exact science, because different people have different habits. If the low at night is 45°F and the high in the daytime is 75°F, you would calculate 5 degree days. But will your furnace go on for this small heating requirement? Not likely. You'll open the windows in the day and shut them at night. Moreover, electrical appliances and lights generate a certain amount of heat.

Individual houses differ as well. Whether your attic is well-insulated or poorly insulated makes a difference, too. Is there a layer of snow covering the roof? Has something changed in your household since last season? With a new baby, for instance, you might want to keep the house warmer.

Still, the number of degree days in a season gives a useful general index of weather conditions, and hence of fuel requirements. There is serious money riding on the number of degree days.

When a fuel-oil company signs a contract with you to provi de oil all year-round, it only takes about one heating season for the oil vendor to get a pretty good idea of how fast you'll use oil; and knowing that, they can decide when to fill up your tank with pretty good accuracy. The key parameter they keep track of is the degree days in your region. Their computer does the same calculation illustrated above.

This same sort of estimating can be done on a national scale, taking into account the population of various cities, etc. It becomes possible to predict the total required supply of natural gas for a region or for the whole country this way. One consequence of this is that a futures market exists for natural gas, where stock-market speculators buy and sell natural gas futures (just like coffee or pork bellies) depending on what their own crystal ball tells them about the weather. The futures prices can fluctuate wildly.

Utilities, on the other hand, strive to buy long-term contracts for delivery of natural gas at fixed prices, explicitly in order to avoid getting caught short when the price is high. Both sides in this game rely on the measure of degree days to guide their strategies.

NHS STUDENTS TOUR VISITORS CENTER – A group of students from Northern High School recently toured the Visitors Center in McHenry, and discovered that there are a lot of things to learn about Garrett County. They perused the dozens of racks of brochures about local attractions, events, and businesses, and identified familiar scenes in the center's photo display. Chamber president Charlie Ross welcomed the students, and staff member Peggy Santamaria showed them the back office operations of the center. During the afternoon field trip, the student dined at Uno's restaurant and toured the Christmas Chalet. They all agreed that they had learned many new things about the community. In the photo, seated from left to right, are Corey House, Rachela DiSandra, assistant teacher Gayle Dixon, and Keith Platter. Standing are Ross, teacher Barbara Law, Krista Beller, Josh Sines, Robbie Harding, and Jason Anderson.

January Is Nat'l Cervical Cancer Awareness Month

The Garrett County Health Department is joining groups across the country in celebrating January as National Cervical Cancer Awareness Month. The goal is to educate and empower women across America to visit their clinician for an annual Pap smear test.

"When cervical cancer is caught early it is nearly 100 percent curable," said Becky Parks, RN, coordinator of the Health Department's Cancer Screening Program, "so vigilance on the part of women about early detection through cervical cancer screening is crucial."

Cervical cancer is one of the most common causes of cancer worldwide, and one of the most preventable and treatable. The American Cancer Society estimates that in 2003, 12,800 cases of invasive cervical cancer were diagnosed in the United States, and about 4,800 women died from the disease.

Most cervical cancer is preventable. There are two ways to prevent this disease. The first way is to prevent pre-cancers, which is best done by avoiding risk factors.

For cervical cancer, the most important risk factor is infection with HPV (human papillomavirus). This disease can be passed from one person to another during sex. Having unprotected sex, especially at a young age, makes infection more likely.

Smoking is another risk factor for cervical cancer. Women who smoke are about twice as likely as nonsmokers to get cervical cancer. Tobacco smoke can produce chemicals that may damage the DNA in cells of the cervix and make cancer more likely to develop.

The second way to prevent cancer of the cervix is to have regular Pap smear tests. The Pap test can detect HPV infection and precancers. Treatment of these problems can stop cervical cancer before it fully develops.

The American Cancer Society recommends that all women have yearly Pap smears starting at age 18 or when they begin having sex. The doctor may decide to do the test less often if women have had three normal tests in a row. Women who have had their uterus removed for cervical cancer or those past menopause still need to have a regular Pap test.

The American Cancer Society reports that between 60 and 80 percent of American women newly diagnosed with invasive cervical cancer have not had a Pap smear in the past five years or may never have had one. Unscreened population groups include older women and the uninsured women, particularity those in rural areas.

The Garrett County Health Department will offer a Pap test screening clinic. The service will be free, but women need to call 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111 to schedule an appointment.

The Garrett County Health Department also has a more extensive Cancer Screening Program whereby eligible Garrett County residents can go to the doctor and obtain screenings for breast, cervical, skin, oral, colorectal, and prostate cancer.

RYAN'S GLADE

by Tara Marple

The regular monthly meeting was held Dec. 19. Reports were given on leaders' training, members' movie night, and the beef workshop.

The members voted on club activities, community service, and fund-raiser ideas for the upcoming year. Project books were due at the meeting. They will be brought back at the January meeting in case members need to add something.

After the meeting, there was a covered dish Christmas dinner with a gift exchange.

The next meeting will be on Jan. 23, with a covered dish dinner and Club Achievement program.

Buyer Beware!

You may be aware of the many arguments against selling a home on your own, but you should also know about the pitfalls of buying a home from a "For Sale By Owner" (FSBO).

You may believe that homes offered For Sale By Owner are priced lower, because the sellers are saving the commission that would otherwise be paid to a listing agent. But that double-edged sword cuts both ways, and you may find miserly sellers pricing their home even higher.

Even if you find a perfect home For Sale By Owner, be very cautious about any documents that are prepared regarding your offer to purchase, inspections, and insurance. Attorney's fees can add up quickly, but you had better be sure that you're properly represented in the transaction, and don't accept anything at face value.

You need to do a lot of research before even beginning your home search. Be well-armed with information before you approach a seller who has chosen self-representation.

Your best bet is to contact your local real estate office and arrange to see homes that are listed through the multiple listing system (or MLS). Homes listed through a professional will be priced fairly and represented accurately. You'll also be guided through the maze of inspections and documentation necessary to successfully close on your purchase. Avoid the "FSBO" and buy with confidence!

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

FORETELLING A BITTER NIGHT – A clear evening in winter, with moon and stars bright and stark, is a harbinger of only one thing: the temperatures are plunging. And plunge they did this week, dropping to single digits on Wednesday morning with a wind chill in the neighborhood of –40, according to the Garrett College Weather Page (which can be viewed at www2.gcnet.net/weatherview/). The cold is to continue for the next several days, not to climb into the 30s until next Tuesday. So the snow will continue to squeak underfoot, and the cold will creep into the house, where all will gravitate toward the heating vents or fireplaces, thankful for shelter amidst the perils of a Garrett County winter. Local Man Faces Charges Including Attempted Murder

A Mtn. Lake Park man was arrested and charged with attempted second-degree murder among other charges from an incident that occurred on Fourth Street in Oakland during the early morning hours of Jan. 3, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Anthony James Hardesty, 19, was also charged with first-degree assault, reckless endangerment, second-degree assault, and driving under the influence.

According to police, Hardesty allegedly followed a vehicle from the Mtn. Lake Park area and shot through the window of the vehicle, which was occupied by Toby Wayne Tasker, 20, Swanton.

The incident resulted from a domestic dispute between Hardesty, his girlfriend, and Tasker, police said.

Hardesty is currently incarcerated in the Garrett County Detention Center on $105,000 bond.

HAPPY NEW YEAR, BABY! Little Samantha Faith Hauser was the first infant of 2004 born at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, arriving at 6 a.m. on the dot New Year's Day. Her happy parents are Stacey and Angela Hauser, Oakland. The baby weighed in at a healthy 7 pounds, 9.9 ounces, and was 19 inches long. She was delivered by Dr. Karl Schwalm. Samantha and her parents have since gone home to begin their adventures together. Congratulations! Photo by John McEwen.

Commissioners Slate Hearing On Animal Ordinance

The Garrett County commissioners will hold a public hearing concerning updates to the animal control ordinance on Tuesday, Jan. 27, at 10:30 a.m. in their meeting room at the courthouse.

The county's current "dog" ordinance was adopted in 1985, but only a few amendments have been added since then. A committee of Humane Society members, Garrett County Animal Shelter personnel, and other residents has been working on updating the ordinance for several months.

"The committee tried to come up with something a little broader in scope to meet needs," said director Brad Frantz, Garrett County Emergency Management. Last February, the commissioners placed animal control and the animal shelter under the authority of Emergency Management, with Frantz as the administrative manager.

Frantz reviewed the group's final draft of the ordinance with the commissioners this week. Should the changes be approved, the most dramatic one would be the inclusion of cats.

The committee proposes that the edict be deemed an "animal" ordinance, with animals meaning dogs and cats. Pet owners would be required to get their cats vaccinated for rabies and purchase licenses.

Additionally, as in the past with a dog, a cat would be considered "at large" if it is not on its owners' property or "under the immediate physical control of a responsible person capable of physically restraining the animal."

The committee also rec-

Health Dept. Staff Give Flu Update; Limited FluMist Vaccine Available

Garrett County Health Department staff members updated the commissioners this week on the availability of influenza vaccine and the status of the influenza virus in the county.

"Inactive (injectable) vaccines are no longer available from manufacturers," said Eric Cvetnick of the Health Department's communicable disease program. "Some vaccine may be available from some wholesalers."

Last year there was not a big demand for flu vaccines, noted health officer Roger Glotfelty, and manufacturers may not have produced as much this year, which may have led to the shortage.

The department, however, does have a limited supply of inactivated flu vaccine available for any child age 6 to 23 months, and children 2 years and older with certain chronic medical conditions. Interested parents may call the department at 301-334-7770 or 301-895-3111 for more information.

Physicians may also still have some pediatric vaccines available, noted Glotfelty.

About 300 residents are on a waiting list for the vaccine, but because of the limited supply, the Health Department has had to allocate the doses to high-risk individuals.

"We're doing the best we can," Glotfelty said, "[and] physicians have been doing a good job vaccinating."

So far, the department has inoculated 1,500 residents, which is a 68 percent increase from last year (2002), said Cvetnick. Carol Clark, director of personal health, also noted that the department vaccinated more children this flu season.

The department held flu vaccine clinics at various locations throughout the county and at the Grantsville and Oakland health centers from the end of October through November. On the last day that the department offered the vaccine, however, 300 to 400 people arrived at the Oakland health center wanting the shots after they heard there was a nationwide shortage. By then, however, the department had only 30 doses left, said Glotfelty.

"It's hard to get people to get their vaccines early," said Dr. William Pope. They often wait until someone close to them gets the virus before they decide to get vaccinated, but by then it is too late. They also get the virus, but blame the vaccine for giving it to them.

It takes about two weeks for a flu vaccine to become effective, according to community health nurse Cynthia Mankamyer.

The health officer said last year his department did not receive most of its allotted vaccine until December. "It's still fairly early [in the flu season]," he said.

As of Tuesday morning, 19 cases of Type A influenza have been reported in Garrett County, said Cvetnick. No cases of Type B have been reported. But because the reporting of flu cases from physicians and hospital laboratories is voluntary, the actual number of cases is probably higher.

Nationally, the flu is considered to be widespread throughout most of the country. In a few areas, such as Louisiana, Washington, and the Mid-West, the virus has been deemed "regional," according to Health Department data.

In response to the high local demand for vaccine, the Health Department ordered several doses of FluMist®. An intranasal, live vaccine, the product is manufactured by MedImmune Vaccine Inc. in Gaithersburg and distributed by Wyeth Vaccines and MedImmune.

After the Health Department ordered the vaccine, however, the state also con-

GC Nets Federal Grant For Local Emergency Needs

Garrett County has been selected to receive $16,728 to supplement emergency shelter, utilities, and food programs in 2004, according to the Community and Emergency Services office of the Garrett County Community Action Committee.

The award was made by a national board chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency and consists of representatives from the American Red Cross; Catholic Charities, USA; The Salvation Army; United Jewish Communities; and the United Way of America. The board was charged to distribute funds appropriated by Congress to help expand the capacity of food and shelter programs in high-need areas around the country.

A local board will assist FEMA in determining how the funds are to be distributed among the Garrett County emergency food and shelter programs run by area service agencies. The local board is composed of representatives from the Garrett County commissioners, Mountain Top Ministerial Association, Catholic Charities, and Department of Social Services, plus one homeless person.

For further information on the program, persons may contact Linda Green, director of GCCAC's Community and Emergency Services, at 301-334-9431 no later than Monday, Jan. 19.

Early Saturday Morning Accident Claims Life Of Oakland Woman

An Oakland woman died as the result of a automobile accident early Saturday morning along U.S. Route 219 just south of Blue Ribbon Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

For undetermined reasons, a 1999 Chevy Cavalier operated by Diana Lee Grubb, 46, crossed into the southbound lane and into the path of a 2002 Kenworth tractor and trailer, operated by Daniel Elwood Armentrout, 44, Keyser, W.Va.

Grubb was pronounced dead at the scene, and Armentrout was transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released, police said.

The accident is under investigation by police.

Also responding to the 7:30 a.m. incident were Oakland firefighters, Oakland City Police, and the Maryland State Highway Administration.

Grubb's obituary appears on page A-6 of the paper.

Garrett Native To Represent USA In Global Kayaking Competition

by Joan Crawford

When athletes from many countries around the world gather in Australia later this month for the Pre-World Kayak Freestyle Championship, among them will be Shanna Powell, graduate of Northern High School and Garrett College's Adventure Sports program.

Powell, now a senior at Frostburg State University majoring in recreation and parks management, was selected as one of the three members on the U.S. women's team following the qualifying event at Rock Island, Tenn., in October. She placed fourth in that competition but was subsequently placed on the team when one of the other women was unable to compete. Now she will not only represent the United States in international competition, but will also wear the logo of the Adventure Sports Institute on the other side of the world. Other team members are Daren Eddy of Knoxville, Tenn., and Devon Barker of McCall, Idaho.

Saying that she was both shocked and pleased at making the team, Powell admitted that she had not grown up around water. "In high school I ran cross country and played softball," she said, "and I have always spent many hours working in the garden. I had never kayaked until a Garrett student-instructor taught me to roll in the Frostburg pool. Then I started rafting and I loved it. At that time I was still trying to find the academic major I wanted and I decided on the Adventure Sports program."

Powell said she entered the program with a love for kayaking and received expert instruction. "Some people don't focus on one particular sport," she said, "but my passion is kayaking, and I have learned from experts who have kayaked with the best." She credited ASI instructor Terry Peterson for helping her improve her stroke and coach Steve Storck, who arranged for expert instruction and encouraged her to compete. She has represented Garrett College in intercollegiate competition in Pennsylvania, Virginia, and Nantahala, N.C.

DCL Task Force, Consultants To Kick Off Studies

The Garrett County Planning Commission gathered yesterday at the courthouse in Oakland for its regular monthly meeting, with the commission's Charles "Bus" Bender chairing the proceedings.

Among the topics discussed at the meeting was the upcoming work of the Deep Creek Lake Study Task Force and the private consultant Environmental Resource Management. County Planning Office director John Nelson informed the commission that the 10-member DCL Study Task Force will meet for the first time this coming Wednesday, Jan. 14, for an afternoon orientation session.

Representatives of Environmental Resource Management will be in Garrett County to kick off their work on Monday, Jan. 26. That morning the consultants will meet with the Task Force members to draw out identifications of issues and problems regarding the lake's development, and that afternoon the consultants and Task Force members will board vans to tour the lake and gain a further overview of what the study will likely need to entail. During the tour, the participants will observe firsthand the impact of current and future development trends around

Memorial Event Set To Remember Downed B-52

It was January 13, 1964, that a B-52 bomber crashed in Garrett County, resulting in the death of several of its crew members, and the 40th anniversary of that tragedy will be the focus of a special memorial service set for next Tuesday, Jan. 13.

The program will begin at 11 a.m. at the monument that was erected following the incident. It is located at Little Crossings, just east of Grantsville along U.S. Rt. 40. Area Mennonites Collecting Blankets For Victims Of Iranian Earthquake Mennonite churches in the local area are responding to an urgent request from the Mennonite Central Committee concerning the victims of the Dec. 26 earthquake in Bam, Iran.

The Mennonite Central Committee (MCC), which is the relief and development arm of Mennonite and Brethren in Christ churches, is planning to send 50,000 blankets to Iran for the thousands of victims. Currently the MCC is in need of an additional 18,000 blankets to meet that goal, and is also requesting donations of additional relief supplies for reconstruction work in the region.

The quake that leveled this historic city of 80,000 and surrounding areas killed an estimated 30,000 people, and left another 40,000 to 100,000 homeless, according to news reports.

While the Iranian Red Crescent Society (IRCS) has reported there are sufficient relief supplies for the moment, items are needed to renew IRCS supplies and allow the organization to continue to respond in this earthquake-prone area. The IRCS is the leading Iranian disaster response organization and MCC has worked

ROLLIN' ON THE RIVER ALL THE WAY TO AUSTRALIA—Garrett County native Shanna Powell is shown executing a move during a recent freestyle kayak competition. Powell's whitewater skills, which she has been honing for only 2½ years since first taking up the sport, have earned her a trip to Australia this month to represent the United States at the Pre-World Kayak Freestyle Championship. Those interested in helping defray the cost of the venture may make a contribution to the Long Stretch resident. See donation coupon on Page A-14 of today's paper.

Friendsville Man Arrested For DUI After Rt. 42 Crash

A Friendsville man was charged with driving while under the influence by Maryland State Police troopers after he rolled his pickup truck on Friendsville Road last Thursday, Jan. 1.

Richard William Hoover, 35, was ejected from his vehicle when it overturned near Gap Run Road. Police said he was traveling north in a 1999 Ford truck when he allegedly started weaving and crossed into the southbound lane. The truck struck a snow bank, causing it to overturn and eject Hoover from the vehicle.

Hoover, who was charged with negligent driving and DUI, was taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital by the Northern Garrett County Rescue Squad. Southern Rescue Squad and Deep Creek Volunteer Fire Company personnel also responded to the scene.

Storck explained the sport of freestyling in which there are no compulsory moves. "The scoring is similar to gymnastics," he said, "with a very complex point system based on acrobatic moves. Certain moves have assigned point values, and athletes received points for every 180 degree rotation. Most moves are done in a hydraulic hole." Storck spoke of another outstanding freestyler he had coached, Jesse Shimrock of Accident. "Jesse is on a demonstration team now," he said. "He helped to train Shanna. We gave her the start and pushed her to go to Nantahala."

Powell especially loves the sport of freestyling because it is an individual effort and she can train apart from her teammates. Much of the time she trains at Ohiopyle. "I love to be outdoors," she said "even in the snow when the ground sparkles. It's very beautiful."

Rather than have a set routine, she just likes to relax and have fun. She admits to not having as much time as she would like for training because of her schoolwork and her part-time job. The competition in Australia at Penrith Valley, set for Jan. 19-25, will be on a man-made white watercourse similar to the one being planned for the adventure sports complex on Marsh Mountain. When asked how different that will be from the natural rivers on which she has trained, Powell replied, "I don't know what to expect. We'll find out." In that competition each athlete will have two 45 second rounds in which to perform as many moves as possible.

Following the world competition and before her graduation from FSU in May, Powell plans to do an internship in North Carolina, where she will work with at-risk students. She will also teach some specific workshops and do a presentation about her Australia experience at a colloquium for adventure sports students and faculty at the college.

Mike Logsdon, director of Garrett's Adventure Sports program, expressed pride felt by students and staff working with the program. "It is great that we have two outstanding freestyle competitors—Shanna and Jesse. Thanks go to Steve Storck for getting us involved in the sport in its early stages."

Powell's major concern about her upcoming trip is how to pay for the airline fares, transportation, food, and lodging costs. Persons interested in making a contribution to help defray her expenses may use the donation coupon that appears on Page A-14 of this newspaper.

Don't Push It!

Many purchase offers contain what are called "contingency clauses," but just how many contingencies are too many? While an unsatisfied contingency allows the buyer to back out of the offer if certain requirements are not met by the sellers, it can also raise eyebrows when too many demands are included.

Of course, you want to protect yourself when you're buying a home, but you also want your offer to be considered seriously. Buyers who include too many contingency clauses in their Offer To Purchase may find themselves immediately rejected.

As far as title, most purchase offers already specify that the seller must deliver a marketable title. But what about a professional home inspector's report, a termite inspection report, building code compliance, and (in some areas) a radon inspection? Your Offer To Purchase should be contingent upon receiving satisfactory reports in all of these areas. There may even be some other local requirements, so you should definitely do your research before formulating your offer.

As you can see, there are more considerations to making an offer than just price and closing date. You certainly don't want any nasty surprises, but you also want to protect yourself.

A qualified real estate professional can help guide you through the ins and outs of the purchase offer process, guaranteeing that your offer will receive serious consideration. Happy home hunting!

National Primaries Needed...

The first state primary elections are less than a month away, as Iowa and New Hampshire will once again most likely determine for the entire country just who the Democratic presidential candidate will be for the 2004 election. Nine or 10 Democrats are scrambling as fast as they can to make themselves and their platforms known, but the time is extremely short; way shorter than it should be; too short for voters to really get to know them. While each state will have its own Democratic and Republican primaries, the results of most of them won't mean a thing, at least as to the Democratic presidential race.

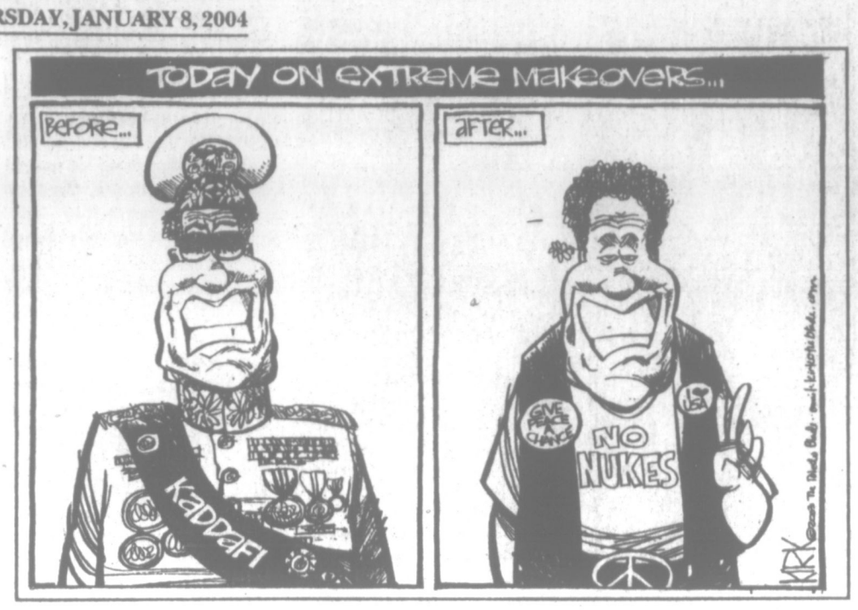
Maryland is among the states with relatively early primaries, as local voters will go to the polls the first week of March. However, in all probability even by then the Democratic presidential candidate die will have been cast.

Pennsylvania governor Ed Rendell announced this week that he is going to introduce legislation in his state to move the Pa. primary date up so voters there will have a better chance at helping determine whom the presidential candidates will be in future years. No doubt many other states will try to do the same thing.

The problem with that, of course, is that the New Hampshire and Iowa legislatures would most likely move their primaries up even more so they can remain in the driver's seat that they currently occupy. Then all of the states' primary elections will be earlier and earlier, ultimately making the whole process more ridiculous than it already is.

We live in a republic in which all citizens theoretically have an equal stake in selecting national leaders. But the reality is that the voters of two or three states determine for the rest of the nation who will represent a particular party in competition for the highest elected post in the land, that of president. Unless one happens to reside in one of these few states, his/her vote in this process is worthless.

The simple solution would be to hold national primary elections on the same day, at least for the selection of presidential candidates, so that each and every U.S. citizen's vote is as valuable as any other. It should be held sometime in mid or late summer, leaving two or three months for the primary winners to make their cases before the November general election.



Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am a former Garrett County (Grantsville) resident now living in Florida. Thanks to your online edition, I am able to keep up on the happenings in Garrett County.

I just read the story on Ida Maust having received the Hospice Award, and I just wanted to say I can't think of a more deserving person. I have known Ida and her family most of my life and can personally attest to the wonderful person she is. I can't begin to mention the times this dear lady has made herself available to my family over the years, from helping out with sick relatives to just being there to talk to when we needed a friend.

Although I was not living in the area, I know Ida was there personally to visit with my grandmother in the last days of her life. To know she cared enough meant the world to me. It's not often that we meet someone who shows a genuine concern for other people in the way that Ida does.

Congratulations, and thanks for being such a generous person, Ida!

Sincerely,
Jamie L. Tasker

We would like to thank each and every person who helped us in any way when we responded to the recent trailer fire on Chestnut Grove Road on Backbone Mountain. The help we received from friends and neighbors on the scene that morning is deeply appreciated. We would also like to thank the mutual-aid fire companies that responded with us and helped in another "job well done."

To the Editor:

I have been a resident of Garrett County my entire life. I've seen a lot of injustices go on in our court system. People in this county are found guilty because of who they are and not because of evidence. There is no fairness in the court system; you are guilty if you don't have a certain last name or enough money. This is not the way our court system is supposed to work. Innocent people go to jail just because our state's attorney wants to make a name for herself. We are supposed to have rights, but in this county that is not true.

Some people can commit crime after crime and never spend time in jail. Others who hardly leave their homes will be charged and convicted for things they don't do. Hearsay in this county with no other proof will be enough to find you guilty. I would like for us as the citizens of Garrett County to put a stop to this.

My brother-in-law, Robert Cook, is now serving time in the Garrett County jail because he was fighting for custody of his children. There were false charges made against him so certain people could get custody of his children. In this county you can lie to get what you want and innocent people will go to jail.

Please help us stop innocent people from having to go to jail because the state's attorney and judges only believe what they want and not the facts.

Thank you,
Cynthia Hale

To the Editor:

Two quick points about the December 18 Republican article, "Fatal crashes disproportionately higher in state's rural counties."

First, the article would have impressed me more if they had been a little more objective in discussing factors which precipitate higher fatal crashes in rural counties. For example, they discussed factors such as windy, narrow, poorly lit roads which often lack safety measures such as guardrails, and slower emergency vehicle response time, which may be caused by the longer time to discover there has been, say, a single-vehicle accident.

However, there was never any mention of factors which could cause a higher fatality rate just due to rural living, such as accidents with deer. Every year there are thousands of crashes in rural areas with deer all across the country, and surely there are fatal accidents which result from this convergence with wildlife.

Second, I say kudos to the drivers in Garrett County, because I read a statistic in the Hagerstown Daily Mail, which was not in The Republican. The Daily Mail had a complete graphic for every county in Maryland, and Garrett County, with .55% of the population of Maryland, only had .5% of the fatal accidents in Maryland.

In short, while Allegany and Washington counties both had fatal accidents exceeding their percentage of state population, Garrett County came in against the grain and contrary to the stereotype of what occurs in rural counties. (Allegany County, with 1.36% of the population, had 1.5% of the fatal accidents; Washington County, with 2.46% of the population, had 3.49% of the fatal accidents.)

Accordingly, kudos go to all Garrett County drivers for their careful observance of road conditions, thus reducing the fatal accidents for everyone driving their roads.

Sincerely yours,

To the Editor:

Though I more often than not find myself in agreement with your editorials, I just gotta say last week's editorial left me just shy of underwhelmed.

Yes, the killing of Americans here and abroad is a most unfortunate and sad thing. We all grieve for their losses. However, to compare our incursions into Afghanistan and Iraq begs the apple and orange comparison. I fully agreed with our reasons and methods in Afghanistan. Al-Qaida is our enemy. Osama bin Laden is their mastermind and must be brought to justice. We should have finished our job there.

Now we're in a war brought to the American people with lies and deception. Where are the W.M.D.s? That was our lead line in the march to war. Nine months later we have no weapons, hundreds of American men and women dead or wounded and billions of dollars spent. The prospect of more lives lost and billions more dollars spent looms in the future. Could not we have spent this money organizing an effective world-wide assault on terrorism? Does the fact that we went to "code orange" just days after the capture of Saddam somehow mean we're safer? The terrorists have forced our country to cringe in fear, alter our rights and spend excessive money to be HALF prepared for a possible attack.

Yes, time will tell. Once again the American people's interests were sold out to big corporations at the hands of this administration. It's time we wake up and smell the greed disguised as the patriotic thing to do. This administration moves under the cover of fear and national security so we won't see how they continue to abort our freedoms and consolidate their power and money. I predict that the privatization of Iraq by large corporations backed by this administration will turn the people of Iraq against this whole "plan." It's a money and resources grab. Already Halliburton has overcharged the U.S. $62,000,000 for fuel, yet they continue, business as usual.

I hope your predictions pan out...except for one. For the sake of the American people, we must show Bush the door in 2004.

To the Editor:

Saturday, January 10, 2004, will be the first anniversary of the death of Wayne Gillespie. After a year some of us have gotten over the shock and pain of losing him, and he will continue to live in our hearts. After his death I set up a memorial fund in his memory so we could donate money to causes he championed. In June 2003 we awarded the first scholarship from the Wayne G. Gillespie Memorial Fund. Stephanie Niner, then a senior at Southern High School, was awarded a $1,000 scholarship to attend Garrett College. Another $500 is earmarked for chairs to the Liberty Club in Oakland.

Every year we will award at least one scholarship in Wayne's name to encourage education – something Wayne was passionate about. Wayne himself was an over-achiever. He came from modest means, but never considered himself poor, because he knew he could better himself with education. He was valedictorian, Eagle Scout, and the first person in his county to attend the prestigious military academy at West Point. After graduating he was stationed in Germany and had two tours of Vietnam. He returned to teach at West Point for a few years (at the same time that Bill Parcels – currently head coach of Dallas – was coaching there). He returned to Europe and worked under General Haig on NATO. His expertise led the German government to award him a medal of honor (the highest award they give to foreigners).

In 1979 he transferred reluctantly to the Pentagon. I had recently moved to the Washington area from London, and this is where I got to know and love him. In 1993 we decided to retire from the city, and serendipity brought us to Garrett County. We bought Haley Farm B&B, and taught part-time at Garrett College. Wayne loved teaching and continued as a substitute teacher at Southern High School – a school our daughter Haley also attended. We also did a local TV show called "Garrett County Forum," a show I may resurrect in the near future.

Wayne loved books, magazines, and the idea of continuous learning. He really believed that education was the great equalizer and that is why the scholarships given out in his name are an apt tribute to his memory. Every year at least one senior at Southern Garrett High School will be awarded a $1,000 scholarship to attend Garrett College. We hope that Wayne is looking down on us with a twinkle in his eye and approves.

To the Editor:

Today I write with both kudos and criticism for two recent editorials. Your Christmas week editorial was full of enlightened words of brotherhood and caring and for that I am grateful. You are wise to point out that in the case of religion it is the message, not the history, that is important. In your New Year's editorial, however, it seems to me that you take a naïve approach that misses the importance of both history and message to governing.

Your conclusion that, as of now the invasion of Iraq looks pretty good, is followed by a rather simplistic approach to history. I think you miss the importance of reasoned military response and careful diplomatic maneuvering that was the basis of our government reactions to attacks against our interests around the world by past administrations. The military response of Desert Storm was not connected to terrorism, of course. The response to 9/11 was also a reasoned response. Unfortunately, the current administration has moved beyond reason with the pre-emptive strike on Iraq. That is the true issue as to whether the president did the right thing. It does not help to use short form, light-weight history to try to make the case for bullying the rest of the world. That is the bill of goods the Bush administration is trying to sell us, and I'm not buying it from them or from others. It does not help the United States or the rest of the world for us to get so angry and insulted by terrorism coming to our shores that we strike out without good cause and sound thinking.

If you think that the rest of the world is feeling bullied by Bush's words or swagger then you are missing the depth of their concern and the depth of the damage his policies have done. Who cares if he has a simple grin and walks with a swagger – or if he is fat, tall, green or ugly. What matters is that he is a lightweight when it comes to thinking and history – he has said so himself.

What is truly important are the actions of President Bush which look and feel to many like that of a bully. His actions show that he is not interested in diplomacy, he is not concerned enough about the dangers and deaths of war, he is not opposed to greed, he has no respect for man's role of stewardship for the earth. President Bush is not showing leadership in the area of nuclear power, as we still use weapons containing spent uranium and still plan and build newer gadgetry of destruction. The president has wasted his position of power. There is arrogance in power that flaunts. We could use our power with humility and gratitude for the good and plenty we have. We could use patience, caring, sharing – reaching out with messages asking for help to understand and to be understood. Then maybe the rest of the world wouldn't feel threatened by us and terrorized by poverty, disease, pollution, powerlessness, unrest, and fear. To wage war, as a way of governing, brings fear to our shores. Fear can come from distortion of past and present facts. Fear, by promoting division and unrest, can have purpose and power – what will follow?

I think your Christmas editorial had great promise. Humans can give up sin anytime they want. They can choose to follow the path of compassion and tolerance. Love God and love your neighbor as yourself is a simplistic message. Lasting happiness, contentment and peace come from that message. War does not bring peace. There is no compassion or tolerance in war.

To the Editor:

It is certainly nice to put on one's rose-colored glasses for the beginning of a new year; however, one has to be careful not to become addicted to them. Your view from the beginning of 2004 was interesting, but if I may point out a few things...

To begin, you base your assessment of whether the invasion of Iraq was the right thing on "most signs right now." That kind of ethical thinking gives cover to any number of wrong things. It was this very logic that led Donald Rumsfeld to shake Saddam Hussein's hand. It's dangerous ground, and cries out for the question, At what point do the ends stop justifying the means?

What about those allegedly triumphant ends? It is a gross over-statement to characterize our nation's and the world's new-found safety as "without question." As far as the world goes, people who lost loved ones to recent al-Qaida bombings in Saudi Arabia and Turkey (for example) probably have plenty of questions about that assertion. Even in our nation we are, according to the government, in the midst of the highest level of danger since 9/11/01. It is even possible an attack was averted by the cancellation of flights from France; if so, it will have been intelligence (which has nothing to do with the invasion of Iraq, since al-Qaida had no presence in that country before we invaded) and international law enforcement cooperation that saved lives.

You have a tendency to lump together two different wars in which we are involved. As far as necessity and legality go – and all wars should be both necessary and legal – the invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq have little to nothing in common. It is likely that had we poured resources into Afghanistan instead of Iraq, Osama bin Laden may have been captured and the Afghanis would be further on their way to peace and democracy. As it is, the disruption of al-Qaida is far from "total," and the Taliban is regrouping. A good argument can be made that we were safer for the invasion of Afghanistan, but one better can be made that we are now less safe since we took our focus from al-Qaida to turn it on Saddam Hussein, who was not – even before he crept down a spider hole – an imminent threat to our or any of our invading allies' security.

I didn't know that rose-colored glasses had the power to change history, but you write that Desert Storm was a response to attacks by Muslim terrorist extremists. On the contrary it was a UN-supported response to a request for help from a nation that had been invaded by a secular Muslim leader whom we had consistently supported regardless of his brutality to his people because of his war with one of his neighbors which had supported terrorism against us. You list many acts of terrorism that were committed by Muslim extremists, but they were not all linked either through infrastructure or agenda. Several of those attacks did compose something that could be described as a "systematic, ongoing massacre of Americans," and the invasion of Afghanistan was a response to that. The invasion of Iraq, however, cannot be described cogently as a reaction to any pattern of terrorism or even any isolated incident against Americans.

Some history you are ignoring includes the fact that Qaddafi has for years been making moves to end Libya's alienation from the West (hard to say how much those "lame" trade embargoes played a role), and Iran has been reforming in fits and starts for even longer. All that verbiage you so disdain is what started Kim Jong Il dismantling his nuclear program in the '90s. It was the lead-up to our invasion of Iraq that prompted its restart. As to Kim's disappearing act, that is very strange criteria on which to base the measure of a hostile nation's threat to us. No matter how interesting you find the timing of recent events, it requires specious reasoning to maintain that the Bush doctrine of "I shot that man, Your Honor, because he looked like he was thinking about getting a gun" (to quote Eric Alterman) caused the positive developments in Libya and Iran. It's wishful thinking to conclude that Saddam Hussein has any beans to spill on hidden WMDs.

Finally, you characterize the prospects for democracy in Iraq as "good," but are they? What will America do if that democracy freely and fairly elects a Shi'ite government that wants to create a theocracy like Iran's? What undemocratic means will justify the ends of keeping that region stable? Is America's vision of democracy for the Middle East in the mold of the Latin American Banana Republics? Will Iraq become a new Date Republic: corrupt, brutal, but always bowing to our will? Is that democracy?

My prediction for 2004 is that many people will continue to wear their rose-colored glasses, and the rest of us will continue to ask questions.

Sincerely,
Emily Morgan

Flu Update

tracted with the companies for FluMist. The Health Department's cost for the vaccine will now be cheaper, Cvetnick noted.

"We have 150 doses," Glotfelty said. "We can probably get more if needed." He added that the state would not charge the department for any unused vaccines.

All jurisdictions in Maryland have ordered FluMist from the state, but the public's response to it has been "slugglish," said Cvetnick.

The commissioners and health officials noted that many people have misconceptions about taking live vaccines. "In my experience," said Commissioner Ernie Gregg, who is a pharmacist, "people are a little tentative about them."

"This is not an experimental vaccine," stressed Glotfelty. "It has been approved by the FDA and has gone through trials."

"It's very easy to give, and people tolerate it very well," added Mankamyer. "I think if the flu becomes a bigger problem in our county, there will be more demand for it (FluMist)."

Residents on the waiting list have been called about the availability of the vaccine. But the majority of them have said give it someone who may need it more than they, noted Glotfelty.

FluMist is available for healthy individuals ages 5 to 49 with no chronic medical conditions, such as asthma, lung disease, heart disease, diabetes or weakened immune systems. For more information, persons may call the Health Department.

Cvetnick said up to 100 doses of inactivated vaccine may also be available later from the Health Department for persons ages 3 to 65. A "pocket" of individuals ages 50 to 65 who have not had an opportunity to receive the vaccine before will have be given priority, he said.

Glotfelty commended his staff, which included Heather Winegardner of the communicable disease program, for their hard work in getting residents inoculated and dealing with the vaccine shortage. The health officer noted that a few residents have actually threatened the staff and demanded vaccines.

Information about flu prevention and vaccine availability is accessible on the Health Department's web site at garretthealth.org. Additional information is also available at cdc.gov/flu/protect/sick.htm. Information about FluMist is also available at flumist.com

Rt. 219 Closed After Tractor-Trailer Overturns

A section of U.S. Route 219 just south of George Washington Highway was closed for 2½ hours Tuesday morning after a tractor-trailer hauling wood chips overturned, according to the Garrett County Sheriff's Office.

According to the driver, Brian Scott Romans, 29, Beverly, W.Va., a gust of wind with snow caused a white-out condition, resulting in the tractor-trailer veering off the side of the road and off a small embankment. The truck then slid sideways and struck a telephone pole before overturning on the roadway.

No injuries were reported. Southern Garrett Rescue Squad, firefighters from Oakland, Gorman, and Mt. Grove, Allegheny Power, and Maryland State Highway Administration responded to the scene of the 11:03 a.m. incident.

2004 Relay For Life Kickoff Set At Garrett Coll.

"Relay Rock and Roll, the kickoff event for the 2004 Garrett County Relay for Life, is slated for 6:30 to 8 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 20, in Room 305 of the Continuing Education and Training Building of Garrett College. Members of new and returning teams are encouraged to attend the event, during which a short business meeting will take place.

The event will resemble a 1950s and '60s rock and roll motif with refreshments, games, music of the era, balloons, and some "surprises," according to a relay spokesperson. Participants are encouraged to dress in clothing of the day such as poodle skirts, bobby socks, saddle oxfords, and leather jackets.

The snow date is Tuesday, Jan. 27, at the same time and same location. For further information, persons may contact event chairperson Deana Clester at 301-533-4295, or event co-chairpersons Rick and Donna Broadwater at 301-387-9868.

CAREGIVERS SUPPORT GROUP "EATS UP" ACTIVITY – Persons on hand for the November meeting of the Family Caregivers Support Group were pleasantly surprised when the activity became the refreshment. Betty Hudnall, activities director at Cuppett-Weeks Nursing Home, is shown at center as she leads the meeting's workshop that featured activities caregivers can use to involve older individuals, particularly those persons with Alzheimer's disease, in purposeful and enjoyable experiences. One of the results at the meeting was "tin can" ice cream, produced by movement of the ingredients placed in one can, surrounded by ice and rock salt, and placed within another can. Typically a favorite among all ages, this ice cream was considered a "rolling success." The next Family Caregivers Support Group meeting is slated for Monday, Jan. 26, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Garrett County Health Department, where Garrett County mental health therapist Michael Dennis, LCSW-C, will be the featured speaker. For further information, persons may contact Donna Fost of the Health Department at 301-334-7740 or 301-895-3113.

Chamber Making List Of Wedding Service Providers

To help member businesses better coordinate, package, and market their products, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce will publish a listing of providers of wedding-related services, which will be available by early spring, according to Laura Reilly, chamber staff member.

"We have sent questionnaires to current chamber members to see who would be interested in participating in this project. The response has been good, so we feel this is a very worthwhile service for our members," Reilly said.

Many people call the chamber offices requesting information about such things as banquet halls, caterers, and musicians for weddings, Reilly explained. "The staff recognized the need for a one-stop reference to link people with these businesses," she said.

A provider of any of the following services or products could potentially be on the chamber's new 'list': ceremony location, reception location, catering, transportation, flowers/decorations, photography, cakes, printing, music, tuxedo rental, gift registry, and hair/nail care.

"There are probably many more businesses that will be included. We will also list ministers and others qualified to perform marriages, plus all the necessary licensing information. We hope many of our local business owners will take advantage of this opportunity," Reilly concluded.

For further information on the wedding service listing or chamber membership, persons may contact Reilly by telephone at: 301-387-4386; or e-mail laura@garrettchamber.com.

with it since 1990, a spokesperson reported.

"They have a real need at the moment for restocking their supplies," said Ed Martin, director of MCC Central and South Asia program. "During the past 13 years MCC has assisted the IRCS in maintaining its disaster preparedness program by providing relief supplies and funding."

Those wishing to donate blankets are asked to provide new winter-weight, twin blankets and include a donation of approximately $20 for shipping and ongoing relief and rehabilitation efforts. The 50,000 blankets already in MCC stock will be shipped within the next 10 days, the spokesperson said.

To make a donation of blankets or a monetary donation, persons should call Harriet Berg at 1-814-445-6945 or e-mail her at aheberg2@aol.com. Berg is a resident of Hidden Valley, Pa., and is a volunteer for the annual TriState Relief Sale.

"This event underscores the importance of having blankets in stock," said Kevin King, MCC material resources manager. "Blankets collected above the number needed for Iran will restock MCC's supply."

The blankets are the first step in MCC's response to the earthquake, which will include intermediate and long-term efforts. In coming weeks, MCC will provide funds for other relief items, including milk powder. MCC staff will be working with IRCS on reconstruction priorities, likely in the area of health or education.

MCC began work in Iran following the June 1990 earthquake which killed more than 30,000 people in the areas of Gilan and Zanjan. At the time, MCC assisted in reconstructing village health clinics and replenishing IRCS emergency preparedness warehouses.

Local volunteers involved with the TriState Relief Sale (which will be held this year on July 23 and 24 at the Garrett County Fairgrounds) have announced that all funds raised at this benefit event will be sent to MCC for continued response to humanitarian needs around the world.

"This is winter time in Iran, so warm blankets are much in demand," Berg said.

To learn more about this appeal and the situation in Iran, persons may visit www.mcc.org/iran.

Nature Connection

by Liz McDowell and Ron Boyer

Christmas has gone for another year and with it the bright red and green decorations that graced many homes. The snow is gone for now as well, due to recent rains and warm temperatures. Many cross-country skiers are spending their free time indoors, lamenting the lack of snow necessary for their favorite sport. But those same trails that provide for your cross-country enjoyment can still be a joy to hike. Thanks to the melting snow, previously hidden treasures have been uncovered. In fact, if you look carefully you may even find the reds and greens of Christmas once more. Scan the floor of a pine forest or a steep bank along a woods road, and you'll likely discover the brilliant red berries and deep green foliage of the partridgeberry, Mitchella repens.

Partridgeberry or twinberry is an evergreen ground cover found in deciduous and evergreen forests with moist to dry soil. Overlooked at other times of the year, its bright colors will grab your attention in the dull winter landscape. The light green stripe down the middle of the shining, dark green, rounded leaves makes it easy to identify when the flowers or berries are not present. The delicate white flowers, often tinged with pink, are joined at the base. Each set of paired flowers forms a single, red berry showing scars from the calyx lobes of the twin flowers that created it. The berries ripen in the fall and may remain on the plant until it flowers again in June or July.

Partridgeberry is also known by the politically incorrect name of squaw-vine thanks to its widespread use in treating female disorders. The leaves and berries of the plant are still prized by herbalists who use them to treat menstrual pain, prevent miscarriage, and soothe the sore nipples of nursing mothers. The attractive berries are fairly dry and not very tasty by human standards; however, they do provide food for wildlife. The berries are reported to comprise up to 2 percent of the diet of ruffed grouse, wild turkey, red fox, eastern skunk, and white-footed mouse.

Partridgeberry is native to eastern North America. Surprisingly, its closest relative (the only other member of the genus Mitchella) is found in northeast Asia. This provides an excellent example of what ecologists refer to as a disjunct distribution. In his book Hollows, Peepers, and Highlanders, George Constanz states that more than 50 genera of Appalachian plants are geographically separated from related species in eastern Asia. According to Constanz, most ecologists believe that these isolated Appalachian and Asian species are the survivors of what was once a circumpolar plant community. They survived presumably due to limited glaciation in these areas during the Ice Age.

So when you can't cross-country ski, it's still rewarding to get outside. Take a hike in winter to discover plants such as partridgeberry that often go unnoticed the rest of the year. For more information on the native plants of the Allegheny Plateau, visit the web site of the Maryland Native Plant Society at www.mdflora.org, or the Pennsylvania Native Plant Society at www.pawildflowers.org.

Reports from the Field

Jim Egenrieder of Swanton reports increasing evidence of coyotes (scat) this year around his home.

Dave, Lisa, Laurel, and Sarah Baker of the Deep Creek Lake area observed a bobcat cross Rock Lodge Road early one morning before Christmas. Because the curious feline paused on the roadside to watch them, they were able to get a good look at it.

If you'd like to share your Garrett County nature sightings, or if you have questions about the plants and animals you've observed, e-mail Liz McDowell and Ron Boyer at info@elkridgenatureworks.com.

Ask The Everyday Scientist

BATTERY LIFE

Q. I got two radio-controlled cars for Christmas, a big one and a small one. The big one is still going fine, but the small one has already run down one set of batteries. What gives?

A. What you're seeing is differences in battery life. That depends more on the quality and type of the electric motor that turns the wheels than on the actual size of the car.

Usually the 9-volt battery that runs the electronics (the radio signal) lasts for much longer, because radio circuits draw very little power. So I'll presume you're talking about the D-cell or C-cell batteries that power the motor driving the car. If both cars contain the same number of D-cell batteries, then at least you're comparing apples-to-apples.

C- or D-cell batteries all have a voltage of 1.5 volts, but they must deliver current in order to make an electric motor rotate. Inside a battery is a certain amount of stored charge, and the rate at which that charge leaves the battery is called the current. The bigger the battery, the more charge is stored, and the longer a certain amount of current can be drawn before the battery has run down.

How much current is required to turn the wheels depends on the quality of the electric motor: a good motor has high efficiency. In an electric motor, flowing current causes the shaft to rotate. A system of gears converts that shaft rotation into turning wheels. The efficiency of any motor is always less than 100%, because of friction, including a form of electrical "friction" called resistance. There are some huge industrial motors (as big as a truck) that have 98% efficiency, but most motors are much less efficient. The electric motor driving a home-furnace fan might be 80% efficient; a kitchen mixer around 40%; the very small motor in a toy might be only 20% efficient. As a general rule-of-thumb, the cheaper the motor, the lower the efficiency.

Since a toy car is mostly plastic, the electric motor in it may be the most expensive single component. A toy manufacturer can hold down the selling price by using a cheap motor. The purchaser of the toy saves money at first, but pays more later when buying additional batteries.

Since a bigger toy weighs more, you might think it would use more current and run down the batteries faster. That's not necessarily so. All a toy car has to do is roll along, and weight is not the most important factor – electrical efficiency determines how fast charge is lost from the batteries.

Alkaline batteries can deliver more current than ordinary batteries, but that doesn't mean their lifetime will be longer. If a toy requires alkaline batteries, that means it requires more current. Is that because its motor has lower efficiency, or because it does more things? That depends on the individual toy.

New Sales Staff Join Dealership

Team One GM (General Motors) Auto Mall president Greg Shockey recently announced the addition of three new salespeople to the staff of the Oakland car dealership.

Hugh "Butch" Mayfield is an automobile and truck sales representative for Team One's five dealerships: Chevrolet, Oldsmobile, Buick, GMC, and Jeep. "The addition of Butch to our sales team provides an excellent resource for our West Virginia neighbors' car and truck needs," said Shockey.

Mayfield lives on a farm in Whetsell Settlement, where he has resided for the past 37 years. Before accepting his new position, he spent 17 years in management and sales for Mayfield Chevrolet-Oldsmobile in Frostburg.

Kingwood resident Jeff Groves, a Preston County native, is the new sales manager. Groves has over 12 years' experience in transportation, dealership sales, and management. He has been employed most recently at Graham Chevrolet in Kingwood as sales manager.

Shockey stated, "Jeff's background in sales and management will provide the experience and knowledge necessary for our dealerships."

Christa D.S. Lytle has joined the dealership's automotive and truck sales staff. A lifelong resident of Garrett County, Lytle is a graduate of Westmar High School and the Center for Career and Technical Education. Although new to the sales department, she has been employed by Team One as a receptionist for the past four years. "Christa's interest and enthusiasm along with her knowledge make her a valuable addition to our sales staff," stated Shockey.

Christa is married to Dean Lytle, and the couple reside near Friendsville.

Caution Use of Certain Drugs During Breast-feeding

The popularity of breast-feeding has increased in recent years because of the protective effect of breast milk to the child and increased bonding between the baby and the mother. However, it is important to exercise caution when taking certain medications during breast feeding. A drug considered safe during pregnancy possibly could be harmful to the child during breast-feeding.

Acetaminophen instead of aspirin is generally preferable for aches or pains. Most but not all blood pressure and heart medicines are considered safe while breast-feeding. Mothers with diabetes can safely use insulin, but pioglitazone, rosiglitazone, and metformin should be avoided until more safety studies on these diabetes drugs have been conducted. Certain seizure drugs may require blood tests to make sure development of the child is not being affected by these drugs. Most antidepressants are considered to be safe for use by breast-feeding mothers. Medicines that should be avoided during this time include cancer medicines, illicit drugs such as cocaine or marijuana, radioactive dyes used for diagnostic testing, or any drug taken without a health professional's knowledge.

THE MENTAL HEALTH CENTER
... is pleased to announce the offering of Adult LifeSkills–A Psychiatric Rehabilitation Service in Garrett County.
What are Psychiatric Rehabilitation Services? These services are designed to teach or restore skills necessary for recovery from mental illness and are provided by a trained and caring staff. Episodes of mental illness may delay or interrupt a person's capacity to manage one's daily responsibilities or pursue dreams, hindering one's ability to work, to learn or to get along with others. Rehabilitation service assists in expediting and sustaining recovery.
What is the Adult LifeSkills program? Adult Lifeskills offers both group activities and individual one-to-one sessions. Care managers assist participants in developing their rehabilitation plan, which is designed to address the participant's needs and desires. Regular reviews and modifications to the plan occur as progress is made. Services are designed to or wherever the person's needs are best addressed: at home, in the community, on the job or at our center.

Classes In Medical Transcription Slated At Outreach Center

Applications for upcoming medical transcription classes are currently being accepted by Garrett College's Continuing Education and Training Division. The program will run from Feb. 23 through June 25 at the Grantsville Outreach Center. The classes will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and on one Saturday per month from 7 a.m. to 1 pm.

Admission requirements for the class include having a college-level proficiency in English and the ability to accurately type at least 45 words per minute. Financial assistance may be available to qualified students who wish to take the course.

According to a spokesperson for the college, the medical transcription curriculum provides the opportunity for individuals to learn to interpret and transcribe dictation by physicians and other healthcare professionals in order to document patient care and facilitate the delivery of health care services.

Transcription professions must be familiar with medical terminology, the anatomy of the human body, disease processes, professionalism, and medical/legal issues, noted the spokesperson.

"This program of study trains students for entry-level positions and allows for the possibility to prepare for certification examinations," she said.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, employment in this career is more in demand than ever before. Opportunities for employment include physicians' offices, hospitals, other health care facilities, and at-home employment. The issue of properly managing and protecting patient health information has steadily increased the demand for transcription professionals, noted the spokesperson.

To learn more about the medical transcription training program, persons may contact Terry Beachy, coordinator of the Garrett College Grantsville Outreach Center, by phone at 301-895-3368, or via e-mail at tbeachy@garrettcollege.edu.

"I would [also] like to thank all the parents who helped their children raise money and everyone who supported the after-school program and area children."

The Arts

Comedy And Pet Theatre To Be Staged At FSU

Frostburg State University's Cultural Events Series and the Cumberland Holiday Inn will present two performances of "Gregory Popovich's Comedy & Pet Theatre." The first performance will be held Thursday, Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m. at Fort Hill High School auditorium in Cumberland and will benefit the capital campaign of the Allegany County Animal Shelter Management Foundation's goal to build a new animal shelter. The second performance will be held Friday, Feb. 6, at 8 p.m. in the Pealer Recital Hall of FSU's Performing Arts Center.

Sunset Magazine commented it was "reigning cats and dogs," after the 1999 Las Vegas debut of "Comedy & Pet Theatre" at Circus Circus. Gregory Popovich, a former member of the Moscow Circus and Ringling Brothers Barnum & Bailey, adopted his feline and canine cast entirely from animal shelters. Featured on "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno" and "The Late Show with David Letterman," "Comedy & Pet Theatre" is half animal tricks, and half juggling, acrobatics, and "just plain clowning around."

"I don't train the animals, really," says Popovich, an advocate of adopting pets from animal shelters. "I analyze them. And they trust me, and we play, and then they find a trick or two that they like to do. That's what they do on stage."

People Weekly exclaims, "With a band of troupers saved from the pound, Gregory Popovich's Vegas act is pure theatrical catnip."

This show is presented in partnership with FSU's University Programming Council.

To purchase tickets or to find out more information, persons may call the FSU Cultural Events Box Office at 301-687-3137 or toll free at 1-866-TIXX-CES, or visit online at ces.frostburg.edu.

Additional packages include the Arts Getaway Packages, providing accommodations for two (at the Best Western Braddock in LaVale, Cumberland Holiday Inn, or Rocky Gap Resort), selected meal options, transportation between the hotel and the FSU campus, a special welcome gift at check-in, and two tickets for preferred seating for the Cultural Events Series performance.

One can also add a Dinner Show Package to a ticket purchase, which provides complimentary transportation to and from the FSU campus to any one of five participating restaurants – BJ's at the Gladstone, Gehauf's, Giuseppe's Italian Restaurant, and Harrigan's Restaurant.

PAWS Hosting Drawing Contest For Youngsters

PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety) is sponsoring an "I Found A Friend At The Animal Shelter" Drawing Contest to give away tickets for the performance of Gregory Popovich's Comedy and Pet Theatre. The show is to be held at the Fort Hill High School auditorium on Thursday, Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m. (See separate story)

The contest is part of the educational outreach programming which the Frostburg State University Cultural Events Series coordinators, the sponsors of the Popovich performances, are arranging with local animal welfare organizations and shelters to raise awareness of local animal issues. One such issue is the need for good homes for the many highly adoptable animals abandoned to shelters on a daily basis.

Gregory Popovich and his Comedy and Pet Theatre are a popular attraction in Branson, Mo., during the summer tourist season. During the off-season, Popovich, a world renowned juggler and circus performer, takes his act on the road as an ambassador of shelter adoption. All of the animals featured in his program are shelter rescues.

Annette Robinson of PAWS explained that the drawing contest is being used to help Popovich promote pet adoptions from local animal shelters by asking children in grades 1 through 5 to draw pictures of good things that happen when people adopt shelter pets.

The contest rules are as follows: Drawings must be black on white, and done on 8.5x11-inch plain white paper. Drawings can be done in black crayon, marker, and/or paint. All entries must be postmarked by Jan. 14 and mailed to PAWS, P.O. Box 745, McHenry, MD 21541. Entries should not be folded.

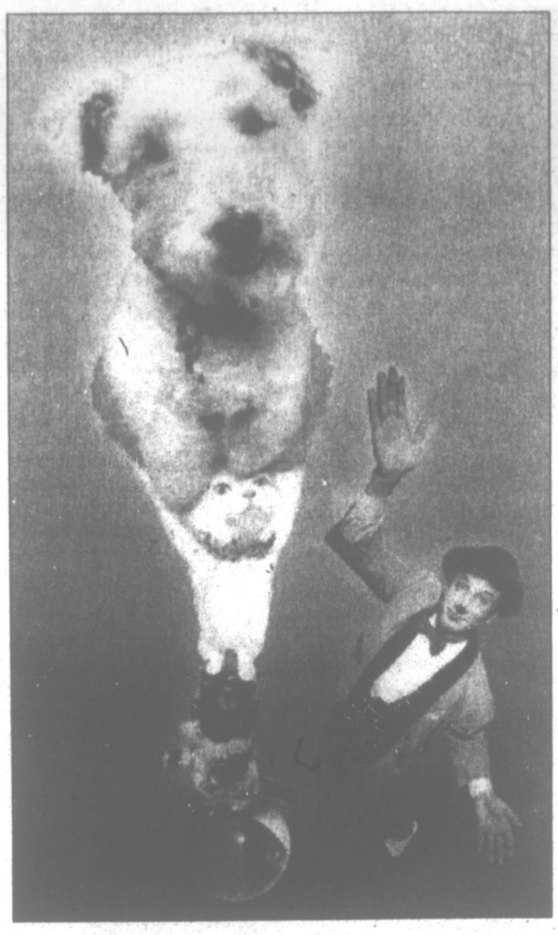
In addition to ribbons awarded for first, second, and third places, as well as honorable mention, each of the four winners will receive two free tickets to Gregory Popovich's Comedy and Pet Theatre.

The first place winner will also receive a free "Have A Heart...Adopt!" T-shirt from PAWS.

"Paws members plan to make posters of the winning drawings to help spread the word that amazing pets and great companions are waiting to be adopted from animal shelters daily," said Robinson.

"Each year shelters take in an estimated 10 million unwanted animals. Of these, nearly one-third are purebreds. Whether purebred or not, most are highly adoptable, yet only about half of all these animals, primarily dogs and cats, are ever adopted out," Robinson said. "The rest must be destroyed because no homes can be found for them. The only hope for these animals are aggressive and responsible adoption programs. Such programs, coupled with high volume spay/neuter programs to prevent further unwanted animal births, can eventually put an end to the need for euthanizing animals at shelters."

Persons with questions about the PAWS Drawing Contest may contact PAWS volunteers at 301-387-6282 or 301-895-3711.



PAWS SETS CONTEST FOR SHOW TICKETS – PAWS (Partners for Animal Welfare and Safety) is sponsoring an "I Found A Friend At The Animal Shelter" Drawing Contest to give away tickets for the performance of Gregory Popovich's Comedy and Pet Theatre. Popovich is an advocate for animal adoption, and he uses only shelter rescues in his performances. The show, part of the Frostburg State University Cultural Events Series, will take place at the Fort Hill High School auditorium on Thursday, Feb. 5, at 7:30 p.m. See story for drawing contest details.

Their harmony singing punctuates an expansive repertoire that includes bluegrass, folk, traditional country, original songs, and children's music.

Our Town Theatre has scheduled a Teen Coffee House for the evening of Jan. 17 from 8 until 11 p.m.

The evening will feature music, games, and dramatic activities. Refreshments will be sold. There will be a $2 cover charge.

"Teens are encouraged to bring their imaginations and their favorite CDs," said a theatre spokesperson.

Young People Reminded Of OTT Dramatics Classes

Reservations for Our Town Theatre's creative dramatics workshops, designed for elementary and middle school children scheduled for Jan. 17, may be made starting Jan. 11. Persons may make the reservations by calling the theatre at 301-334-5640.

The workshops consist of "Kidstuff" for children in grades K-5 (10:30 a.m. until noon) and "Coolstuff" for kids in grades 6-8 (1-2:30 p.m.).

OTT Announces Cast Lists For Two Productions

Our Town Theatre is currently in rehearsal for two different plays: Valley Song, scheduled for January, and Romance in D for February. The casts for both plays have been chosen.

According to Jane Avery, the director of both productions, Valley Song, which is scheduled for Jan. 22, 23, and 24, is a South African play by Athol Fugard.

"Valley Song is so universal in its content that it could take place in any rural area, including Garrett County," Avery said. "The story told is simple, poetic and resonant. Through it we are reminded what it means to own and be owned by the land, and that one's possibilities are limited only by the outer limits of one's dreams. This is a wonderful, life-affirming play."

The cast consists of Chelsea Davis, who plays Veronica, a young girl, and Richard Hill, who portrays the girl's grandfather and wealthy landowner.

Reservations to see the play are available starting today and can be obtained by calling 301-334-5640.

The second production, Romance in D, written by James Sherman, is scheduled for production in the second and third weeks of February. It will include a dinner theatre option for some performances.

Avery said the story involves two side-by-side apartments rented by Charles and Isabel, middle-aged loners whose single parents are overwhelming forces in their lives. Charles lives alone with his music and books. Isabel, a poet newly separated from her husband, moves in next door. When Isabel's father arrives for a visit, Avery said, he meets Charles's mother and their friendship "quickly turns into a romance." This leaves the door open for the younger couple to make their own romantic connections.

"All in all, the play is a comic illustration of love's ability to blossom under unlikely circumstances," Avery said.

The young couple will be played by Matt Eary and Sue Lisantti, and their parents will be portrayed by Bruce Steele and Judy Bertsch.

Reservations for Romance in D will be available starting Jan. 25.

Both of these productions are sponsored in part by the Garrett County Arts Council and the Maryland State Arts Council. Valley Song is produced by special permission from Samuel French Incorporated and Romance in D from Dramatist's Play Service Incorporated.

LOCAL AUTHOR EXPLAINS WRITING PROCESS WITH STUDENTS – Local author Amanda Grose recently met with kindergarten, pre-kindergarten, and Head Start children at Dennett Road Elementary School, explaining how she wrote and illustrated her book Drip Drops. The event was sponsored by the Overlook Judy Center. Grose told the students that authors often use subjects and themes that are familiar to them. She also noted that she enjoys using rhyming words. The author and her assistant Benjamin entertained the children with a puppet show, which taught them about responsibilities. All the classrooms and parents in attendance received an autographed copy of Grose's book, and the children received a copy of a book by Bruce Larkin. The Overlook Judy Center will hold its next assembly on Jan. 16, which will introduce the children to different cultures. Guest speakers will share information about customs, dress, food, and music. The children will also have an opportunity to sample multicultural foods as an afternoon snack. The center is operated by the Garrett County Community Action Committee in cooperation with the Garrett County Board of Education.

Teen Book Club To Discuss Value Of "Special Gifts"

The Ruth Enlow Library Teen Book Club has slated a January discussion of a work that melds factual psychology and the workings of the brain in a novel that tells the story of a 13-year-old girl living with a rare but real sensory condition. Participants will examine A Mango-Shaped Space by Wendy Mass during a session set for 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 24, at the Oakland library, and all students 12 and older are encouraged to attend.

"Thirteen-year-old Mia Winchell has a secret: sounds, numbers, and words appear to her in color," reads the publisher's description. "Mia has synesthesia, the mingling of perceptions whereby a person sees sounds or tastes shapes. This coming of age novel chronicles Mia's developing appreciation for her gift."

Published in April 2003, A Mango-Shaped Space has earned a 5-star review from each of the 11 readers who have submitted a review to Amazon.com. The book was nominated for inclusion in the list of the American Library Association's 2004 Best Books for Young Adults.

"This contemporary novel does for synesthesia what Terry Hesser's Kissing Doorknobs (1998) does for obsessive-compulsive disorder: the lively personal story demystifies a fascinating condition," states a Booklist review. "For 13-year-old Mia Winchell, the world has always been filled with a wonderful, if sometimes dizzying, sensory onslaught—numbers, letters, words, and sounds all cause her to see a distinct array of colors. She keeps her unusual condition a secret until eighth grade, but then her color visions make math and Spanish impossibly confusing, and she must go to her parents and a doctor for help.

"However, this is more than a docu-novel. Mass beautifully integrates information about synesthesia with Mia's coming-of-age story, which includes her break with her best friend, her grief over her grandfather's death, and the loss of her beloved pet...even as it describes a synesthete's vision. References to a comprehensive Web site and bibliography about synesthesia are included."

Persons may visit the Oakland library or call 301-334-3996 to reserve a copy of the book.

The library offers four book clubs serving children in first grade through adults, and further information is available on the library Web site at www.relib.net or by calling the number above. All book clubs are funded in part by the Friends of the Library.

"Play Hard. Live Clean." Campaign To Kick Off Jan. 12 At Wisp Resort

"PLAY HARD. LIVE CLEAN." is a campaign to discourage underage drinking and to promote positive lifestyles. The campaign began with a logo design contest. Pictured above is Jonathon Moon, a 9th grader at Northern High School, who designed the winning logo, along with Paula Yudelevit, marketing director for the Wisp Resort. The Wisp awarded a free season ski pass to the winner. In addition, the design will be featured on stickers that will be distributed at a kick-off event at the Wisp Tubing Park on Monday, Jan. 12, from 5 to 8 p.m. Garrett County youth between the ages of 11 and 20 years and their parents can enjoy free tubing as part of this joint effort between the Wisp, the Garrett County Health Department, and the Combating Underage Drinking Committee. Funding is provided in part by a grant from the Governor's Office for Crime Control and Prevention and the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families. See article on this page for more details.

"Play Hard. Live Clean." is the theme of a "four seasons" campaign to combat underage drinking. This campaign is designed to "promote positive lifestyles among youth all year long."

It is an initiative of the Combating Underage Drinking (CUD) Committee in partnership with the Wisp Resort and the Garrett County Health Department. Funding for the campaign is provided in part by a grant from the Governor's Office for Crime Control and Prevention and the Garrett County Partnership for Children and Families.

"The goal of the campaign is to promote the idea among our county youth that playing hard doesn't have to be associated with risky behavior," said Nancy Brady, prevention coordinator at the health department and member of the CUD Committee. "The staff at the Wisp have been very enthusiastic and willing to work with the committee to kick off this campaign, recognizing the ski resort as an important venue to reach youth."

The first project of the campaign was to design a logo using the "Play Hard. Live Clean." motto. Brenda Frazee, community outreach worker at the health department and member of the CUD Committee, organized a contest among high school and college-age students to design a logo.

"The winning design was selected from approximately 100 entries and was created by Jonathon Moon, a student in Terry Stough's ninth grade health class at Northern High School," Frazee said. "Ms. Stough's class took on the project as a supplement to their alcohol awareness unit."

As a reward for designing the winning logo, the Wisp Resort presented Jonathon with a season ski pass. In addition to his award, five runners-up were given a one-day ski pass. They were Victoria Moser, Mackell Klauhn, Tara Brenneman, Nicole Espada, and Tyler Southerly.

To officially kick off the "Play Hard. Live Clean." campaign, the Wisp Resort is sponsoring a night of free tubing on Monday, Jan. 12, from 5 until 8 p.m., with priority given to Garrett County youth between the ages of 11 and 20 years. Parents are also invited to attend this activity with their children, as long as tubes are available.

At this event, stickers featuring the winning design will be distributed and free pizza will be offered to the youth in attendance. Registration forms, which must be signed by a parent or guardian, can be picked up at the county middle and high schools or at the health department.

Future activities being planned as a part of the campaign include incorporating the "Play Hard. Live Clean." theme into after-prom and Autumn Glory activities.

Residents may call Nancy Brady, Brenda Frazee, or Kendra Todd at the Garrett County Health Department at 301-334-7730 or visit garretthealth.org for up-to-date information on the campaign and other issues.

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

As much as I hate New Year's Eve celebrations, I was dragged by my girls down to Rodney and Marci Glotfelty's house to a party. It was nice to see David Whittemore and Maddy there, as Lesa was visiting with her father and brother in Las Vegas. All present were treated to a short concert by White Noise, which was minus a few members. The younger generation were very enthusiastic about the party.

I hope the year 2004 will be a big improvement over the last 10 years I have gone through. It has been five years or more since everyone knew that my marriage was finished. It seems as if every day someone is telling me sordid and horrible details of the past. I believe that I have taken a big step in filing for the big "D" and maybe I can start a new life.

Let's get on with a more positive note. Devin William Smith, son of Bonnie and Todd Smith, and grandson of Mary Lou and Bob Smith, will celebrate his baptism on January 11 at Emmanuel Lutheran Church.

Pastor Pat and Keith Pittsnogle have almost completed their move to the Red House area. That is a big loss for me because she was a tremendous support for me over my ordeal.

Rodney and Marci and family took a trip downstate during the first weekend of the New Year. Besides visiting with Marci's family, they also took in a Maryland Terps basketball game. According to Marci, St. Mary's played their best while Maryland did not perform too well, but they took the victory. You have to admire those little colleges willing to play their intrastate powerhouse teams. It is a big boost to Maryland to get a big upset. Landon Southerly is a student at St. Mary's and has been home with his parents for the holidays.

I was right that Gary and Sharon Buckel had a ball in Florida at the Gator Bowl. He told me today that on the drive down the road it was filled with Mountaineer fans. As he had his Maryland hat on the dash of his car, he received a lot of "gestures" from the Mountaineer fans. Of course, he just laughed. He would like to have told them, "You will cry in your beer soon." I censored some amusing, but colorful, comments. Thank God for Gary, as I could not get along without his support, kindness, and good humor.

Several Mountaineer fans and Terp fans gathered around the TV at Kevin and Carol Bass's house on New Year's Day to watch the Terps overpower the Mountaineers. It was a big win for the Terps and they moved up in their national rankings.

Although this is not the worst Garrett County winter that I have ever experienced, the road conditions were the worst ever today. Even Rt. 219 wasn't adequately treated. It was just terrifying to travel the slick, icy, downhill section around this "neck of the woods." Actually, I can't go anywhere without having to face something like a stretch of bobsled runs. The downhill stretch below the Grove claimed another young victim. A car was resting in the Powells' front lawn. According to Kim, the young man driver escaped without any injury.

While Rodney and Marci and family were away, the scary task of letting out their tiny cute guard dogs was in full swing. Anyone who is scared of our dog "Boo" does not know little "Cowboy." He seems to give the bite reception to even the closest family members, especially Kevin Bass, brother Barry, and aunt Helen Englar. I am sure that I have missed someone. "Toby" is a noisy one, but not the bite type. Who would think those little fluffy, long-haired dachshunds would inspire so much fear in those who know and love them? Of course, they don't bite their own family. I tried to bribe them on New Year's Eve by giving them little pieces of cheese. The only way that Barry could get them outside last weekend was to lay a trail of cheese from their cage to the door. Toby is especially hungry this time of year without his favorite dish (moles). Apparently, those little rodents have lots of calories, but since the ground is frozen, Toby has dropped several pounds, and in a tiny dog that is a lot. However, he is no way skinny or even slim.

Ruth DiPaolo and Elaine Jacobs spent several days with Betty Sacra at her new home in a retirement community in Winchester, Va.

Sheila Southerly was a surgical patient at Memorial Hospital in Cumberland for two days last week. She is now recovering at home. Anyone who has or has had kidney stones can sympathize with Sheila.

FRIENDSVILLE

Because the following items were not specified in the Friendsville Town Charter, and based on the recommendations of the Friendsville Election Reform Committee, the mayor and town council have approved the following changes to the town's municipal election process, effective Jan. 5, 2004:

- The size of the paper ballot shall be 8 1/2" by 5 1/2".
- The number of ballots to be printed shall be 200.
- Qualified voters of the town are eligible to apply for an absentee ballot if: 1) they may be absent from town on Election Day; 2) they are suffering from an accident, illness, or physical disability; 3) they are confined in or restricted to an institution; or 4) they are attending to a death or severe illness in their family.
- A voter is "qualified" if his or her "domicile" is within the town limits. For the purpose of determining eligibility for an absentee ballot, "domicile" is defined as the permanent residence of a person or the place to which he or she intends to return.
- The appropriate marking of the ballot shall be an "X." Only votes cast with this mark and having the intersecting lines within the box will be considered valid.

The full text of the recommended revisions to the Town Charter is available for review at the Town Hall during regular business hours. These recommendations will be formally incorporated into the Town Charter after a process of legal review for compliance with appropriate laws.

Northern Rally Nearly Nips BW; Huskies Drop OT Battle To 'Cats

A pair of major upsets over area kingpins barely eluded the Northern High School boys' varsity basketball squad this week, as the Huskies almost knocked off Bishop Walsh and Westmar. On Friday Northern mounted a huge fourth-quarter comeback before dropping an 80-72 contest to the host Spartans, and last night the Huskies dropped an overtime heartbreaker to the visiting Wildcats, 57-54.

Twenty-two points behind BW as the fourth quarter opened Friday, NHS stormed through a 31-17 run over the final eight minutes that fell just four buckets short of catching the powerful Spartans, who improved to 8-4 with their win.

The first quarter of the battle was nip and tuck, and ended with Northern down by a slim 15-13 margin. The Spartans widened the gap by 29-17 run through the second stanza that gave the hosts a 44-30 halftime advantage.

After three quarters Bishop Walsh was up 63-41, and with just 2:30 remaining still held a sizable lead at 80-55, but Northern refused to throw in the towel and stunned the BW crowd by reeling off an unthinkable 17-0 run that cut the final margin to just eight points.

"That was one of the most exciting games I've ever been involved in," NHS coach Paul Edwards said afterward. "Cutting the margin from 25 points at one point in the fourth quarter to eight by the end of the game was quite an accomplishment, especially against a tough team. We almost pulled out the win.

"We started to pressure them with a full-court press, and it worked perfectly. We were able to force a lot of mistakes, and make a lot of steals, that resulted in a number of fast-break layups, and we hit our free throws. I was especially happy that we were able to continue the run when they brought their first string back onto the floor. We proved we could play with some of the area's best, and I'm really proud of the guys."

Senior forward Jason Rice paced the Huskies with 23 points, and sophomore guard Chris Speicher recorded 16. Eric Johnson, a junior forward, just missed double figures by netting nine points.

The Spartans' Chris Hendershot led all scorers with 26 points, a tally that included five three-pointers along with a dozen rebounds. Among his team's balanced performance, Griffin Detrick had 12 points and six assists, Steven Amoroso scored 11 points, and Eddie Zapf netted 10 points and took down 11 rebounds.

Bishop Walsh won the junior varsity game 56-31. Joey Frye had 20 points for the victors.

Last night's homecourt overtime loss to the Wildcats, who brought a 7-1 mark into the battle, was a game Northern should have won, according to the NHS skipper. "We just couldn't handle the pressure," Edwards remarked. "It's been a bit of a reoccurring theme this season."

The two squads battled to a 9-9 tie after the first quarter, and by the half Northern had taken control with an eight-point advantage, 25-17. The 'Cats clawed back over the third stanza to knot the score at 34-all, and the fourth quarter came down to a 45-45 deadlock with one second remaining. After a jump ball, Northern couldn't get a shot off and the game went into overtime. The visitors outscored the Huskies in the extra stanza, 12-9.

"Just like we did to BW, Westmar hit us with a strong pressing defense that hurt us, and we hurt ourselves by missing a lot of clutch free throws," commented Edwards. "That was especially frustrating, as we've been shooting well from the foul line up until last night." Northern made less than half its free throws during the contest in an 11-for-24 tally.

"On the bright side, we got a phenomenal performance from Brent Beachy, who really stepped up and took control. His offensive game was a little bit of everything, he was hitting jump shots and also aggressively taking the ball to the hoop. Even though he's just a sophomore, he was our go-to guy down the fourth quarter stretch, and he responded. He's got quite a future for us."

Beachy tallied 24 points on 10 field goals and four free throws from his small forward slot, while fellow sophomore Blake Walker and senior Rice chipped in seven points each. Andrew Frantz grabbed eight rebounds, and Speicher handed out six assists.

Jason Lee scored 17 points to lead Westmar.

The Huskies (3-7) have only one outing on their schedule this week, a home contest against Grant County's Union High set for 7:30 p.m. tomorrow. That varsity battle will follow a 6 p.m. junior varsity matchup.

Ram Hoopsters Come Up Short To Sentinels And Campers

The youth and inexperience of the Southern High School varsity made it a difficult week for Coach Tom Bosley and the Rams, as they were handed a pair of losses by Cumberland teams.

The first was a 58-42 defeat Friday evening at Fort Hill and the second was a 68-50 loss last night to Allegany, also in Cumberland. It was the first time in the past six years and 14 meetings that the Rams fell to the Campers of Allegany.

The losses dropped the Rams to 4-6.

Southern fell behind early to Fort Hill and trailed by five, 18-13, at the end of the first quarter, but rallied to take a 25-23 lead by halftime. They were outscored in the third stanza, however, by a 20-7 margin, giving the Sentinels (5-3) a 43-32 lead going into the final period.

Corey Tressler was the only Ram who reached double figures in scoring, as he finished with a game-high 20 points.

Leading Fort Hill offensively were Harley Brooks with 14 points, Kevin Page with 12, and Denny Hockman with 10.

The Southern junior varsity won the preliminary game, but details of that contest were not received.

The Ram varsity started well against Allegany last night and held a 10-8 advantage at the end of the first quarter. But the Campers erupted for 18 points in the second period and held Southern to just six to take a 26-16 halftime advantage. The Rams doubled their point total in the third stanza, but were still out-gunned by a 23-16 margin to give Alco a comfortable 49-32 lead heading into the final period.

It was primarily at the foul line that the Rams lost the game, as both teams finished with 20 field goals. The Campers had 32 opportunities at the free-throw line and made good on 25 of them, while the Rams took just 10 foul shots and connected on eight.

The Rams were edged in rebounds, 30-28.

Tressler was again the top scorer for Southern, finishing with 17 points, and he also grabbed a game-high eight rebounds.

Also reaching double figures for the Rams were Cory Bosley with 13 points and Andrew VanBogelen with 10.

Allegany's Ian Grady took scoring honors for the contest with 23 points. Dustin Keller finished with 15 points and Donavin Vinson recorded 12.

The win was the eighth in nine starts for the Campers.

The Southern jayvee squad was edged in the first game, 43-41. Joey Tressler paced the Rams with 16 points, while David Latimer and Bryan Hansel led the Alco jayvees with 16 and 12 points, respectively.

NHS Girls Remain Game In Face Of Big Obstacles

Although fielding a varsity roster of only six players, the Northern High School girls' basketball team is determined to make the best of a tough situation and showed this week that it will not write the season off. After the Huskies opened recent action with a 68-35 loss to visiting Southern on Saturday (see SHS account), they battled top-ranked Beall down to the wire Monday before falling by just three points, 39-36.

Down by an 8-6 tally after the first quarter at Beall, NHS rallied to take a 21-17 halftime lead. The give-and-take duel continued through the third quarter, which ended with the Mountaineers up by just one point, 29-28. Beall held sway through the final stanza as Northern lost junior forward Jayme Miller to foul trouble, and the powerful Mounties took their sixth win in seven outings so far this year.

NHS senior guard Lyndsi Butler hit for a game-high 15 points, and junior forward teammate Jeseca Gibson added 11. A measure of the Huskies' cool demeanor is evidenced by a superb 9-of-10 free throw tally, including a perfect 6-for-6 performance by Butler. Kacey Kahl led Beall with 13 points and 10 rebounds.

Northern's junior varsity dropped its contest 58-30, as the Mounties' Chelsea Raley netted 15 points. Jessie Fratz and Amber Savage both recorded double figures for the Huskies with 12 and 10, respectively.

Northern (3-4) visits Southern tonight for a rematch of the cross-county clash, then hosts Fort Hill Monday and Berlin Wednesday, before taking to the road for a trip to Salisbury Thursday, Jan. 15. Junior varsity contests get under way at 6 p.m., followed by the 7:30 p.m. varsity showdowns.

Last chance for bonus
Points leader Matt Kenseth has one last chance to claim this season's Winston Leader Bonus. The bonus has grown to a record $360,000 going into Sunday's race at Homestead.

Kenseth takes points title by finishing 4th

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Rockingham, N.C.

Not to be outdone by Bill Elliott's sentimental run at history Sunday Matt Kenseth wrapped up his Winston Cup championship by learning a lesson from the veteran driver.

KENSETH

Kenseth had an advantage going into the season's final race at Homestead, Fla., and the title was his.

Even though Kenseth has tried to keep the points race, which he had led since the March race at Atlanta Motor Speedway, in the back of his mind, he always had an idea where he wanted it to end.

"Even when we were far ahead, I was hoping that this would be the place that we could wrap it up if we did, because it's a really cool race track and it's got a lot of meaning for all of us," he said.

That's certainly the case for Kenseth's car owner, Jack Roush, who also saw his first championship come at the same track where he scored his first major victory. In 1988, Mark Martin beat Rusty Wallace in the fall race here for Roush's first Winston Cup win. Kenseth, the 31-year-old former short-track driver from Cambridge, Wis., is only in his fourth full season on NASCAR's elite Winston Cup circuit.

There were times the outwardly unassuming driver didn't believe he had a chance to become NASCAR's top driver.

Just a few years ago, he was driving on short tracks across the Midwest when Robbie Reiser, who has been his crew chief from the start, called and offered him a ride in the Busch Series. From there, Mark Martin saw his ability and convinced his car owner, Roush, to find a way to field another car.

That huge career break came just in the nick of time because, at 26, Kenseth was getting too old to start a NASCAR career.

"I felt like my time was past," he said.

Now, he's got a Winston Cup trophy for his own, and he's not sure what to make of it all.

"I've got so many emotions going through me that I really don't know what to think right now," he said. "I'm just so thankful to have this opportunity. There are so many great race drivers that never get the chance to do this."

Newman chalks up 11th pole

Ryan Newman rolled to his 11th Winston Cup Bud Pole of the season in qualifying for Sunday's Pop Secret 400.

Newman's 11th pole of the season ties him with Elliott, Darrell Waltrip, David Pearson and Bobby Allison for second place in NASCAR's modern era (1972-present).

"To me, that's a great feat," he said. "There are definitely a lot of great drivers ... legacy."

Rockingham, N.C.

Bill Elliott's No. 9 pit crew pocketed $40,000 for its record-setting performance in winning the fifth annual World Championship Pit Crew Competition at North Carolina Speedway.

The Melo Ford-led crew changed four tires and added two cans of gasoline in 16.726 seconds, breaking the old mark of 16.856 seconds set last year by Matt Kenseth's No. 17 crew.

"We knew coming in that if we had a good, solid pit stop and didn't make any mistakes that we would have a shot at it," Ford said. Eight of the 24 teams that participated had time added to their scores for various infractions such as loose lug nuts. Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s crew finished first after posting a time of 41.944 seconds, including penalties.

Saturday's Tarheel House 200 Busch Series race at North Carolina Speedway had as many subplots as a daytime soap opera, and the biggest stars of the afternoon were Jamie McMurray and Richard Childress.

But those wanting to know who will win the Busch drivers' championship will have to tune in next week, because for the 12th time in the first 16 races, the circuit has a new points leader, and there are six drivers who remain in contention.

Seven Races ... the Tarheel House 200 shop the standings, but be hit the Turn 2 wall on the 162nd lap and finished 36th.

"I think something broke on the brakes because I couldn't get it slowed down and straight into the wall it went," Riggs said.

The points lead now goes to Brian Vickers, who finished fourth in the race. He leads Harvick by 42 points, with only Saturday's race at Homestead left to run.

Bill Elliott won the final fall race at North Carolina Speedway, where he ran his first race in 1976. The veteran driver says he has "some decisions to make" about driving next year.

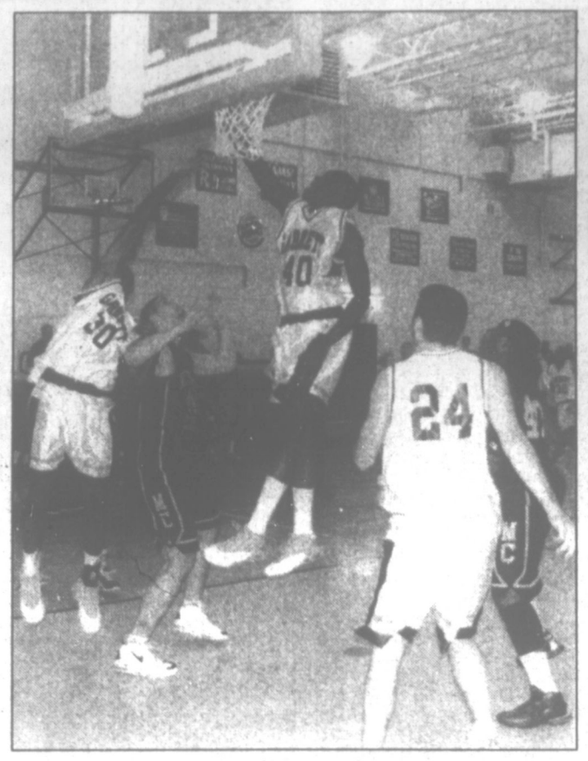
LAKERS NOW 11-0 — The Garrett College men's basketball team upped its perfect season record to 11-0 last night by recording a tight, 75-74 victory over visiting Montgomery-Rockville. The Lakers are currently one of only four undefeated NJCAA Division I teams in the country. Leading them in scoring last night was Darren Stackhouse, pictured above left going well above the rim. He finished with 19 points. Above right, Darvus Gray (#40) and James Hippolyte (#30) both go up for a rebound under the Rockville basket. Also in the photo is Laker Pat Carwile (#24). The Lakers will try to make it an even dozen this Saturday when they travel to Frederick CC. Photos by John McEwen.



USE A HIGH SHUTTER SPEED when photographing the Garrett College women's basketball team in action, because the Lakers have one of the fastest squads in the Maryland JUCO, if not the entire Region XX. Captured on film during last night's 107-52 runaway (literally) win over visiting Allegany are Laker guard Denae Kennedy (#11, at left), who recorded 27 points and handed out 12 assists, both game-highs. Fellow Garrett guard Jenna Bradford (#23, at right) streaks in for a bucket in what is likely to become a very familiar sight as the season continues—a fast-break lay-up. Lakers Record 11th Straight Win Despite Holiday Layoff

The holiday layoff had a somewhat negative effect on the Garrett College men's basketball team, but the Lakers nonetheless held on last night for a 75-74 Maryland JUCO victory over visiting Montgomery-Rockville.

The win was the 11th straight for the Lakers, who are currently one of only four NJCAA Division I teams in the nation that are undefeated. They are 3-0 in the Maryland JUCO standings.

It was a pair of free throws by James Jones with just 14 seconds left on the clock that gave the Lakers the lead and the one-point victory last night.

Only a few points separated the two teams throughout the game, but the Lakers did not take their first lead in the contest until the 9:39 mark of the second half on a dunk by Aaron Hippolyte to make it 57-56.

About four minutes later Rockville took a 66-65 advantage via a lay-up by Johan Matos. Then with 2:08 left, a layup by Darren Stackhouse put the Lakers back on top, 70-69.

A three-pointer by Rockville's James Alexander with 21 seconds to play gave the visitors yet another lead at 74-73, but those would be the final points of the night for Rockville, as Jones iced the win for the Lakers with his two free throws at the 14-second mark.

Stackhouse led the Lakers with 19 points, Jones finished with 14, Akeem Scott added 12, and Darvis Gray chipped in with 11.

Hippolyte grabbed 10 rebounds for Garrett, while Scott pulled down eight, and also dished out seven assists. Pat Carwile was credited with five assists.

Rockville, which came into the contest averaging 92 points per game, fell to 7-5 overall and 3-4 in the conference.

"Our layoff obviously affected our team continuity and our defensive movement," Laker coach Dennis Gibson said. "Plus Rockville plays the toughest man defense in the league, which had us pretty rattled in the first half. But we managed to settle down and come back.

"We should be better prepared for Frederick on Saturday," he added.

Garrett Women Return In Fine Form To Crush Trojans By 55

After a five-week layoff the Garrett College women's basketball team was chomping at the bit to return to action last night, and the Lakers picked up right where they left off by decimating the visiting Allegany Trojans 107-52. The fireworks came after Garrett had only put in three days of practice following its winter break, and after the Trojans had vanquished CCAC-South over the weekend.

"We started applying heavy defensive pressure with a full-court press from the very beginning, and Allegany just fell apart," GC coach Steve Willison said of his unit, which ran out to an 8-0 lead and at one point in the first half was up 25-7 on the way to a 57-18 halftime advantage. "On offense we just overwhelmed them with speed. It seemed as if for every point they would score, we'd score two."

Freshman guard Denae Kennedy exploded for 27 points and 12 assists, both game-highs. Sophomore forward LaSha Anderson hit for 22 points, and freshman guard Ashley Liller netted 21, including a trio of three-pointers. Sophomore LaTonya Crowder, at only 5-6, fearlessly crashed the boards to grab a game-high nine rebounds. Sophomore transfer Jenna Bradford handed out 11 assists in her first outing as a Laker guard.

One of the many keys to the Lakers' runaway win, and perhaps to the remainder of the season, was last night's debut of Bradford in the Garrett backcourt. The 5-7 guard earned Street and Smith Magazine High School All-America Team honors while playing for Milford Mill Academy in Baltimore, and while starting at Barton College helped lead that team to a regional crown and a fifth-place finish in the national tournament.

Rather than stealing the spotlight with her individual talent, an examination of last night's statistical breakdown indicates that Bradford's addition makes what was already a strong, well balanced team even more of the same. In helping take the speedy Laker backcourt into overdrive, she joins forces with fellow thoroughbreds Kennedy and Liller in a fast-break offensive scheme that had already specialized in terrorizing opposition defenders.

With a 6-2 record (the Lakers were awarded a win by forfeit over Anne Arundel in a contest that had been scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 13, at Anne Arundel), GC's season will heat up quickly from now on. Garrett embarks on a run through the rest of the campaign that features 15 outings in a five-week span leading up to the Maryland JUCO Tournament, including a Saturday road trip to take on the Hagerstown Hawks, and a Wednesday night tussle with the host Cougars in Frederick.

Southern Mat Club Finishes First At Preston

The Southern Mat Club dominated at a season-opener tournament at Preston High School last weekend, taking home a first-place team trophy. This is the first time the wrestling club has ever won the tournament, which hosted 400 youth wrestlers from throughout West Virginia and Maryland.

Forty young wrestlers, ages 4 through 13, traveled to Preston with the Southern Mat Club. They earned a total of 105 team points, double the number earned by the second- and third-place teams: Northern Garrett County and Keyser, W.Va.

"The dedication of these kids paid off big time," said Darryl Ozias, who coaches the mat club along with George Scheffel, Terry Murphy (club president) and Jarrett Rasel (club secretary). "The team has grown in quantity and quality. Our new young wrestlers bring a freshness and energy to the program that benefits us all," Ozias added.

The team worked hard throughout the Christmas school holiday, Ozias said, practicing four times with Dave Taylor, coach of the Southern High School team, and his high school wrestlers.

"This was a great opportunity for both the high school kids and the youth wrestlers to work together to become better wrestlers," said Coach Taylor. "The high school kids enjoyed working with the young kids who will be future high school wrestlers, and the youth wrestlers enjoyed working with the high schoolers they look up to."

The SMC took several new members, as well as experienced grapplers, to the Preston tournament. Individual club wrestlers earned 13 first-place trophies, eight second-place trophies, 12 third-place trophies, and three fourth-place trophies.

Earning first-place trophies were: Taylor Artice, Justin Ashby, Ryan Bennett, Ryan Fitzwater, Travis Newton, Coy Ozias (2), Jakob Scheffel (2), George Scheffel, Davey Sweitzer, and Jason Warnick (2).

Winning second-place trophies were: Ryan Bennett, Scott Cooper, Devan Hamrick, Lex Ozias, George Scheffel, Jimmy Schwab, Andy Sweitzer, and Zach Tasker.

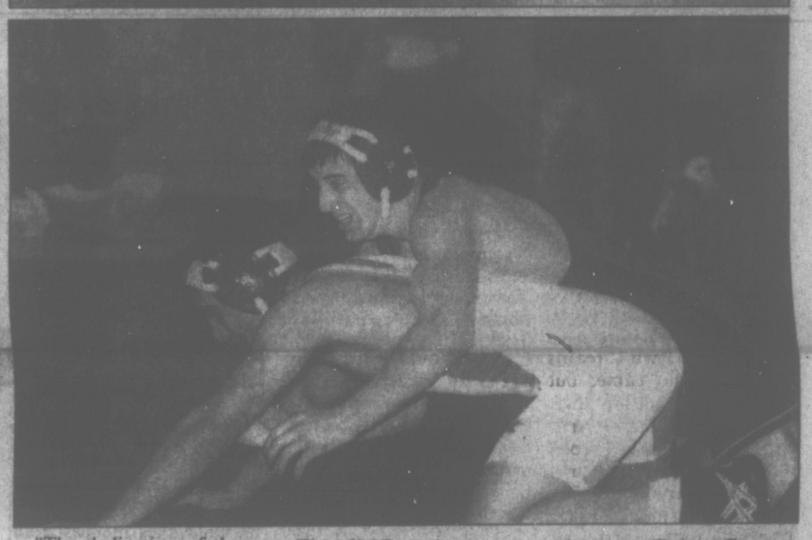
Finishing with third-place trophies were: Sara Ashby, Logan Beeman, Scott Cooper, Lee Custer, Ryan Fitzwater, Kevin Mauk, Ray McGehee, Zachary Morton, Gavin Murphy (2), Lex Ozias, and Matthew Shaffer.

Earning fourth-place trophies were: Dalton Cooper, Troy Deckman, and John Martin.

Other Southern Mat Club wrestlers who participated in the Preston tournament were: Garrett Beachy, Max Bittinger, Garrett Campbell, Bradley Clary, Melissa Clary, Tanner Massey, Jesse McComas, Evelyn McGeehee, Stanley McRobie, Jaxon Schwab, and Alora Taylor.

The Southern Mat Club and the Southern High School wrestling team recently added a "Wall of Fame" in the high school and middle school wrestling rooms that showcases the outstanding achievements of Southern wrestlers, from 1969 to the present. The effort is sponsored in part by 84 Lumber.

The Southern Mat Club will travel to the North Hills, Pa., tournament, near Pittsburgh, this weekend. It will host its home tournament in the Southern High School gymnasium on Saturday, Jan. 31.



GC TOURNAMENT CHAMPIONS — Six local high school wrestlers, four from Southern and two from Northern, captured individual championships in the Garrett County Invitational, a nine-team tournament hosted Saturday by Southern. The Rams, under coach Dave Taylor, won the team championship as well, amassing 223.5 points, while the Huskies, coached by Scott Stough, finished fifth. Pictured top left is Northern's Casey Kamp in the process of pinning Cameron Muma of Laurel Highlands High School in the semi-final round of the 103-pound division. Kamp, who finished third in the state of Maryland for his weight class last year as a freshman, pinned all of his opponents in the tournament, including Danny Armstrong of Robert C. Byrd High School in the title round. In the photo at top right, Southern's Justin Ratliff pins John Weishaar of Francis Scott Key to win the 119-pound division title. Below left, Eric Garlitz of Northern is shown pinning Billy Miller of Lansdowne High School in a 130-pound division semifinal. He went on to decision Brent Carbonara of Laurel Highlands to claim the division crown. Below right, SHS Ram Chris Bennett pins Tony Shillingburg of Keyser in a 189-pound semifinal, and then needed only 33 seconds to pin Steve Malutich of Liberty in the championship match. Bottom left, Southern heavyweight Dan Goulart controls Aaron Stump of Keyser before pinning Ralph Stambaugh of Francis Scott Key in the 275-pound finale. Bottom right, Scott Wildesen of Southern is pictured en route to a major decision over Michael Madia of Robert C. Byrd to win the 152-pound division. Photos by John McEwen and Del Carpenter.

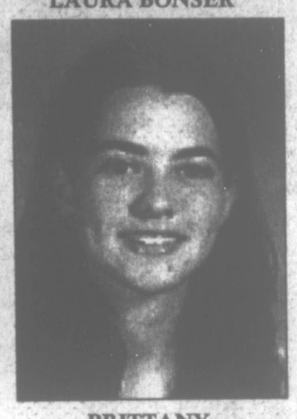
ROBBIN GREGG

LAURA BONSER

LAURA COSTA



BRITTANY MILBOURNE

Senior forward Sabrina Scheffel, who was practically in a league by herself in terms of goal scoring for the area this past season, led a group of six Garrett County female soccer players who were named recently to the 2003 All-Area first team.

Besides being named to the first team, Scheffel was also voted the Offensive Player of the Year by area coaches, while Rachel Armstrong of Beall was named the Defensive Player of the Year. Abby Snyder, also of Beall, was selected the Area Player of the Year.

Three of Scheffel's teammates also named to the All-Area first team were seniors Casey Taylor, Robbin Gregg, and Laura Bonser, while juniors Laura Costa and Brittany Milbourne of Northern High School were also first-team picks.

Named to the second team were Alasha Rush and Shar Hollingsworth of Southern, and Megan Shaffer and Lyndsi Butler of Northern. Receiving honorable mention were Southern's Jasmine Scheffel and Erin Rhodes, and Northern's Tiffany Yoder and Britta Lais.

Scheffel, Taylor, Gregg, Bonser, Costa, and Milbourne were also all named to the first-team All-Western Maryland Interscholastic League squad.

Rush, Hollingsworth, and Jasmine Scheffel of Southern, along with Butler, Shaffer, and Karie Kamp of Northern were named to the second-team All-WMIL, while Kendra McLaughlin of Southern and Yoder of Northern received honorable mention.

Scheffel, who during her four-year career as a starter led the Rams to an overall record of 48-11-1, three WMIL titles, and two Area championships, was the area's Co-Player of the Year following her junior season. In that year she scored 20 goals and recorded 11 assists. This past fall she finished with 27 goals and seven assists in 15 matches for a total of 61 points.

For her four-year career, in which she never finished lower than fifth in the area in scoring, she holds school records in goals (69), assists (27), points (165), and scoring average (2.75). She is now third in the area in career scoring average, trailing only Bishop Walsh's Karen Knight (2.97) and Shera Rowan (2.80). Her scoring average of 4.06 for the 2003 season is the second best in area history, with Lauren Zapf of Bishop Walsh holding the top mark at 4.42, set in 1998.

"Sabrina led our team by example, both on and off the field," stated SHS coach Ron Petrella. "She has a great attitude, loves the game, and worked extremely hard at every practice. It was a joy to coach her, and it's going to be very difficult for anyone to beat her scoring totals in the years to come."

Scheffel, Bonser, Taylor, and Gregg are all repeat first-team selections.

Bonser was named the Defensive Player of the Year last season, and led another outstanding effort by the Rams this past fall, as the defense allowed a total of only eight goals in 15 matches. Bonser played the sweeper position.

"Laura was certainly an integral part of our defense, and the numbers speak for themselves," Petrella said. "She did a magnificent job as our sweeper."

Gregg finished the season with four goals and a team-high 11 assists, giving her 19 points and a 1.26 average, 10th best in the area.

"Robbin is the consummate team player," Petrella said. "She is an outstanding all-around athlete, and we often gave her the toughest defensive assignments because of her great defensive skills. She was also strong on the offensive end, but often sacrificed scoring goals to achieve our team objectives."

Taylor, a midfielder, was 13th in the area with a 1.13 average, as she scored three goals and also a team-high 11 assists for 17 points. She was named to the All-Area squad in all three seasons she played for Southern (freshman, junior, and senior), having gone to school in Ohio her sophomore year.

"Casey is an exceptional player at both offense and defense, which has been noticed by all of the coaches in the area over the past four years," Petrella said. "She plays hard every second of every match. She intends to play college ball next year, and I have no doubt that she is good enough to succeed at that level."

Milbourne, a speedy midfielder with exceptional ball control skills, is a three-year letter winner and two-year starter for Northern coach Lynn Lais, who called her a "major part" of the Huskies' attack and defense.

"Brittany was consistently looking to involve her teammates," Lais said. "When she has an average game, she is a better-than-average player, and when she is really on, she has the ability to lift the entire team to a higher level of play."

Costa, who was a second-team All-Area selection following her sophomore season, is a two-year starting defender, having led the Huskies this past year to six shutouts, one goal or less nine times, and a total of just 20 goals allowed in 15 matches.

"Laura's speed makes her one of the top marking backs in the area," Lais said. "She is not a one-dimensional player, but has the ability to push into the attack. She is very comfortable at midfield or even at the striker position. Her speed, strength, tenacity, and growing understanding of the game make her a very valuable player. I'm obviously pleased that she and Brittany will both be back next year."

The Huskies finished with an overall record of 8-7, but five of those losses were by a one-goal margin, including two to area champion Beall.

Other area players named to the first-team All-Area squad were: Whitney Wilson, Kacey Kahl, and Ashley Swarner of Beall; Konnie Christman, Erica Gilles, and Caitlin Owens of Bishop Walsh; Lauren Ronan and Abbie Lovell of Fort Hill; Alison Heavner and Becky Mathews of Allegany; Laurie Ogu of Keyser; Daphne Riggleman of Petersburg; and Brannon Wray of Frankfort.

The All-WMIL first team also included: Swarner, Wilson, Kahl, Ronan, Lovell, Heavner, Mathews, and Westmar's Lacey Lee.

Northern High Gridders Earn MAC Honors

The 2003 Mountain Athletic Conference varsity football post-season honors were announced recently, and five Northern High School players received First-Team All-Conference recognition. A total of 15 Huskies were singled out for honors across the entire slate of First- and Second-Team rosters and Honorable Mention accolades bestowed by the six-team MAC circuit.

First-Team MAC kudos on offense went to NHS senior linemen Jeff Yommer and Chad Carr. Yommer (5-10, 230) and Carr (6-0, 205) helped anchor the stalwart Husky line at center and guard, respectively. The pair played a large part in pacing teammate and First-Team conference halfback Michael Wolf (5-10, 170) to the first Area rushing title claimed by an NHS runner.

First-Team defensive honors went to Northern defensive end Danny Ellis (6-5, 200) and cornerback Robert Stark (5-8, 145). Ellis, a senior, and Stark, a junior, were both key to the resurrection of the vaunted Husky "grave-digger" defense over the final two-thirds of the season as the Huskies took five of their last seven outings.

Ellis was Northern's sole representative on the MAC Second Team offense, where his size, speed, and aggressive blocking earned him a slot at tackle. Joining Ellis on the Second Team were Husky defenders Dustin Wiland (5-6, 165) a senior defensive end, juniors Trevor Butler (5-10, 270) and Wolf at noseguard and strong safety, respectively, and linebacker Tyler Warn (5-11, 175), just a sophomore.

Honorable Mention kudos were taken on offense by junior running back Eric Johnson (5-11, 180) and sophomore guard Corey Yoder (6-2, 150), while senior defenders Corey Fike (5-9, 170), a linebacker, and free safety Rocco Andres (5-8, 145) received nods on defense. Johnson also netted an Honorable Mention accolade on special teams for his work as the NHS punter.

Rounding out the MAC First Team were eight members of the state finalist runner-up Beall squad, including conference Player of the Year Mahlon Harper, a senior running back; eight Berkeley Springs Indians; five Westmar Wildcats; and five Turkeyfoot Rams. Coach of the Year honors were shared by Beall's Roy DeVore and Turkeyfoot's Jeff Conn.

Final MAC standings and conference records were Beall, 4-0; Berkeley Springs, 3-1; Northern, 3-2; Westmar, 2-3; Turkeyfoot, 1-2; and Bishop Walsh, 0-5.

SHOWING THE WAY ON, OFF COURT — Northern High School alum Zach Leverenz, shown here, is residing in Dungannon, Northern Ireland, where he is coaching youth basketball and playing professional basketball for the Longford Falcons of the Irish Basketball Association. The Falcons' starter has averaged 20.7 points per game in 10 outings for Longford to date. Leverenz, who competed in the high profile Washington (D.C.) Metro Basketball League this past summer, is also serving as a program director for Playing for Peace, a the non-profit organization that uses basketball and American basketball players as vehicles to help children bridge divides, change perceptions, and develop their leadership abilities. Playing for Peace operates programs in Northern Ireland and South Africa that bring together children from different backgrounds to play basketball, acquire life skills, and develop positive relationships that transcend religion, race, and culture. The 1997 Northern graduate was captain of both his Huskies' and Dickinson College (Carlisle, Pa.) hoop squads. He is the son of Neil and Jan Leverenz of Accident.

Slate Hearing

ommended that dog and cat licenses be issued on a three-year cycle to coincide with the rabies vaccinations. The cost of the three-year licenses would be $15 per animal. If the pet is spayed or neutered, however, the cost would only be $3.

The commissioners noted that the lower fee may be an added incentive for residents to get their pets spayed and neutered.

Currently, licenses are $3 per year or $1 per year for dogs that are spayed or neutered. Kennel and pet shop licenses may also increase. Kennels authorized to house less than 25 dogs or cats and pet shops currently pay $25. Kennels housing more than 25 animals now pay $50. The ordinance committee recommends doubling those fees.

The fee increases reflect the cost of enforcing the changes to the ordinance, noted Frantz.

Fines for violating the ordinance may also increase. Last year, the General Assembly passed legislation which allows the Garrett County commissioners to set the penalties and outline the citation procedure and disposition of the fines collected.

Currently, the ordinance limits the fines to a minimum of $5 and a maximum of $25.

Commissioner Ernie Gregg suggested that the hearing on updating the ordinance be held so the public could be "duly informed."

"[The updates to the ordinance] will help us address real needs," said Frantz.

PETER PAN

Rated PG - Running Time: 1:53 - Released 12/25/03

Peter Pan, the fanciful tale of a boy who doesn't want to grow up, was first written as a play in 1904 by Scottish author and playwright James Matthew Barrie (who apparently adapted it from the bedtime stories he told to his five adopted sons), and embellished into a book in 1911. One of the most famous children's stories of all time, Barrie's tale has been adapted, rewritten, reinterpreted, set to music, and produced no less than twelve times for the big and little screen, ranging from filmed stage productions, musicals, TV versions in Portuguese, Japanese, and Russian, movies starring Mary Martin, Mia Farrow, and Cathy Rigby, and of course the famous 1953 cartoon by Walt Disney Pictures. It has even spawned what could be called sequels, such as the 1991 Spielberg-directed Robin Williams/Dustin Hoffman vehicle Hook and the conventionally animated Disney cartoon Return To Never Land, released just under 2 years ago. And that's saying nothing about the many live theatre productions of it which continue all over the world to this day. Now, on the centennial anniversary of the original stage show, we have the latest definitive version, directed by P.J. Hogan (My Best Friend's Wedding) from an adaptation by Hogan and Michael Goldenberg. Apparently, Disney originally intended to co-produce the film, but pulled out during contract negotiations. Hogan's version, which adheres more closely to the original text than most of its predecessors, has been criticized by some (including Barrie's family) as being too "adult," but it's still pretty tame by today's standards. There is a detectable hint of romantic chemistry between Peter and Wendy, but it's not as if they're gettin' it on.

On the contrary, Hogan's version is childlike, fantastic, and colorful, and ably captures the strange poetry of Barrie's text. It is notable that Peter is played in this production by a boy (14-year-old Jeremy Sumpter); perhaps the long-standing and confusing tradition of casting flat-chested petite women in the role has finally passed. Sumpter is adequately boyish as Peter, and his female co-star (newcomer Rachel Hurd-Wood) makes a suitably whimsical Wendy. Playing the dual roles of Wendy's father, Mr. Darling, and Peter's nemesis, Captain James Hook, is Jason Isaacs, who will probably be most recognizable to children in the audience as the man who played Lucius Malfoy in Harry Potter And The Chamber Of Secrets. Isaacs is wild-eyed and fanciful as Hook, and equally boring and ineffectual as Darling; the contrast is intended, since the story is supposed to be a dreamlike situation in which Wendy and her brothers confuse people and events from real life with the surrealistic events on the pirate- and Indian-inhabited island of Never Land.

The film is most enjoyable in that setting, of course; Hogan's treatment of Never Land is fairly bursting with wonder and magic, using every color of the rainbow and all the saturation and sweetening techniques currently available in the most state-of-the-art computer technology. Indeed, everything and everyone on the island seems bathed in a heavenly glow, with hard edges softened and colors almost unbelievably rich, and the ornery nature of Peter's diminutive fairy friend Tinkerbell (played by French actress Ludivine Sagnier) is countered beautifully by her healthful, warm appearance as she is almost always seen in a glow of rich golden light. Moreover, the short scene where Peter and the Darling children travel from London to his fantastic home is a mind-blowing excursion through the starry night sky and between the glowing, colorful planets of the solar system.

The story of the film is pretty much standard, with Wendy and her younger brothers John (Harry Newell) and Michael (Freddie Popplewell) being whisked off one night from their London home to Never Land, Wendy being appointed surrogate mother and storyteller not only by Peter and the lost boys but by Hook and his band of bumbling pirates, and Tinkerbell's heroism saving Peter and, ultimately, Wendy and the others, from Hook's dastardly plan. Also included are mermaids, who appear quite sinister in this version, and strangest of all, Native American Indians, whose princess Tiger Lily (Carsen Gray) serves as the key to Peter's friendly relationship with the tribe. Appearing in supporting roles are Olivia Williams as Mrs. Darling, Lynn Redgrave as the children's Aunt Millicent, and Richard Briers as Hook's not-all-that-scurvy first mate, Smee.

Do we really need another version of Peter Pan? Well… I suppose now that computer-generated effects rule the day, we will see more and more new versions of classic movies, so that we can marvel at the beautiful cartoons before us that pass themselves off as real life. There's no question that fantasy stories like this benefit from the unbelievably wondrous potential of computer graphics. Maybe eventually we won't even need actors. ★★★★

Pastor Menker To Host Seventh Holy Land Trip

Pastor Mel Menker of the Oak Park Church of the Brethren will host his seventh trip to the Holy Land, departing November 8, 2004. This is a 10-day trip which will include Biblical sites such as: Chorizim, the Mount of the Beatitudes, the Sea of Galilee, Capernaum, the Jordan River, Cana, Nazareth, Caesarea, Mount Carmel, Megiddo (Armageddon), Qumran, Jericho, the Mount of Olives, the Garden of Gethsemane, Bethany (Lazarus' tomb), Bethlehem (the Church of the Nativity), the Old City of Jerusalem, the Pool of Bethesda, the Via Dolorosa, the Church of the Holy Sepulcher (Christ's tomb), the Temple Mount, the Upper Room, King David's Tomb, the House of Caiaphas the High Priest, and the Garden Tomb. There are many other sites included that are not mentioned.

As with all previous trips, travel will be through Educational Opportunities, a Christian-based, not-for-profit organization, which is the largest tour host to the Holy Land in the world.

The basic tour cost from Washington-Dulles is $1,648. This includes round trip air fare, motor coaches, first-class hotels, guided sightseeing with trained guides, all entrance fees, Israeli breakfast buffet and dinner daily, a Bible study guide, evening lectures, and the services of E.O. staff on-site in Israel. Early registration discounts are available. For those registering by January 31, there is a discount of $80. There are special discounts available for clergy and their spouses visiting the Holy Land for the first time.

"Many people are concerned about the level of security in the Holy Land," Menker said. "Tourists are extremely safe, and no tourist with a group has ever had problems in Israel's 55 years of existence. At the present time the U.S. State Department does not have any kind of travel restrictions for group tourism in Israel, and Educational Opportunities has had groups in Israel each week since September 2003. Now is an exceptional time to experience the land of the Bible."

A brochure is available from Pastor Menker by calling 301-334-5906 or by sending him an e-mail at hmenker@gcnetmail.net. He is also available to answer questions. Persons are invited to contact him for information about future informational meetings to be held at the Oak Park Church.

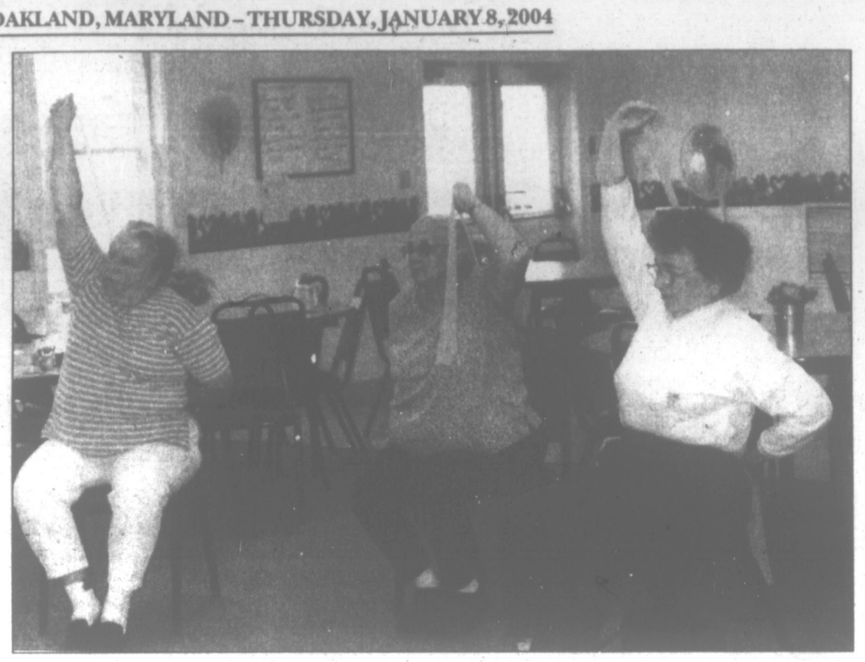
Aging Agency's Fitness Program Is Well Received

The first session of the Travel for Fitness program, which was conducted at three of Garrett County's senior centers, ended recently, and registration is under way for a second session, organizers have announced.

Elaine Kackley, the fitness director for the Area Agency on Aging, worked with 48 county seniors in Grantsville, Friendsville, and Oakland to improve health and increase flexibility through a 12-week program that she developed.

"I was really pleased with the response from our seniors," Kackley said. "They want to improve their health and are willing to work at it."

Many of the seniors in the fitness outreach program have medical conditions that must be considered in developing any fitness routines, Kackley explained.



GETTING FIT – Participants in the outreach program Travel For Fitness are pictured above as they increase muscle tone and flexibility using resistance bands. This health-improvement class is sponsored by the Area Agency on Aging and is an extension of the agency's successful program at the Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center in Accident. See story.

"Of the people participating in the classes, 18 reported having bone and joint and problems associated with arthritis; five reported having had heart attacks; 23 are being treated for hypertension; nine have been diagnosed with diabetes I or II; and 24 have high cholesterol," she said.

Kackley, who has been directing the Flowery Vale Senior Health & Fitness Center since it opened two years ago, is versed in designing programs that address the health needs of older citizens.

"We are mindful of the individual's limits and work to stretch those limits for each person. Six weeks into the program, participants reported that their range of motion had improved and that they had less pain in their joints," she said, adding that 75% of those in each class are doing 20 minutes of aerobic activity, along with stretching, flexibility, and resistance training each session.

Resistance bands, light hand-held weights, a balance beam, and a stability ball make up the fitness equipment used for the outreach program. Kackley loads the equipment into her vehicle and drives from center to center each week to deliver this specialized health management program to county seniors.

"We are really pleased with the response to and success of this program," said Ronnie Padmos of the Area Agency on Aging.

Kackley is currently registering seniors for the next 12-week session to be held in Oakland, Grantsville, and Friendsville. For more information, persons may call the Kackley at 301-746-8050.

Although all five just recently applied for certification, Shafer, the supervisor, and Wendling, the region's senior deputy, have met the qualifications for several years. Chapman, Rodeheaver, and Mowbray qualified for certification in less than three years.

In congratulating acting Deputy Chief Shafer for the regional staff's accomplishments, Barnard stated, "These men demonstrate the commitment to excellence of the employees of the Office of the State Fire Marshal, and especially that of the Western Regional staff." He added, "The citizens of Washington, Allegany, and Garrett counties are fortunate to have certified professionals on guard to help keep them safe."

The fire investigator certification program is coordinated through the Maryland Fire & Rescue Institute and is one of many certifications available to fire and rescue personnel throughout the state.

Troopers Kept Busy During Holiday Season

State troopers across Maryland conducted enhanced traffic and criminal enforcement operations during the Christmas and New Year holiday periods, bringing an end to "Operation Santa Claus" and resulting in the arrest of almost 150 people for driving under the influence.

Commanders across the state were directed by Colonel Thomas E. "Tim" Hutchins, superintendent of the Maryland State Police, to ensure extra staffing be deployed throughout the holiday period. Many of the additional troopers on patrol were funded through federal highway safety grants.

Saturday patrols watched closely for driving under the influence, aggressive driving, and other criminal activity. Troopers were vigilant in their enforcement of occupant restraint, child safety seat, and speeding violations. Conventional and non-conventional methods were utilized to maximize their efforts.

Almost 100 people were arrested for a multitude of criminal violations. During the course of those arrests, four guns were seized. Additionally, 51 were charged with various narcotic-related offenses. Troopers also located and arrested over 100 people who were wanted on outstanding warrants.

With the increase in holiday traffic, troopers were kept busy responding to more than 500 motor vehicle crashes, five of which involved fatalities. Troopers issued more than 11,000 citations and warnings and responded to almost 7,500 calls for service.

With the current terrorist threat status at "orange," patrol personnel continued their vigilance of guarding specific sites/facilities throughout the state. Troopers conducted more than 2,400 terrorism patrol checks. Citizens with information about suspicious persons or activities that may be related to terrorism are urged to call 1-800-492-TIPS.

Preston County Farm Service Agency Reports

Eric M. McCartney, County Executive Director
Preston County FSA Office
425 E. Main St., Suite 420, Kingwood, WV 26537-1793

AGRICULTURAL FOREIGN INVESTMENT DISCLOSURE ACT REQUIREMENTS EXPLAINED

Eric McCartney, executive director of the Preston County Farm Service Agency, reminds foreign investors who have bought or sold agricultural land in the county to report the transaction to the office within 90 days.

The Agricultural Foreign Investment Disclosure Act (AFIDA) requires that all foreign owners of U.S. agricultural land report their holdings, acquisitions, dispositions, leases of 10 years or more, and land uses to the county Farm Service Agency office. This law remains in effect, and those who fail to report or are late in reporting face possible fines.

For reporting purposes, agricultural land is defined as any tract of more than 10 acres now in farming, ranching, forestry, or timber production. This includes land in agricultural use when purchased, as well as land later converted to agricultural use. Foreigners who own or have interest in 10 acres or less do not need to report unless annual proceeds from the sale of agricultural products grown on these acres exceed $1,000.

Individuals or companies that specialize in land holdings, land transfers, or management services should visit the Preston County Farm Service Agency located in the Corner Mall of the Kingwood Plaza or telephone 304-329-1923.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Steven Spielberg is one of the most famous directors alive today, and he knew from a very young age what he wanted to do with his life. At the age of 13, he made a 40-minute film called "Escape to Nowhere," which won a contest he entered. When he was 16, a movie he produced called "Firelight" was shown at a local movie theater, and it turned a profit of $100.

• Irving Berlin was surprisingly prolific — he wrote an average of five songs per day for 50 years.

• Totie Fields defined "diet" as "a system of starving yourself to death so you can live a little longer."

• The famous Disney dog Pluto isn't known by that name everywhere. Here's a sampling of the animated character's aliases around the world: in France "Dingo"; in Norway, "Langbein"; in Russia, "Gufi"; in Finland, "Hessu Hopo"; in Iceland, "Ferdinand"; in Portugal, "Pateta"; in Italy, "Pippo"; and in the Arab world, he's known as "Bondock."

• The night vision of cats is six times better than that of humans.

• When the automobile became a popular method of transportation, a new industry sprang up to cater to the new lifestyle: drive-in service stations. The city of Pittsburgh has the distinction of being home to the very first one in the United States. The Gulf Oil Company opened it there in 1913.

• It's been estimated that gangster Al Capone paid about $290 million per year (figured in today's dollars) for political and police protection.

• It was the Roman poet Horace who observed: "Mix a little foolishness with your serious plans: it's lovely to be silly at the right moment."

• On Jan. 17, 1942, millions of movie fans are stunned when actress Carole Lombard dies in a plane crash at the age of 34. Lombard, married to Clark Gable since 1939, was one of Hollywood's most glamorous stars of the 1930s.

Dog Shows for Beginners

Q. How do I get my dog into a dog show? Can my dog win the first time he enters a show? — Katie L., Sacramento

A. Showing dogs is a fun and challenging sport for owners and pets alike, as the championship shows featured on television reveal. It's natural for someone who's really proud of his or her pet to want to show the dog to others, and dog shows are great for that.

Purebred dogs can enter American Kennel Club (AKC) shows if they are registered with the organization, older than six months, and meet the eligibility requirements for shows.

Dog shows are held all over the country, typically sponsored by local clubs. It's advisable to visit the next show in your area. You'll see how shows are run and learn some particulars of the sport. For example, dogs are presented to the judges by handlers: owners, breeders or hired professionals who put the dogs through their paces in the ring. And, if the grooming area is open to the public, you'll see a whole new world of dog care, as pets are primped and pampered as hair dryers whirr and scissors snip away errant tufts of fur.

If the shows look like fun, join a local club — either a breed-specific specialty group or an all-breed kennel club. It's your best source for information on getting your dog ready for the show ring, from training classes to grooming tips. Even if you decide not to show your dog, a club is a great place to get to know other dog owners. Some even hold "fun matches," non-competitive events where dogs and handlers can test their skills.

Find out about dog shows and clubs in your area by visiting www.akc.org, and get the details about this fun but demanding sport.

Providing New Warm Clothing for Needy Children

Warm the Children 2003 was the most successful in the seven years since the program was initiated by The Republican newspaper. This record year is the result of good organization, hard-working volunteers and store staff members, and the many generous contributors. The total raised this year was nearly $20,000, and over 275 local children were taken shopping for new winter clothing and footwear. This is an enormous success for a rural community!

The GFWC Civic Club of Oakland is due many thanks, as members of the club took on most of the responsibilities of the program this year. With leaders Betty Ellington and Bobby Andersen, the club members were tireless in their efforts. Dora Hanlin at the Dept. of Social Services was once again an invaluable helper, and for that we thank her. Thanks to the teachers and counselors of Garrett County schools for helping us find children in need; to First United Bank & Trust, where the savings account is kept fee-free; and to the employees of both the Oakland and LaVale Wal-Mart stores for their help.

Because he was always touched by the powerful response to the program, the entire effort this year is dedicated in memory of Robert (Bob) Sincell, who died on May 16, 2003. Bob was the general manager at Sincell Publishing for many decades. Since Warm the Children was taken on by members of the news staff, namely his daughter, Mary McEwen, and his son Don, Bob was always impressed by the amount of money that was donated each year, and by the dedication of the many volunteers. He thought it was a beautiful thing. So to Bob we dedicate this effort, and in doing so we remember his sense of generosity and kindness.

Robert (Bob) Sincell

Thanks to all who helped make Warm the Children 2003 such a success!

"If you don't like it, change it" appears to be the motto of our times. Yet, television ads, bestselling books, "extreme makeovers" and "promising" plastic surgeons cannot change one's spirit...at any price.

Interestingly enough, transforming one's spirit costs nothing at all. If you are sad within yourself, if the sparkle goes out of you eyes, how can you project a positive impression? In the collection, Words of Wisdom, Perry Ellis, the world renowned fashion designer, said "Fashion designers can't make anybody look good...looking good is feeling good and feeling good is being at peace with yourself."

Are you at peace with yourself? Have you looked within? If the answer is no, give God first chance in your life. Psalm 96:6 directs us... "Strength and beauty are in His sanctuary." Won't you worship this week? Let God create a new you.

It Is Easy to Criticize

Offering constructive criticism to others can be beneficial, but only if the other person is receptive to our comments. In teaching situations or during on-the-job training, constructive criticism is usually necessary to instruct and help a person develop a trade or vocation. However, correcting someone, even in a kind or skillful manner, can be very challenging, since we are never sure how the individual may react. Many friendships and families have been destroyed because someone has been overly critical of another person's words or actions. Knowing when we should offer our comments can also be difficult, and we should be fairly certain that our comments are truthful and necessary. It often seems so easy to criticize others because we mistakenly believe that we are without fault or are such experts on most everything. The Bible tells us that we look at the speck in our brother's eye, but we pay no attention to the log in our own (Luke 6:41). Faultfinding and being overly critical of others, especially behind their backs, is wrong and can become habit-forming. However, kind words are good for the soul and help to build a person up.

The way of a fool is right in his own eyes, But a wise man listens to advice.

– R.S.V. Proverbs 12:15

Vitamin D Is Needed By Bone And Other Tissues

Vitamin D is an important nutrient for building bones and preventing bone breaks. This important vitamin has several other uses in the body as well. Vitamin D is sometimes recommended as a supplement to take along with certain anticonvulsant medications to prevent the bone-softening side effects of these drugs. Sometimes it is combined with vitamin A to treat skin conditions or a cancer of the skin called early squamous cell carcinoma. Another form of vitamin D called ergocalciferol is used to prevent bone softening due to long term use of steroids or diseases affecting the liver. For people who suffer from muscle pain and weakness, an oral or injected form of vitamin D can provide prompt relief of muscle weakness and restore mobility.

Research into the dietary needs of infants has shown that adequate vitamin D levels during infancy can lead to a higher bone density in young girls and a reduction in the incidence of type 1 diabetes in both sexes. A recent study of 1,500 women in Australia suggests that low levels of vitamin D increased the risk of falls. When vitamin D supplements were given the risk seemed to be reduced.

'Jake' star still 'popular' with viewers

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Christopher Gorham

Q: Please tell me more about Christopher Gorham, the star of "Jake 2.0." Is he married? He sure is hot! –Catherine via e-mail.

A: The boyish-looking Gorham, who actually turns 30 in August, first clicked with fans as sensitive teen Harrison John in The WB Network comedy-drama "Popular," which co-starred actress Anel Lopez as Poppy Fresh. The couple married in 2000, while "Popular" was still on the air, and they now have a 2-year-old son.

After "Popular" ended in 2001, Gorham joined "Felicity" as Trevor O'Donnell for the final season of that show, then moved to the short-lived Showtime sci-fi series "Odyssey 5."

Often typecast as a nice boy next door, Gorham broke that mold memorably last January in a "Boomtown" guest appearance in which he and former "Doogie Howser, M.D." star Neil Patrick Harris played two amoral young filmmakers implicated in a murder. Gorham also has appeared in "Party of Five," "Buffy the Vampire Slayer," "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" and "Without a Trace," among other series.

Sorry that Gorham is taken, Catherine, but at least UPN is pleased enough with "Jake 2.0" that the network has picked up the series for a full season, despite very weak ratings.

Q: Why was "The Agency" canceled? My husband and I thought it was great! –Nancy, Tallahassee, Fla.

A: So did many older adults, but the CBS series didn't draw enough viewers age 18-49 to make it attractive to commercial sponsors, without which no show can survive, despite its arguable creative merits.

Q: As an Ellen DeGeneres fan, I wonder what happened to the original DJ who was on her talk show "The Ellen DeGeneres Show"? –Roger Jonas, San Antonio.

A: In October, the cheerful young man who bills himself as "DJ Scotty K" posted on his official Web site (http://www.djscotty k.com) a very wounded-sounding account of his dismissal from DeGeneres' daytime talker, which apparently came as part of the fine-tuning that is all too common when new shows are launched.

"I was given my 2 weeks notice last week with no reason whatsoever as to the show's need to ... replace me," read the Oct. 15 posting, which has since been removed from the site. "They've been using a DJ named Tony O. from Great Britain, and I guess he's bringing the much-needed element to the show that I guess I couldn't bring.

"All is well, though. Many incredible doors have been opened as a result of this experience."

Fans who want to follow Scotty K and his career can sign up for an e-mail newsletter at his Web site.

Josh Peck (left) and Drake Bell star in a new Nickelodeon sitcom, "Drake & Josh" Sunday, Jan. 11.

The buddy comedy is set in a blended family. Josh, 15, is intelligent, sensitive and a loner at school. Drake is handsome, a musician and a ladies' man, making the two of them the "Odd Couple" for a new generation.

Their parents were married, and now they must live together. Both young men find more benefits than drawbacks that they had realized.

Pippert To Be Featured At Mountaintop '04

Living for Christ Conferences has announced that best-selling author Rebecca Manley Pippert will be the featured speaker for its 18th annual get-away conference, Mountaintop 2004. This nonprofit, nondenominational event will be held at Wilson Lodge, Oglebay, in Wheeling, March 5-7.

Becky Pippert is an internationally acclaimed speaker whose modern classic on evangelism, Out of the Saltshaker, has sold more than half a million copies, and has been translated into over 25 languages. "She has spent over 25 years sharing her faith and helping Christians gain confidence and build competence in sharing the Good News of Jesus Christ," stated Anne Robinson, co-founder of Mountaintop. Pippert's ministry, Salt Shaker Ministries, based in Louisville, Ky., is a teaching and training ministry. She is also the author of A Heart Like His and Hope Has Its Reasons.

Pippert's conference topic is titled "Living the Glory/ Sharing the Story," looking at Jesus and the quality of life to which he calls Christians, as a model for what to believe and how to reach out to others. It will be presented in five sessions: Living the Incarnation; Facing Our Fears; Depending on God's Resources; Living the Cross; and Proclaiming the Truth.

"Becky Pippert has been described as one of the liveliest and most effective communicators in the world today. She tells wonderful personal stories and uses sound Biblical insight and plain common sense, which is both inspiring and very practical," said Robinson. "This will be her second visit to Mountaintop, and what an impact her speaking had on our attendees in 1992! Having spoken on every continent but Australia and whether speaking to a large congress or to a small group, the consensus about Becky Pippert is the same: fun and deep, light and life-changing.

"This conference is for folks who want to retreat from worldly pressures and demands, to regain much-needed strength and perspective with fellow believers. Over the past 18 years, it has always been a life-changing weekend," commented Robinson. "That would explain the longevity of this ministry. Half of our attendees each year have been to Mountaintop at least once and many have attended five or ten years or more. The blessings of the weekend seem to draw folks back."

In addition to Becky Pippert's teaching, recording artist Alicia Williamson from Mobile, Ala., will appear in concert at "A Festival in Celebration of the Power of The Lord!" Leading musical worship will be Richard Allen Farmer from Dallas. Also appearing will be an international theatrical company, Peculiar People, from Franklin,Tenn.

Several seminars will expand the weekend: "The Power of Touch" presented by Richard Allen Farmer; "The Patience and Long-suffering of Almighty God" led by New Martinsville businessman Bill Forbes; "Give 'em Away in Bundles" by Mark Elfstrand, "Morning" host, WMBI-FM, Chicago; and "How to Live Out of Grace on a Daily Basis" with Peculiar People's Charlie and Ruth Jones.

Registration fees, including all programs, two nights' lodging, and four meals, begin at $193 per person (four to a room). Early-bird discount rates are in effect until January 15. Registration brochures and information are available through Living for Christ Conferences, 169 East Thistle Place, New Martinsville, WV 26155; 304-455-5322; web site: www.living4Christ.com. The event is co-sponsored by Pittsburgh's WORD-FM.

AURORA/EGLON

QUILT WORKSHOP

A second friendship quilt workshop will be held at the Aurora Community Building this Saturday, Jan. 10, beginning at 10 a.m. The day continues through lunch. Participants are asked to bring a bag lunch. The day should conclude by 3 p.m.

Both Dorothy Dembosky, a quilt designer and artist, and Fawn Valentine, quilt historian, will be present to lead the two phases of interest. Ms. Dembosky will address color, fabric, and design choices for community quilts, and has asked that those working in this interest area bring along either drawings or fabric samples of designs/patterns, pictures, color or fabric swatches for color representations, and straight pins, glue, glue sticks, scissors, rulers, and poster board or large sheets of paper.

Ms. Valentine will be working with those on the oral history/quilt documentation project. All are asked to bring the names from quilts they own or know about, addresses or phone numbers for relatives of those names, perhaps bring the quilt, and remember to bring back the forms they were given at the previous session.

This project is being sponsored by the Aurora Community Educational Outreach Service and the Aurora Area Historical Society, with funding from West Virginia Humanities Council. Snow date will be the following Saturday, Jan. 17, and those who did not attend the first session are welcome to this one. There is no cost to attend.

Low-Impact Exercise Class Set In Accident

The Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center in Accident has slated a "Sit and Be Fit" class designed for older adults and people with chronic and/or physical limitations. The sessions will be offered at 2 p.m. every Thursday beginning Jan. 22, and will continue for 12 weeks. Participants do not need to be center members.

"Armchair exercise promotes functional fitness, a level of fitness that allows us the independence to carry out our everyday activities with ease," said Flowery Vale Health and Fitness Center director Elaine Kackley, who was recently certified in the award-winning Sit and Be Fit exercise program. "Functional fitness encompasses all of the things that most of us take for granted, such as brushing our hair, sitting and standing unassisted, walking up stairs, reaching for an item in a cabinet over our heads, or turning around to see who is calling our name. The sessions will build up specific muscles to help achieve that goal."

The program is recommended for persons who are overweight, because it provides for a workout while taking pressure off joints, knees, hips, and ankles; those with balance problems, because the exercises can be done without fear of falling; persons with osteoarthritis, hip injuries, and back problems, because the slow, gentle movements are done while seated, without putting extra strain on the joints; and those with respiratory problems, who can perform breathing and other exercises more easily and with less effort from a seated position.

The cost is $10 for the 12-week session. To register for the class or for further information, persons may call 301-746-8050.

Local Man Gets Five Years For Stalking Charge

Jerry Dean Staub, 20, Frostburg (Garrett County), pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court last Friday to stalking. A conspiracy to commit homicide charge was dismissed upon his plea.

He was charged in April 2002 by officers with the Garrett Bureau of Investigation for acts concerning a former girlfriend. She, Staub, and his alleged co-conspirators were all attending Northern High School at that time.

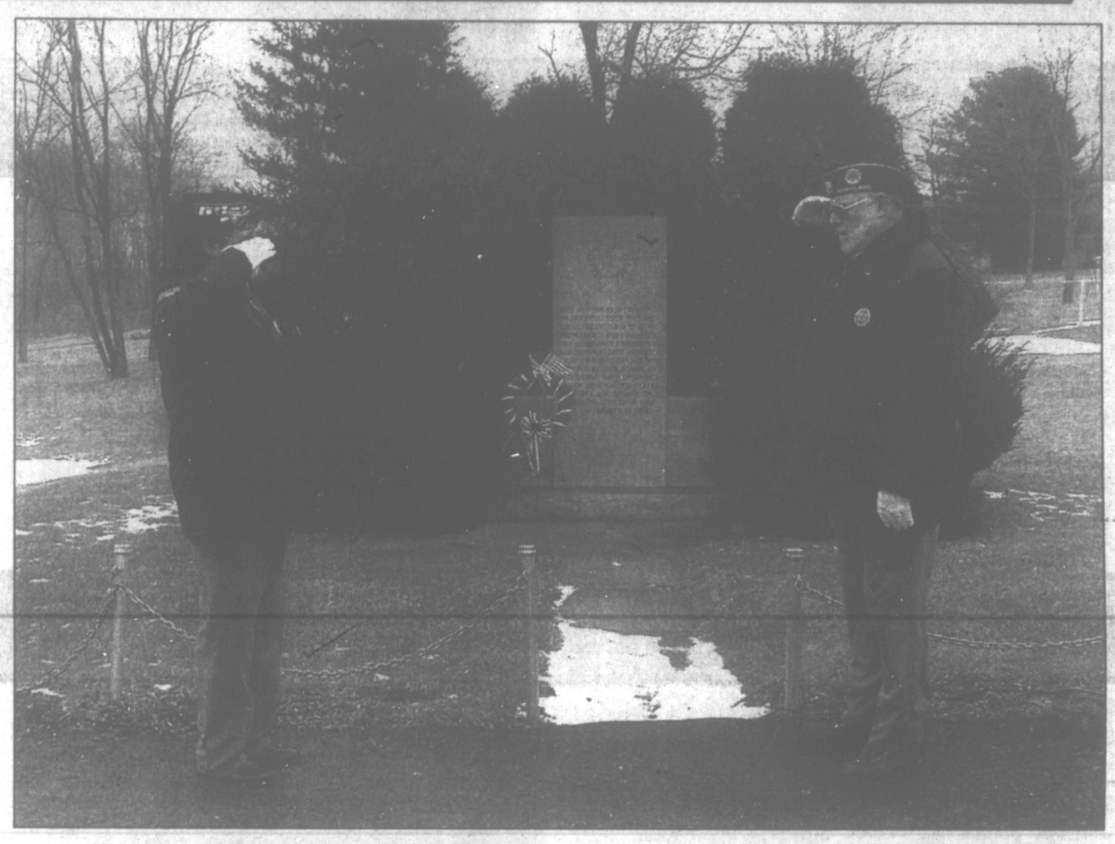
According to the state's attorney, Staub's trial had begun before a jury last Thursday, and the state and defense entered into plea discussions at the close of that day's session. Prior to the jurors entering the courtroom on Friday, however, Staub changed his plea on the stalking charge to an Alford plea of guilty.

Making this plea, notes the state's attorney, Staub did not admit his guilt, but acknowledged the likelihood of his conviction on this charge.

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Staub to five years in the Division of Correction, with all but 18 months suspended. Staub will serve the remainder of that sentence consecutively to a four-year sentence that he is currently serving.

He will also be on probation for five years following his release. Conditions of the probation include psychiatric treatment, having no contact with the victim and his alleged co-conspirators, and remaining off public school property.

"The decision to accept Staub's plea came after a substantial part of the case had been presented, and I determined the jury would have easily found reasonable doubt that there was a conspiracy," said State's Attorney Lisa Thayer Welch.



A TRAGEDY REMEMBERED – Forty years ago this week, a B-52 bomber crashed near Grantsville, killing three United States soldiers and injuring two others. The crash brought the community out in force, with residents searching in earnest for the soldiers and offering their homes and their help. The anniversary was marked with a solemn ceremony Tuesday, during which the history-making event was recounted. William Frickey is pictured as he salutes Past Post Commander Roger Resh during the ceremony. See feature article below. Photo by Jeremy Carr.

40th Anniversary Of B-52 Bomber Crash In Garrett County Observed

by Jeremy Carr

In the midst of the Cold War, a war that involved several countries and was filled with apocalyptic mind-games that resulted in a national, nuclear-bomb-induced paranoia, an event took place in the local area in 1964 that brought this rather mysterious war close to home.

On a routine flight from Westover Field in Massachusetts, headquarters of the U.S. Eighth Air Force, to Turner Air Force Base, Albany, Ga., a B-52 bomber carrying two 24-megaton nuclear bombs crashed near Grantsville.

Its occupants, five men, ejected from the plane, falling to various locations in the western Maryland/Salisbury, Pa., region. Two survived and three were killed.

Monday, Jan. 13, 1964, featured a typically brutal Garrett County snowstorm, with temperatures well below zero and a bone-chilling wind. While that in itself was not out of the ordinary, the events of that early morning were far from usual in terms of the area.

Around 2 a.m., residents recalled brilliant red and orange lights and a boom that some compared to that of an oncoming tornado. This was enough to raise a great deal of curiosity, but no one imagined what would transpire in the days to come.

The Boeing's B-52 bomber was an impressive machine and a crucial part of the United States' wartime arsenal. Stretching end to end 156 feet and wing tip to wing tip 185 feet, the bomber had an incredible appearance. There was, though, a problem with this aircraft. The combination of its 4,000-square-foot size and a massive four-story tail made it an easy target for forceful turbulence, which put stress on the entire structure. The Air Force was well aware of this, having seen three of these planes go down, as well as witnessing test flights with the craft being purposely flown into heavy turbulence and consequently having its tail ripped off, but, for whatever reason, nothing, was done.

This fact, however, was not enough to deter five brave men from fulfilling their duties as American soldiers.

Robert Payne, 41, of Tulsa, Okla., who worked at a staff job of the 484th Bomb Wing, was told that he had the responsibility of assembling a group of soldiers for a flight. One particular B-52, designated Buzz One Four, had just arrived in Massachusetts, having just came back from a stop in Spain, where it had to be roughly patched up as a result of mechanical problems, and was needed back at Turner. VFDs Respond To Barn Fire On Bishoff Rd.

Firefighters from five local volunteer fire departments were summoned Wednesday evening when fire was discovered in a barn located along Bishoff Road off State Rt. 42.

Units and personnel from the Deep Creek VFC, and the Friendsville, Accident, Bittinger, and Oakland VFDs were called to 401 Bishoff Road at 5:26 p.m. after fire was discovered in a barn owned by Jack and Robert Rodeheaver.

According to a spokesperson for the Deep Creek VFC, the flames were contained primarily in hay and straw that was stored in the barn, and there was "very little" structural damage. The cause was believed to be accidental and electrical in nature.

Also responding to the scene were the Northern Rescue Squad, the Maryland State Police, Garrett County roads crew, and Allegheny Power Co. There were no injuries reported.

Placed on stand-by status were Addison, Pa., VFD for Friendsville, Accident VFD for Deep Creek, and Grantsville VFD for Bittinger.

Units remained on the scene for several hours dousing the burning bales of hay.

Western Marylanders Set To Attend Annual PACE Event In Annapolis

Garrett and Allegany county officials and businesses have been busy preparing presentations and displays for next week's PACE (Positive Attitudes Change Everything) event in Annapolis, slated Thursday and Friday, Jan. 22 and 23, at the Loews Hotel.

First held during the legislative session in 1977, the PACE event is an initiative of Mountain Maryland, an organization made up of officials, business persons, and others who are interested in the betterment of Allegany and Garrett counties.

The purpose of the get-together is to foster better relationships between those who make the laws in Annapolis and those who live and work in western Maryland. It also gives Garrett and Allegany county residents an opportunity to present their projects, concerns, and accomplishments to state officials.

"Everyone needs to take advantage of it," said Garrett County commissioner Fred Holliday about the event. It can also be an indication of the amount of support that the two counties have from officials, based on the number who attend, he noted.

Holliday and Commissioner Dave Beard will both be in attendance. Other Garrett County officials slated to be there include Peggy Jamison, Cheryl DeBerry, Meg Ellis, and Frank Shap, Economic Development; Rodney Glotfelty, Health Department; Dr. Wendell Teets, Board of Education; and Mark Tonkovich, Public Utilities director.

Tonkovich will be trying to get as much funding as possible for several county water and sewer projects costing an estimated $47 million. "I don't think we'll get it all," he said.

The water projects include those for McHenry, Mtn. Lake Park, Crellin Table Rock, Keyser's Ridge,

Local Physicians To Advocate In Annapolis For Tort Reform

As a show of serious concern for this year's dramatic increase in medical liability insurance premiums, several Garrett County physicians will be traveling to Annapolis to participate in the "Rally for Change." Sponsored by MedChi, the Maryland State Medical Society, the rally will give physicians an opportunity to meet with legislators to educate them on the malpractice crisis and how it will affect local physicians and their patients.

Area physicians, realizing the participation in the rally will require that they close their offices for a day, feel very strongly that this public show of concern is vital to the survival of the local medical community. Physicians in Pennsylvania and West Virginia have held similar events as the medical liability insurance problem has become a nationwide crisis.

The American Medical Association (AMA) has been quoted as saying "our nation's medical liability system is broken," as evidenced by the skyrocketing medical liability premiums – $200,000 a year or more in some high-risk specialties. This crisis is threatening access to care for patients in states without liability reform. Maryland is one of the states without malpractice reforms in place.

Statistics show that medical students are avoiding the specialty areas such as obstetrics and surgery which pose greater risk of lawsuits.

A spokesperson for MedChi stated that every American is paying the price for this country's liability crisis. Escalating jury awards and the high cost of defending against lawsuits, even the frivolous ones are driving the premium increases, creating devastating results for patients. The AMA states it has always felt that those who have been harmed by serious negligence should be compensated; however, the AMA also feels that the current system has failed patients. The AMA now lists liability reform as its top legislative priority.

Many states are addressing the crisis with reforms. A California law known as MICRA (Medical Injury Compensation Reform Act)

Soldier With GC Roots Appointed Top Enlisted Man

Kenneth O. Preston, whose father's side of his family hails from the Dry Run area of Garrett County, is being sworn in today as Sergeant Major of the Army (SMA), the top enlisted position a soldier can attain. As the Army's 13th SMA, Preston's responsibilities will include serving as the Army Chief of Staff's personal advisor on all enlisted-related matters, particularly in areas affecting soldier training, noncommissioned officer leader development, and well-being for families.

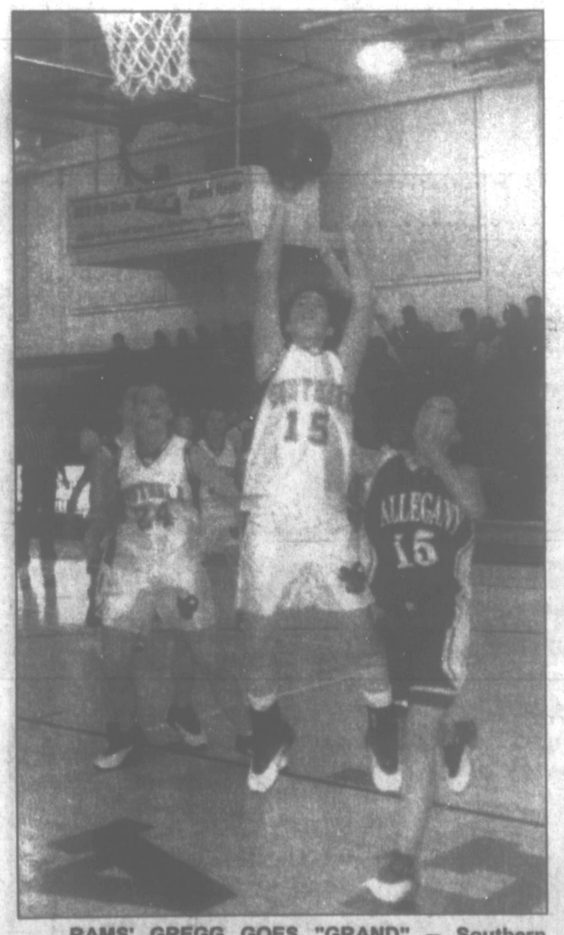
An Allegany County native, Preston, 46, is the son of Oscar L. and Betty Preston of Mount Savage. His father was raised in the Dry Run area, and a number of the Preston family's members still reside in Garrett County. Many of them are attending today's ceremony along with family and friends from Allegany County and beyond.

Preston entered the Army in 1975 and has served in every enlisted leadership position from tank commander to command sergeant major. Prior to his selection as SMA he served a duel role as command sergeant major for V Corps in Heidelberg, Germany, and as command sergeant major for Combined Joint Task Force 7 in Baghdad, Iraq. From fall of 2002 to this autumn, Preston spent most of his time in either Kuwait or Iraq.

In his new post as SMA, Preston will travel extensively throughout the world observing Army training and operations. His duties will include listening to concerns and providing feedback and recommendations to Army and Department of Defense leadership regarding improvements in the quality of life; serving on a wide variety of councils and boards that make decisions affecting enlisted soldiers and their families; and routinely testifying before Congress.

Preston's awards and decorations include the Legion of Merit, one Bronze Star, four Meritorious Service medals, six Army Commendation medals, three Army Achievement medals, a Southwest Asia Service Ribbon, Liberation of Kuwait Ribbon (Saudi Arabia), Kosovo Medal, NATO Medal, and Joint Meritorious Unit Award.

Preston and his wife have three children.



RAMS' GREGG GOES "GRAND" – Southern High School guard Robbin Gregg is pictured as she scores her 1,000th career point last night during the Ram girls' win over Allegany. The game was immediately halted, and Gregg was presented with the ball as the crowd, which included Emily Friend, Alco's assistant coach and one of three other SHS girls to record 1,000 points, gave the senior a standing ovation. "Robbin earned this through her dedication, hard work, and absolute love for the game," longtime Southern coach Don Stemple commented, as Gregg attributed her success to her "great teammates." VALLEY SONG* by Athol Fugard will be presented next week at Our Town Theatre in Oakland. Directed by Jane Avery, the South African tale has been reset in an unnamed town in Garrett County. The tale centers on the life of Abraam Jonkers, an aging farmer devoted to the few acres of land that have sustained his family for generations, and on the life of his granddaughter Veronica. While Abraam's focus is on his land and the small miracles it produces, Veronica's dreams include much bigger miracles that lie beyond working and appreciating the land. Rather than cultivating plants, she wants to nurture her own growth. Portraying the roles are Chelsea Davis, a junior at Southern High School, as Veronica, and Richard Hill, who plays not only Abraam, but also the author. Performances are scheduled for January 22, 23, and 24, each of which will begin at 8 p.m. Reservations may be made by telephoning the theatre at 301-334-5640. All tickets are $5.

Library To Be Closed Jan. 23

All branches of the Ruth Enlow Library of Garrett County will be closed on Friday, Jan. 23, for an upgrade to the library's computer circulation system. The library will be open for its regularly scheduled hours on Saturday, Jan. 24.

Oakland Man Pleads Guilty To Uttering

An Oakland man was handed two six-month jail sentences, to be served concurrently, during a recent Garrett County District Court proceeding after he pleaded guilty to charges involving a spate of bad check writing.

Christopher Acheson Beitzel, 23, pleaded guilty to uttering bad checks and conspiring to utter bad checks and was handed the jail term along with an order to pay a total of $416 in restitution to the Arrowhead Market. Judge Ralph Burnett presided at the trial. Beitzel appeared in court [illegible] for four separate criminal hearings on a variety of charges filed over the summer by the Garrett County Sheriff's Office. He had been arrested twice in July and once in September for allegedly stealing personal checks and cashing them at area businesses, mainly Arrowhead.

In addition to the two aforementioned charges that each drew a guilty plea, Beitzel had also been charged with a total of 13 counts of misdemeanor theft, 11 counts of forgery, eight counts of uttering, three counts of conspiring to utter, two counts of conspiring to commit misdemeanor theft, and one count each of felony theft and conspiring to commit forgery. Both of those charges were not prosecuted by the state attorney's office.

Sheriff's deputies had also jailed Beitzel in July for allegedly taking a car from a Westernport repair shop and subsequently selling it to a junkyard for cash. Those charges of unlawful taking of a motor vehicle and misdemeanor theft were also not prosecuted.

In other District Court news, a Preston County, W.Va., man was sentenced after pleading guilty to a drug charge.

Barry Allen Bias, 42, Kingwood, received a 60-day sentence, all but six days of which was suspended, and was fined $500 and placed on one year of supervised probation. Bias's July arrest by sheriff's deputies stemmed from a traffic stop on Route 39, during which a drug dog scan led to a vehicle search that uncovered a bag of marijuana and a smoking pipe hidden in the cab of his pickup truck. An additional charge of possession of drug paraphernalia was not prosecuted.

Roger Brian Clatterbuck, 34, Swanton, pleaded guilty to marijuana possession and driving while under the influence (DUI) and was handed a probation before judgment (PBJ) ruling on both charges, along with a $455 fine and one year of supervised probation. A PBJ ruling means that the state can recall the case at any point in the next 365 days if the probation agreement is violated, to impose a guilty verdict along with the respective penalties.

The charges resulted from an August incident investigated by Maryland State Police troopers, who determined that Clatterbuck had knocked down a light pole on the entrance ramp from Lower New Germany Road to Interstate 68 and then immediately fled the scene. A search of his vehicle uncovered marijuana and a smoking pipe in his car. A second count of marijuana possession and numerous traffic-related offenses were not prosecuted.

Jody Ray Reall, 29, Parsons, W.Va., pleaded guilty to second-degree assault and received a PBJ, a $100 fine, one day of unsupervised probation, and an order to complete 20 hours of community service. His September arrest by sheriff's deputies followed a domestic-related assault in the parking lot of Browning's Foodland, during which he threw a woman to the ground in an attempt to take money from her purse.

All charges faced by Jeremy Alan Groves, 28, Oakland, and Lawrence Wayne Ford, 44, Mtn. Lake Park, were placed onto the stet docket. A stet ruling means that the cases can be recalled for trial at any point within the next 365 days if the state deems such action necessary.

Sheriff's deputies had arrested the pair in June on charges of disorderly conduct and failure to obey a lawful order, and also charged Groves with resisting arrest, after they refused to turn down loud music at a Mtn. Lake Park residence. Both men were accused of arguing with the deputies, and the charging statement alleged that Groves had swung his arms as he was being handcuffed.

RDC Notes Area's Recent Economic Accomplishments

Initiation of high tunnel agriculture, opening a youth farm market, and developing agri-tourism are the projects accomplished by the Rural Development Coalition since its inception in 2001, according to a spokesperson.

A grassroots organization composed of representatives from Garrett County and neighboring Preston County, W.Va., the organization seeks to increase economic opportunities in the rural community. RDC chairperson Dave Moran said that the members met recently to review successes and preview challenges for the coming year.

"We're a unique group in that we cross county and state boundaries and are endorsed by the commissioners of Garrett and Preston counties," Moran stated. "Last year we hosted an inter-county luncheon meeting with the commissioners to discuss the goals of our organization."

Moran said the RDC is especially proud of the Maryland State Tourism Impact Award it earned in 2002 for the Garrett-Preston farm tour program and economic conference.

"We published 'Visit Our Working Farms; Share Our Rural Heritage,' a brochure featuring 16 farms businesses, to bring additional income to our agricultural businesses," explained the chairperson. "We also produced a children's coloring/workbook as an educational piece about local agriculture," he said.

In March the RDC will sponsor its third annual conference on rural enterprises. "We work with Garrett College, the Garrett County Chamber of Commerce, offices of economic development in both counties, and local businesses to bring speakers who will educate and motivate us as rural business owners," said Moran.

For information on the RDC or the March conference, persons may call Garrett County agriculture marketing specialist Cheryl DeBerry at 301-334-6960.

Icy Roadway To Blame For Vehicle Mishap

Icy road conditions were to blame for a single vehicle accident Tuesday morning along Lynndale Road near Doc Bernard Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

April L. Teets, 17, Oakland, was operating a 2002 Hyundai northbound on Lynndale Road when she applied the brake after a deer crossed in her path. The vehicle began to slide out of control on the icy road, police said.

Teets and her passenger, Michelle L. Kitzmiller, 17, Oakland, were transported by family members to Garrett County memorial Hospital, where they were treated for minor injuries.

No charges were filed in the 8:30 a.m. incident.

Maryland Senate Republicans Open Session With Protest

by Stephanie Tracy
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Maryland Senate Republicans began the 2004 General Assembly Wednesday with a protest against a rule change that would diminish their power to block legislation – they abstained from the vote to re-elect Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr. to his 17th term as Senate president.

Senate Minority Leader J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset, said alterations to Senate Rule 77, which regulates extended debate, would quash minority opinion, and that the decision to abstain came only after lengthy discussion with Miller, D-Calvert. If approved, the new rules would require three-fifths of the Senate to vote to end a filibuster instead of the current two-thirds.

"We have a significant minority that is anti-tax, pro-family values, and we fear that changes to the rules would relegate the minority voice to the margins," Stoltzfus said.

Sen. Richard Colburn, R-Dorchester, said he was ready to defend the rule.

"Rule 77 is dear to my heart, and I need to fight with every ounce of energy I have to keep Rule 77 in place," Colburn said.

Senate President Pro-tem Ida G. Ruben, D-Montgomery, called the Republican abstention "unfortunate." Ruben was unanimously elected to her fifth term as president pro-tem.

After a lively exchange over proper procedures, the Senate delayed the vote on changes to Rule 77 until Thursday. In addition, the Senate will consider the fate of a series of bills vetoed by Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr., at the end of the last session, the most prominent being the Maryland Energy Efficiency Standards Act.

Despite the political tensions, Senate and House leadership called for a spirit of cooperation at the start of the 2004 session, but significant challenges could make that difficult. During its 90-day session, the Legislature must close a more than $700 million budget gap and determine funding for education reforms, among other contentious issues.

In the House, Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel, told the delegates the new session offered "an opportunity to redefine government and to focus our resources on the values and priorities that are most important to Maryland citizens."

Busch urged delegates to address the "controversial issues in a manner that does not personalize the debate" and to "respect the institution to which we were elected to serve."

Busch was largely responsible for stopping Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich's slots proposal during the last General Assembly session. Tensions remained high during the interim among Busch, Miller and Ehrlich over the governor's proposal to install slots at racetracks and use the money to fund the Thornton educational reforms and other projects.

The Republican governor was flanked by his wife Kendel and Lt. Gov. Michael Steele as he welcomed lawmakers back to the State House.

Ehrlich rejected an implication made by Busch that this second year of his term was the most important.

"Every year is important," Ehrlich said. "This is just another important year...of a four-year important term."

Other dignitaries present for the start of the session included Montgomery County Executive Douglas Duncan, Prince George's County Executive Jack Johnson, Maryland U.S. Sen. Barbara Mikulski, D-Baltimore, and Baltimore Mayor Martin O'Malley.

In his remarks to the Senate, Ehrlich encouraged lawmakers to "agree when we can agree, and disagree agreeably...and create the kind of environment [this administration] has tried to bring back to Annapolis."

While lawmakers and family members found their seats for the start of the session, about 40 anti-abortion protesters gathered outside on Lawyers' Mall with signs and posters of aborted fetuses. They were there, they said, to support a push by Sen. Janet Greenip, R-Anne Arundel, to regulate Maryland abortion clinics.

Members of Defend Life, a Washington-area anti-abortion group, said they wanted to show legislators what abortion looks like and encourage them to vote for Greenip's bill.

Maryland law requires that abortion providers be licensed doctors, but it does not set standards for abortion facilities.

"There are many more [abortions] we don't know about because there's no law," said Jack Ames, director of Defend Life.

Greenip said she was grateful for the support, but did not want to comment on the protest because her bill is "about taking care of the women."

ALUMNUS VISITS BLOOMINGTON – Senior Airman Joseph Boyd Burns of the United States Air Force, son of Larry and Karen Burns of Swanton, recently visited Bloomington School. He had attended Bloomington, so he returned to present the students, faculty, and Student Council Association with a United States flag that had flown over his Air Force base in Iraq during the four months he was stationed there. He is a ground radar specialist and is currently stationed in Germany. The flag is on display in the front hallway of the school. Pictured above accepting the flag on behalf of Bloomington's Student Council is Alex Barnard, council president, along with the other council members. Health Dept. Notes First Rabies Case

Environmental Health Services of the Garrett County Health Department has reported the first laboratory confirmed case of rabies for 2004 in Garrett County. The county had nine positively tested rabies cases in 2003, all involving raccoons.

The incident occurred Thursday, Jan. 8, in the Turkey Neck area, when a raccoon attacked an eight-week-old puppy and then was shot by the property owner. The raccoon was sent to the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene Rabies Laboratory in Baltimore and was confirmed to have rabies. The puppy, too young to have a rabies shot, had to be euthanized. The owners of the dog were careful not to be exposed to the rabies virus.

The public is reminded, as in this case, to avoid contact with pets for two hours after an incident with a wild animal. In addition, it is also important not to handle the wild animal.

Pet owners are urged to verify that their pets, 3 months and older, are vaccinated against the rabies virus. The year's first Health Department sponsored rabies clinics will not take place until May.

Persons with questions regarding rabies may call Environmental Health Services at either 301-334-7760 or 301-895-3111 for information.

State Receives "A" In Standards, Accountability

Maryland's acclaimed system of standards and accountability gained another honor last week, receiving its fourth straight "A" grade from Education Week, a national education newspaper.

Maryland joins New York as the only two states in the nation to receive the top grade for four years running. Education Week bestowed the grade as part of its 2004 "Quality Counts" report, released on Jan. 7.

"We are pleased that Education Week continues to recognize the strength of our system of assessments, despite the changes that we made in order to comply with No Child Left Behind," said Nancy S. Grasmick, state school superintendent. Maryland has replaced the MSPAP exam with the Maryland School Assessment, in order to provide individual student report cards and accelerate scoring.

"Quality Counts," now in its eighth year, assesses state progress in a variety of area key to classroom success. Most of the state-level data gathered by Education Week comes from a policy survey of the states conducted in the summer and fall of 2003. In addition, the publication draws on state-level data from such organizations as the U.S. Department of Education, the Education Commission of the States, the American Federation of Teachers, and the Center for Education Reform.

Joseph Ottawa Friend was arrested for driving on a suspended license and possession of a controlled dangerous substance, which was found following a sheriff's K-9 search of the 1986 Mazda.

Physicians Need Support...

The Maryland legislative session opened yesterday in Annapolis, and as always there are a number of important issues and, in some cases, crises that desperately need to be addressed by our lawmakers. Currently there cannot be many that are any more important than medical liability and the state's tort system, which if not addressed will soon result in a severe shortage of physicians.

More than 1,500 Maryland physicians, including several from Garrett County, are planning to close their offices for the day next Wednesday, Jan. 21, so they can travel to Annapolis and attempt to convince lawmakers just how dire the situation is for them. Premiums for medical malpractice went up another 28% on average this year, following similar jumps over the past several years. Some specialists are now paying six figures annually for their coverage.

Many physicians are now limiting their practices or simply getting out of the business, by retiring early or moving on to some other career. Medical students are shying away from the specialty areas, particularly obstetrics/gynecology, the field for which the malpractice insurance premiums are among the highest. In fact, of all the 2003 graduates of Baltimore's two medical schools, only one selected OB/GYN as a specialty. Just who, 10 years from now, is going to be delivering babies?

Not only does this crisis drive up the cost of medical care and, consequently, medical insurance, but it also impedes the practice of good medicine. Because of the ever looming cloud of litigation, a physician is virtually compelled to order every medical test in the book, no matter how expensive they may be, just to try to cover all the bases to avoid being sued. This is known as "defensive medicine," and there is not a doctor worth his or her salt who believes that defensive medicine is good medicine.

Skyrocketing insurance premiums for physicians are particularly hard on those who practice in rural areas. As local surgeon Dona Alvarez points out in an article today (see front page), those who practice in Garrett County generally provide care for lower rates, and they must also bear all of the expenses for operating a private practice — purchasing and maintaining, or renting, an office or building, paying employee salaries and utilities, and purchasing all of their own equipment and supplies, all on top of their exploding malpractice premiums. Many who practice in metropolitan areas do not have all of these costs, plus they tend to be paid more for their services.

What specifically should be done by the legislature? Shortening the statute of limitations that physicians — particularly OB/GYN doctors — currently face, capping the amount of damages that can be awarded in malpractice cases, and somehow making litigation attorneys vulnerable would be a good start. Under our current system, lawyers have virtually nothing to lose and everything to gain in filing medical malpractice lawsuits. They need to be made accountable — no, liable — when they bring an unjustified malpractice suit against a physician.

We strongly urge local residents to join our doctors in this effort to convince the Maryland legislature to reform the tort system. The very future of health care depends upon it. Contact information can be found at the end of the aforementioned article that appears on the front page of today's paper.

CAREER CHOICES OF A 5-YEAR-OLD

by Beth L. Bowers

Growing up I remember stating all the different career choices I had in mind. I wanted to be an archeologist like Indiana Jones, work with Shamu at Sea World, and travel to the moon on a space shuttle, among many other things. But the only difference is, I don't recall being in kindergarten when I started deciding what course my professional life would take. Tyler has already crossed several job titles off his list and he isn't even 5½ yet.

When he was 4, he proclaimed he was going to be a professional soccer player. Now, this isn't because he was on a team or had even played with a group using any official form of the rules; this decision was solely based on me telling him I thought he was doing a good job when we were in the back yard kicking a soccer ball back and forth. I've never played the sport, but I did find it impressive that he could run relatively quickly and kick the ball without tripping or missing the ball. Seeing his enthusiasm, I thought maybe we should sign him up for a team next season. Well, that thought didn't last long.

I took my two boys and two of my nieces to their soccer games one day in October. Tyler was very excited to see exactly what happens on the field, but the results of that day weren't exactly what we expected. It just so happened that the day of their games was the worst weather of the season. Talk about miserable. We had layers upon layers, chairs, umbrellas, and blankets. The wind was howling, the snow and rain were falling, and my boys were in tears.

Trying to act tough, Tyler whimpered from under the blanket, "I changed my mind. I don't ever want to play soccer." I tried to convince him it wasn't always this cold and miserable, but he still didn't believe me. He decided at that moment, he only wanted to be a fireman.

Earlier this month we had a furnace problem that scared me to death. Smoke alarms waking you up at 1:30 a.m. are scary enough even without the sight of a basement full of smoke. Brian quickly assessed the situation and got it under control. By that time I had the boys at the kitchen door in their boots and coats ready to run to the car. After a brief discussion, we decided everything was fine and I took the boys back to bed. I have been sleeping even lighter than normal since then. It really shook Tyler up too, but in a different way.

The other night he told me he didn't want to be a fireman because he doesn't like waking up in the middle of the night for anything more than a quick trip to the bathroom. He asked if policeman and ambulance drivers worked at night too.

"Well I guess I'll have to pick a job that is only in the day," Tyler said. He began quizzing me on what jobs were during the day.

He also crossed off any jobs involving speeches, because "they are boring and last forever," and jobs at night because he "wouldn't want to disturb" his sleep.

The next day a friend of Tyler's and Carter's had a birthday party at the bowling alley. They both bowled surprisingly well, considering it was their maiden voyage at Par-Matt Lanes. Of the five boys there, Carter – the youngest of the bunch – bowled a 76, and Tyler bowled 75. By the fifth frame, Tyler decided that be wanted to be a bowler when he grew up.

So after a day of bowling, he watched a show about searching for dinosaur bones on the Discovery Channel. Tyler has been totally fascinated with dinosaurs since he was about 3, so when he said he wanted to dig up dinosaurs bones, I thought that made perfect sense. So this week, he aspires to be a bowler who is an archeologist on the side. But that could change next week or so. Stay tuned.

To the Editor:

As we start a new year it's a good time for a change in the Garrett County property tax system. The county has been having a great increase in property tax money due to the condos, town houses, and very expensive homes being built. We have been paying out too much money in taxes on our homes. The assessment value, along with the property tax rate, needs lowered, so each homeowner can see at least a $200 drop in the total, bottom-line amount we pay out of our pocket this year, with the chance of another reduction next year.

There has been growth each year, making more money, yet we keep paying out more money for property tax. Too much money is wasted in too many ways.

Joe Carr
Friendsville

To the Editor:

This is in response to Cynthia Hale's letter in last week's edition of The Republican. I am not here to say whether your brother-in-law is guilty or not, since I don't know the charges that are against him. I am here to say that the same injustices go on everywhere, not just Garrett County. You can sit behind your newspaper and lay blame at others' feet, but that isn't going to get you anywhere, or you can get up and do something about it. Start gathering evidence to prove your brother-in-law's innocence, then appeal his case. That's just one place you can start. Where there is a will, there truly is a way, but you have to be willing to search for that way.

I've lived in four different states, but was raised primarily in Garrett County. If there is one thing I've learned, the injustice happens everywhere, so stop blaming the county you live in and start blaming those whom you helped vote into office!

Sincerely,
Wendy Jones

To the Editor:

If holiday gifts are a barometer, then technology is becoming more important than ever. With digital cameras, photo-taking cellular phones, the newest, smallest, fanciest laptops, and other technologic innovations, we are reminded how powerful information technology is in all our lives and how essential our own competency with the technology has become. Maryland's community colleges are keenly aware of this fact and, with the help of Senator Barbara A. Mikulski and Congressman Ben Cardin along with Maryland's Congressional Delegation, have launched an unprecedented effort to instill information technology (IT) in our business, health care, government, and educational programs.

Through a congressional award of nearly $2.2 million, community colleges are embarking on leading-edge IT innovations, including collaborative curriculum development in emerging technologies; a new web site as part of a statewide marketing campaign; matching equipment grants to support wireless curricula; and initiation of IT curriculum forums on topics like cybersecurity. Senator Mikulski and her colleagues are enabling community colleges to continue to respond readily to changing workforce needs, to serve their local communities, and to provide high-quality, affordable and accessible educational programs. And the award acknowledges that our IT curricula, both credit and non-credit, are particularly suited to industry's demands in a fast-changing and fragmented IT field.

Maryland's community colleges are hard at work to ensure that the award is used across the state for every community college's IT enhancement. We understand that the delegation is also working to find funds in 2004 to help us focus on integrating technology into healthcare worker training in ways that will serve Maryland's nursing and allied health needs and provide models of best practice for other states, and we are grateful.

Thank you, Senator Mikulski, for your leadership! And thank you, Senator Sarbanes, and Representatives Bartlett, Cardin, Cummings, Gilchrest, Hoyer, Ruppersberger, and Van Hollen!

Sincerely,
Dr. Anthony G. (Tony) Kinkel
Executive Director
Maryland Association of Community Colleges

To the Editor:

On December 21, 2003, we had a fire at our home on Chestnut Grove Road and lost everything. Thank God no one was injured, not even the brave firemen who came to help. Words can't express the gratitude we feel to those men and women, and also to the men who left the Chestnut Grove Church service to help the firefighters.

We would like to thank the American Red Cross who was there before the firefighters left the scene, and thanks also to Warm the Children for their donation.

We would also like to thank each and every person who came to our aid with clothing, Christmas gifts for our two girls, Ashley and Katelyn, for your gifts of food and money. Thanks also to everyone who helped with the removal of debris from our burned out home.

We would like to thank each and every one of you by name, but that would be impossible since some gave anonymously and we wouldn't want to miss a single one. Each and every gift or act was so deeply appreciated. May God richly bless each and every one who gave, who helped in any way, or just said a prayer for us during this time. Thank you all from the bottom of our hearts.

We would also like to thank our parents, Arnold and Fay Tichnell, for letting us share their home with them until we get a place of our own, and Al and Edie Harvey for letting us use their home for storage.

has helped California achieve a more stable marketplace and lower premium increases over the years. The MICRA law places a cap on the amount of money that can be awarded for pain and suffering as a result of a lawsuit.

"The monetary stress of malpractice increases of up to 50% in some specialties are especially hard on solo practitioners," said Dr. Dona Alvarez, local surgeon. "Most of our doctors in Garrett County are in solo practice, and malpractice increases this year were 28%. We are 100% responsible for our employee salaries, health insurance, rent, utilities, soft goods, and malpractice.

"This malpractice insurance increase translates to a direct impact on our office's ability to supply healthcare in a rural setting. Larger practices in the city can absorb this cost more easily. This is a direct threat to rural medicine's viability as we already, on average, earn much less than our metropolitan colleagues.

"This is why everybody should contact their appropriate state legislators and tell them they want malpractice reform. It's for all of us."

development in the lake area.

ERM will also be soliciting the public's input into the study process, and a public forum for citizens to express ideas and concerns about growth and development issues in the lake area is slated for 8 p.m., Monday, Jan. 26, in Room 314 of the Continuing Education Building at Garrett College. ERM consultants will be on hand at the meeting to accept public comments.

Such comments may address, but are not limited to:

- disappearing lakefront commercial uses;
- residential density throughout all zoning classifications;
- residential uses consuming the lake's Town Center Zone;
- the impact of vacation rental units and the growing ratio of residential units used in this fashion;
- definition of "family" (for planning purposes);
- the "grandfathering" provision for substandard lots;
- the use of temporary structures (e.g., trailers or tents);
- evaluation of all parking standards in the zoning ordinance; and,
- changes in land use in the immediate vicinity around the Deep Creek watershed.

The DCW Economic Growth and Planning Analysis Study commenced last month as ERM growth management specialists conducted an initial review of existing Garrett County planning documents and ordinances at its Annapolis office in order to begin identifying growth issues and development problems. ERM has scheduled a total of six meetings with the task force, and two public forums, with the second to come in September when the consultant presents a draft report in a public session.

The consultant's study is expected to continue into November, at which point ERM will present a final report to the board of county commissioners that contains suggested solutions to those issues. The commissioners will be making the final decisions on which suggestions to implement, and how to do so.

WHERE THEY FELL – Three United States soldiers lost their lives in Garrett County 40 years ago when the B-52 bomber in which they were passengers crashed near Grantsville. The tragedy occurred on Jan. 13, 1964. Killed in the crash were Major Robert Payne, whose marker, pictured above left, is located at Poplar Lick, where his body was found. Major Robert Townley died in the New Germany area, where a marker for him now stands, shown above right. Pictured below is the marker for Sgt. Melvin Wooten, who died near Salisbury, Pa.

diers were going to have to pick it up and make the delivery. These chosen men were Thomas McCormick, 42, of Yawkey, W.Va., Parker Peedin, 29, of Smithfield, N.C., Melvin Wooten, 27, of Rapid City, S.D., and Robert Townley, 42, of Gadsden, Ala.

Payne only happened to be on the plane after one assigned man was stuck on alert duty. Needing a replacement, Payne himself volunteered.

The flight was uneventful at first. But then the harsh winter storm began to take its toll on the plane, whipping wind attacking the aircraft from all directions. Peedin later described the turbulence as the most severe he had ever encountered.

The gusts tore off the tail of the plane, making the craft highly unbalanced. The tail section took with it several chunks of the plane. It was time to bail out.

McCormick made the call to evacuate the rapidly dismantling bomber, and the men did as they were instructed, each of them ejecting out into the blizzard.

After falling through the biting cold air and reaching the earth, McCormick found himself in the snow-covered woods near Meadow Mountain. He made shelter with his parachute and did what he could to stay warm. By morning, he began trekking through the wilderness, eventually coming to the Stone House Farm along Route 40, where Robert and Kathleen Warnick resided.

McCormick was greeted at the front door by Mr. Warnick just returning from the barn. He asked the soldier if he was lost.

"Not anymore," McCormick replied. He was then treated to a hot cup of coffee and a warm meal.

Months after the crash, McCormick and his wife would return to the Warnick house with gifts for their children.

Peedin, once landed, made refuge on a farm just south of Grantsville. He knew he was lost and came to the conclusion that the best thing to do was to stay put, and that he did.

By dawn, he could hear the sounds of planes circling above him. He tried to communicate through the use of a hand-held radio, but was met with only silence. As the day went on, Peedin came up with the ingenious idea to flash a small mirror to a passing plane with the hope that the sun would reflect off it enough to signal the aircraft. It worked. Moments later, Peedin was met by four volunteer searchers.

Ironically enough, the rescuers seemed to be more exhausted than Peedin, who invited them to rest by his fire before heading to the helicopter that was located more than a mile away. Once out of the wilderness, Peedin then paid a visit to Ray and Ercell Jenkins, who lived nearby. There he was given a glass of water, and then another after saying how good the first tasted. Jenkins kept the glass.

Wooten, after first slamming into a piece of the shattered plane and injuring himself, landed alive in an area near Salisbury, Pa., known as the Dye Factory field. The town, safety, and shelter were just two miles away, but unfortunately what lay in between was the frozen Casselman River.

Payne, like the others, managed to successfully eject from the plane. After the treacherous decent, he found himself several miles south of Grantsville. With his parachute stuck in a tree, Payne began hiking through the woods, completely lost and terribly cold. His means of survival are not known, but footsteps indicated that he began going in one direction, and then another, eventually falling victim to the freezing temperatures. His body was discovered in creek near what is known as Poplar Lick Run on the 15th.

Townley never successfully strapped himself in for a proper ejection and consequently came down to earth still trapped inside a part of the mangled aircraft. He would be found as so Tuesday evening.

Jesse and Mary Frances Green, who lived in an old farmhouse on Big Savage Mountain, were awakened by the thunderous roar of the plane, its engines still running as it plummeted to the ground. Mr. Green immediately ran toward the downed plane, following what he described as a dull, red glow. He recalled that the wreckage was burning and that the heat was causing the plane's ammunition to fire off. There were two large sections nearby, one appearing to be the tail section, strewn upon the ground. While most of the plane was concentrated in the Big Savage Mountain area, pieces of the plane debris were scattered about the local area, including the emergency door discovered by Frank Robeson, a farmer in the Avilton area. Miscellaneous pieces are still being found to this day.

Though McCormick and Peedin had reached safety and treatment at the Cumberland Memorial Hospital, the fate of the other three passengers was not known for certain. Once the word was out that a plane had gone down, rescue workers and resident volunteers sprang into action looking for the remaining men. Thus began an extensive search, and a praise-worthy testament to community togetherness and the power of men and women faced with a mission and hindered by adversity.

Air Force officials arrived shortly after noon on Monday and found that locals were involved in the manhunt. The massive land and air search consisted of as many as 600 soldiers from the 87th Engineer Battalion from Fort Belvoir, Va., more than 100 Marines, Army National Guard units from Cumberland, Maryland State Police, Civil Air Patrol, firemen from throughout the area, and hundreds of resident volunteers.

Salisbury police chief George Winters led 1,000 searchers through the woods, combing the area for any signs of wreckage or life. In the meantime, the American Red Cross was preparing food and shelter for the many volunteers, and churches from all over were opening their doors, as were area fire halls, welcoming in the searchers and offering them food and bedding. Coffee and donuts were hauled in on wagons and trucks to feed the hungry and cold people. There was also assistance provided by 19 youths from the Boys Forestry Camp at Lonaconing and 24 from the Boys Forestry Camp at Meadow Mountain.

Robert Lleweliyn, then a local youth, supplied a toboggan for Air Force crews to move equipment from the plane down the steep slope on Big Savage Mountain. At the end of the mission, he was rewarded with a new toboggan.

After Payne and Townley's bodies were found, the hunt for Wooten kept on. That Friday morning, the massive search came to its tragic conclusion as his body was found frozen about 800 yards from a Salisbury street light that he most likely had been heading for.

Wooten's body was discovered by Kenneth Hollar and his 17-year-old son Ronald, who had been shoveling snow for his grandmother and noticed something yellow in the distance. He and his father would investigate only to find a life raft, parachute, and a survival kit. Following tracks, they discovered the soldier lying over a bank at the edge of the Casselman River. The nearly submerged body had to be cut out of the ice.

The fact that the B-52 was carrying two nuclear bombs was cause for much concern for local residents and is still a topic of some debate. Shortly after the crash, the Pentagon assured residents that the warheads would not detonate, as they were designed with safeguards to prevent them from going off by accident.

Two Grantsville men were assigned the job by the Air Force of removing the bombs, which were found about 100 feet apart. Ray Giconi, who owned M&S Stone Quarries, located about a half-mile from the crash site, and Warren Miller, his operator, used a pay loader to carefully place the bombs aboard a Globemaster truck from Andrews Air Force Base. They were then delivered to Cumberland Municipal Airport, where, after the area had been cleared of all unauthorized persons, they were loaded and flown to an undisclosed location.

Asked if he had any second thoughts about being called to remove the bombs, Ciconi said that if one of the bombs had gone off he'd have been in the gravel business instead of owning a stone quarry.

Once the ground and air probing had come to a halt, McCormick and Peedin began telling their stories and spreading their thanks to all those who devoted their time and energy to rescuing them and their fallen comrades.

McCormick remembered that the first thing he did upon reaching the Warnicks' house was make a quick phone call to his wife, knowing that she had most likely heard of the crash.

With the 40th anniversary of this catastrophe on Tuesday, those who were alive and aware on January 13, 1964, have not forgotten the event. After the men and a majority of the pieces of the plane had been recovered and things had gone back to normal, the idea of marking this event with a series of monuments and memorials seemed like the least the community could do.

There was a July 4, 1964, dedication for a memorial placed just outside Grantsville, along U.S. Route 40, which was attended by Payne's widow and three children, Wooten's widow, and Townley's son. Peedin and McCormick were also there. This memorial was erected by the Mountain District of Maryland's American Legion, and the ceremony was preceded by a concert in Grantsville the evening before by the Air Force Band.

Particularly memorable as part of the dedication was the flyover of a B-52. Memorials were donated by Irwin Memorials of Frostburg, Golder Memorials of Cresaptown, and Johnson Memorials of Salisbury, and were placed at the three areas where the men were found.

This past Tuesday morning, a memorial service was held in honor of those who had passed after the crash. Taps were played, and a wreath was placed next to the stone located along Rt. 40 marking the original entrance to New Germany Road. American Legion member Lynn Patton read a speech revisiting the tragic flight of Buzz One Four.

Several area residents continue to be in contact with the relatives of both the survivors and of those who passed away. Hazel Klotz, Grantsville, who was crucial in relaying messages to the radio stations

A MEMORIAL CEREMONY to remember the events of Jan. 13, 1964, was held this week in Grantsville, with some participants pictured above. Tuesday marked the 40th anniversary of the B-52 bomber crash near Grantsville that took the lives of three men. The bomber was carrying two nuclear warheads, which caused some consternation among residents, although the military has assured the community that the weapons were unarmed and harmless. See feature. Providing taps at the ceremony was Melvin Schwing, shown above right.

Charges Pending Against Juveniles Ages 10 And 13

Charges are pending against two juveniles who were discovered walking in a ditch along Maryland Highway around 1 a.m. Thursday morning with a reported bottle of alcohol, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

The deputy stopped the juveniles, ages 10 and 13, to see if they needed any assistance. The deputy also noticed numerous mailbox doors were opened and one was damaged and lying on the shoulder of the road, police said.

After making contact with the juveniles, the deputy decided because of the severe weather he would transport them to the Sheriff's Office in order to cite them with possession of alcohol under the age of 21 and contact their parents.

The deputy patted them down before putting them in the police car and discovered a concealed handgun.

Both were transported to the Sheriff's Office and charges are pending.

Antibiotics Usually Prescribed for Rosacea

Rosacea is a skin disorder that affects millions of people. Different stages of rasacea may include flushing and persistent redness and pimples on the dental part of the face. If left untreated, broken blood vessels in the skin can appear with a thickening of the skin that makes the nose look red and bulbous. Rosacea occurs more frequently in women than men. It can be aggravated by spicy foods, sun , wind, hot weather, strenuous exercise, alcohol, colds, stress, and caffeine.

Oral antibiotics are used to bring rosacea under control Topical antibiotics may be prescribed to keep the condition managed. Oral antibiotics often prescribed include minocycline, tetracycline, or erythromycin. A new study is further evaluating reports that users of doxycycline also experienced a clearing of rosacea and acne. Isotretinoin has been effective against severe rosacea. To prevent flare ups, topical antibiotics such as metronidazol or azelaic acid are sometimes prescribed. Topical steroid medicines, like desonide or hydrocortisone cream can help control early symptoms. However, long-term use of topical steroids usually is not recommended.

ON A PERSONAL NOTE
by Lucretia Sines

Here we are 2½ weeks into a new year and I am just now taking the time for my year-end wrap-up. Whoever said "better late than never" sure had me in mind; just ask anyone who knows me.

I really don't know where to start this year because Friendsville has just not been a very happenin' place of late. (But that can be a good thing, too.) So let's start with the weather. You know that is always a good source of conversation.

Did you know that in January of 2003 we had a snowstorm every week, high winds, cold temperatures, and 21 days of snow? Who can forget February with its big snow storm on the 16th which gave Friendsville 48" of snow and caused countywide cancellations and road closures. We had 15 days of snowfall and 7 days of school cancellations in February. March was much warmer than January and February, although we did finish the month with 4 inches of snow on the 30th. April gave us an ice storm on the 7th and 8th, and May started with rain. Who can forget all of that rain! We had 13 days of rain in June, 15 days in July, 12 days of rain in August, and for September I didn't even keep track any more. (These numbers could be wrong, but I did my best.) September also gave us Hurricane Isabelle on the 18th. Our first snowfall of the fall was on Oct. 1, and December gave us a white Christmas.

Northern High School held graduation exercises June 8 with 32 grads being from the Friendsville area. Also in June, Walt Fearer was named EMS Person of the Year by the Allegany and Garrett County Fire and Rescue Association at a convention in Berkeley Springs.

Brandi Perez was named as the first Truck Show Queen at the Western Maryland Truck Show in August.

During 2003, Friendsville also had a new business open – Garrett Equipment Repair, located at the corner of Maple Street and Third Avenue. Pat Sullivan and Tracy Sharp specialize in mechanical services and especially small car repair. Appalachian Valley Natural Products, which has been in business for three years, moved to a new location at 260 Maple Street. Also, Yough Valley Motel went under new ownership by Pamela and Eugene Dixon.

It is always nice to reminisce about the year gone by and to look forward to a fresh new year ahead of us. A new year is in front of us, but let us also reflect on the lives of those from the Friendsville area who passed away in the last year and will be greatly missed by many: Russell Klotz, Georgene Wakefield, Jennifer Fisher, Janet Sines, Olive Friend, Elizabeth F. Fike, Ruth Sheffield, Ellen Humberson, Louise Harvey, Joyce Davis, David Frost, Verna Sisler, Lee Bennett, Dr. Raymond Kisner, John J. Williams, Allen Jackie Teats, Grace Smoot, Herman P. Rodeheaver, Olive Grove, Beatrice Troy-Jarvis, Alice (Sis) Dennis, Gerald Rodeheaver, Maureen Gurry, John Gallaher, Josh Fike, Lena Lawson, Emogene Humberson-Farthing, Rose Marie Savage, Bryce Hendricks, Bliss DeWitt, Carl Lefferts, Bob Savage, Betty Kerr, Thelma R. Friend, Earl Doc Tressler, Raymond "Buck" VanSickle, Virginia Glotfelty, and Ron Bashore. Memories of these friends and loved ones will be carried on in our hearts forever, and the touch that they had on our lives will be eternal.

In Loving Memory of our Daughter

Darla Diane DeWitt

April 30, 1970 – Jan. 16, 1973

If roses grow in heaven Lord,
Please pick a bunch for us.
Place them in our Darla's arms and tell her they're from us.
Tell her how we love and miss her,
and when she turns to smile,
Place a kiss upon her cheek and hold her for awhile.
Because remembering her is easy,
we do it everyday.
But there's an ache within our hearts that will never go away.

BIG FISH

Rated PG-13 - Running Time: 1:50 - Released 12/25/03

How puzzling it is that Ewan McGregor's most famous role to date, that of Obi-Wan Kenobi in the Star Wars prequels, is his most boring. Although I've not been particularly thrilled with his performances in those films (light-saber-rattling is fine, but it's not really the same as acting), I've loved almost everything else I've seen from him. In Big Fish, he plays the young, flashback version of Albert Finney, who continually regales everyone he knows with fanciful, quasi-supernatural, decidedly unbelievable stories about himself and his life. In other words, McGregor gets to do all the stuff Finney says he did. Written by John August (from the novel by Daniel Wallace) and directed by Tim Burton, Big Fish is the cinematic equivalent of a big fish story—fun, entertaining, too crazy to be true, and all the more enjoyable for it.

In the mold of a fairy tale but with Burton's undeniably weird style, the film follows the attempt by Will Bloom (Billy Crudup) to sort out the truths and fabrications of the now famously overblown life story of his dying father Ed (Finney), who insists that everything he has ever told his son is true. The fact that Will doesn't believe him has caused a rift lasting since the day Will married his wife Josephine (Marion Cotillard) and his dad monopolized the wedding guests with his outrageous yarns. But now that Ed has been diagnosed with cancer, Will makes a last-ditch attempt to ascertain the true story, however boring, uneventful, or self-incriminating it might be. Lucky for us, he still gets the old familiar version.

As part of this film's success lies in its twists, turns, and surprises, I must warn readers that the following may contain elements best left a secret. If you have not seen the movie yet, you might want to stop here and come back after you have.

Ed's tale is full of larger-than-life characters, none larger than himself, and it begins when he is a 10-year-old boy (played by Perry Walston). Seeking to either prove or dispel rumors about an elderly one-eyed woman (Helena Bonham Carter) who lives in a spooky old house at the edge of town and is reported to be a witch, he pays her a visit and asks to peek under her eye patch. According to local legend, one can see the circumstances of his death by looking into the old lady's glass eye. Though we don't get to see Ed's demise, he apparently does, and he therefore reasons that since he knows how he goes, he doesn't ever need to fear dangerous things he does or encounters. It would be a bit freeing, I suppose, if you see yourself as an old man keeling over into a bowl of oatmeal, you'd know not to fear sky-diving or bungee jumping or unsafe sex. Just watch out for oatmeal.

After growing up in the small town of Ashton, Alabama, Ed's subsequent adventures include making friends with a giant (played by 7'6"-tall Matthew McGrory), leaving home to discover a small town where no one wears shoes, and meeting his wife Sandra (played in flashbacks by Allison Lohman and in present-day scenes by Jessica Lange). He also serves in occupations as varied as a circus worker, a wartime soldier, a door-to-door salesman, and a bank robber, among other things. Along the way he meets a poet laureate (Steve Buscemi), a lycanthropic ringmaster (Danny DeVito), a two-headed woman (Ada and Arlene Tai), and another mysterious woman who played an important part in his life (also Bonham Carter).

This movie is certainly an entertaining romp through a varied collection of settings, characters, and scenarios, and at first does seem to fit Will's assessment of his father's story: "It doesn't all make sense and most of it didn't happen." But as the film progresses, thanks to Burton's own clever storytelling and a key final scene, we see that with minor alterations most of the bizarre details can indeed be reconciled with reality. That and his eye for imagery combine to make this a wondrously tall tale with a supernatural twist. ★★★★½

Tips Given For Completing The FAFSA Forms

For Maryland high school seniors and others who have begun the process of applying for federal financial aid for the 2004-2005 school year, the Maryland Higher Education Commission offers the following tips to make filing the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) easier.

"We want to make sure students are armed with everything they need to apply for federal and state financial aid," said Calvin W. Burnett, acting secretary of higher education. "Completing the FAFSA is the first step. It does not cost anything to apply for federal aid, and students may complete the FAFSA on paper or electronically."

Tips are listed below for completing the FAFSA:

•If using the paper FAFSA, applicants should print carefully and clearly using only blue or black ink or pencil. No other color ink is accepted.

•Have Social Security numbers ready for students. Have parents' Social Security numbers ready also if filing on behalf of dependent students.

•To ensure that the most current financial information is used in calculating aid eligibility, federal tax returns for calendar year 2003 should be completed. If this is not possible, it is fine to estimate tax information.

•Some schools require students to complete a separate form for institutional aid, so be sure to check with the school.

•The forms are processed by computer, so do not attach additional materials and write only in the marked spaces on the application, never in the margins.

•Applicants (or parents, if applicant is a dependent) without PINs must sign the application or print out and mail a separate signature sheet if filing electronically.

•Students can file electronically or on a paper application. Students are also encouraged to talk to the financial aid directors at the schools they hope to attend to learn about financial aid packages and other sources of assistance.

•Electronic filing is faster and easier. As estimated eight percent of paper applications are returned for errors, adding time to the application process. By filing electronically, students can avoid delays because the software immediately identifies errors and allows for on-the-spot corrections.

•Reapplying for aid is simple – whether filing electronically or on paper – for all filers who applied the previous year regardless of whether the student actually received aid. Students simply add a minimal amount of new information on the renewal form and update any information that has changed from the previous year (family size, for example). For renewal filing over the Web, students are given an electronic access code or PIN that serves as the student's signature. Parents will still have to sign if the applicant is a dependent. Check with the school financial aid administrator for questions about the renewal paper or electronic FAFSA, or contact the Federal Student Aid Information Center at 1-800-4 FED AID.

•PIN numbers are now available and can be requested in advance of filing the electronic FAFSA. Both parents and students can register for a PIN at www.pin.ed.gov, so that they can provide an authorization signature without submitting a separate paper signature sheet. It can take 10 to 14 days to receive a PIN once you register. If you are nearing your school's application deadline, use the paper signature and then register for a PIN so that you can electronically "sign" other federal documents, such as Stafford promissory notes.

This year, the Office of Student Financial Assistance of the Maryland Higher Education Commission will award more than $75 million in financial aid to Maryland students. For more information about financial aid in Maryland, persons may visit MHED at www.mhec.state.md.us or call 1-800-974-1024 or 410-260-4565.

and Bloomington. Others include the Deep Creek waste water treatment plant expansion, Keyser's Ridge sewer, and the Gorman sewer extension.

Some of the projects are still in the request-for-proposal stage, while others are in the final-design stage, noted Tonkovich. Public Utilities staff members have compiled a spreadsheet that includes the start dates, projected completion dates, estimated cost, and cost to date of all the projects for the director to go over with state officials.

Jim Walters of U.S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Development is slated to attend the event. The department has helped fund several Garrett County water and sewer projects, including those for Deer Park and Accident.

Mike Mullan, municipal assistance coordinator, and representatives from Grantsville, Oakland, Accident, Friendsville, and Mountain Lake Park will also be in attendance. They will discuss their projects and concerns with state officials on Thursday afternoon, prior to a reception.

Gov. Robert Ehrlich is expected to attend the reception, and Lt. Gov. Michael Steele will meet with the western Marylanders at a legislative breakfast the following morning.

Each year the PACE event is based on a theme to add to the message that its organizers want to deliver to state leaders. This year it is "Technology and Tourism – Pathways to Progress," which was chosen to recognize the growth of both the technology-based business sectors and the various tourism sectors.

"This growth is seen in both Mountain Maryland and throughout the United States," said a Mountain Maryland spokesperson. "Both economic sectors offer more growth potential for Mountain Maryland in the future and are the focus of the communities' economic development and educational investments."

Economic Development directors Jim Hinebaugh, Garrett County, and John Kirby, Allegany County, will have a display setup which incorporates this year's PACE theme.

Also having displays will be Charlie Ross and Deb Clatterbuck, Garrett County Chamber of Commerce; Chuck Trautwein, Garrett County Board of Education; Paula Yudelevit, Wisp at Deep Creek Mountain Resort; Bob Nickel, Bill's Marine; and Eric Urfer, Adventure Sports Center International.

PACE activities are financed primarily through the purchase of tickets and corporate sponsorships. According to Mountain Maryland, the funds generated more than $54,000 in 2003 and will provide the basis for the 2004 event.

The Garrett County Development Corporation and the Cumberland/Allegany County Industrial Foundation are this year's sponsors for the reception and legislative breakfast.

Information about tickets to them is available by calling the Allegany County Department of Economic Development at 301-777-5967. Additional information about PACE and photos from last year's event are also available online at mtmdpace.com.

The Arts

Area Student Artwork On Display At GCAC Gallery; Reception Set

A new exhibit at the Garrett County Arts Council Gallery in Oakland features the works of art students attending local middle and high schools. Sponsored by the Civic Club of Oakland and continuing through Friday, Feb. 6, the Youth Art Exhibit consists of creative two-dimensional work in a variety of media.

The Civic Club of Oakland has participated in the Youth Art Program of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs for the past eight years to recognize talented young artists in grades 6-12.

An informal public reception at the Gallery to honor participating students is slated for this Saturday, Jan. 17, from 1 to 4 p.m. Light refreshments will be provided, and awards will be announced. Cash awards and ribbons will be presented this year to first, second, and third place winners in two age categories. Two honorable mention winners will also be recognized.

Sue Arnson, owner of the Loft Shop in Bittinger and board member of the Garrett County Arts Council, and Larry Mattingly, art teacher at Preston High School in Kingwood, W.Va., will serve as judges. Winners in the Gallery competition will participate in a statewide exhibit and contest sponsored by the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs.

The GCAC Gallery is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Arts Council at 301-334-6580.

The judged exhibit is open Mondays through Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. through Friday, Feb. 6, and a public reception is set for this Saturday, Jan. 17, from 1 to 4 p.m. Shown here are two of the works on display, "In the Attic," above, a watercolor by Northern High student Juli Nixon, and below, a self-portrait in pastels by Laura Bonser of Southern High. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Arts Council at 301-334-6580.

Talented Garrett Coll. Faculty Helps Budding Artists, Performers Bloom

Many students attending Garrett College find that fine and performing arts courses provide unique learning opportunities offered by talented professionals, according to Dr. Virginia Broaddus, director of the college's Arts and Sciences Program.

"This spring, the college is offering over a dozen courses in art, theatre, and music, each taught by an accomplished master in the field," said Broaddus. "Many courses do not have prerequisites and are thus open to individuals with a variety of skill levels. They may be taken for general interest or as part of the college's fine and performing arts major."

Professor Ron Skidmore will offer Drawing I, Basic Design II, Art Appreciation, and Ceramics I and II this semester. A skilled artist who has exhibited his work throughout the East Coast, Skidmore also oversees the college's art gallery, bringing a variety of exhibits from local, regional, and even international artists to Garrett County's doorstep. He has also sponsored the Thursday Night Art Group, which offers local artists the opportunity to work together and receive feedback from one another. Additionally, the college regularly offers Visual Imagery, a course designed for elementary education majors.

Although Skidmore's classes regularly fill to capacity, space is available in several courses he is offering this semester.

Professor Ben Sincell will be teaching Technical Theatre: Lighting, Costume, and Sound and Fundamentals of Acting II this spring in addition to several sections of Introduction to Communication. Sincell also routinely works with the College and Me Program, which gives each of Garrett County's fifth graders the chance to "experience" college, including theatre.

Like Skidmore's, Sincell's work with the arts in Garrett County has been recognized by the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival, which named him Arts Contributor of the Year. His background includes academic degrees in theatre as well as work in New York, where he most recently worked to stage a production in which his nephew Matt Sincell performed. He serves as technical director of Oakland's Our Town Theatre, which has allowed Garrett students to benefit from working alongside Sincell on productions there as well as at the college.

Students who take theatre courses have the chance, Sincell said, to "gain a sense of accomplishment and self-esteem that's very different from that built in other academic endeavors."

A similar sense of accomplishment can be gained by students who take music courses at Garrett College. This spring, students have two different options for studying instrumental or vocal music at Garrett. They can either enroll in the college's Community Music School and take the courses for non-credit, or receive academic credit for studying instruments or voice.

Dr. Gerald McGee, who directs the Community Music School, which is part of the Continuing Education Division, has been very impressed with the number of students interested in this program and has also been delighted, he says, by interest in the college's applied music and ensemble classes. For instance, students can receive academic credit for participating in the Garrett Community Concert Band as well as in the Garrett College Pipes and Drums. Additionally, McGee, who has performed throughout the United States and is recognized as a gifted organist, will be offering Music Appreciation and Music in Religious Thought and Practice, both three-credit courses.

McGee says he is excited about the latter course, which gives the opportunity to study music's role in a variety of religious beliefs and worship practices. Like the Musical Encounter, a course McGee offered last fall, Music in Religious Thought and Practice is a new course of particular interest to those pursuing a concentration in music, now offered as part of Garrett College's fine and performing arts major.

"Students who take fine and performing arts courses at Garrett find themselves energized and sometimes in awe of their own potential as it emerges under the dedicated leadership of our fine arts instructional team," Broaddus commented.

"We are extremely fortunate to have talented faculty who are student-centered and who recognize the vitality of the arts, not only at our college, but in our county. I'm looking forward to the college's second All College Arts Night, which will give our community a chance to see our students' talents shine," the arts and sciences program director concluded.

Registration for spring semester is ongoing, and most classes begin the week of January 23. Individuals with questions about specific art, theatre, or music courses should contact the course's instructor or Broaddus at 301-387-3077 or vbroaddus@garrettcollege.edu. For questions about the Community Music School, persons may contact McGee at 301-387-3093 or jmcgee@garrettcollege.edu.

For general information or to register for classes, call the College's Student Assistance Center may be reached at 301-387-3044.

New Children's Lit Class Offered At GC This Semester

Encountering Children's Literature: An Arts Approach, a new course offered by Garrett College for the spring semester, will begin Jan. 28.

"Every Wednesday night from 5 to 8 p.m., teachers, parents, and other interested people can enjoy the reading, writing, illustrations, and poignant meanings that literature for children offers," said storyteller and author Dr. Gail N. Herman, who will instruct the course.

She studied children's literature with folklore author John Langstaff, former creator and director of the Christmas Revels of Harvard University. The Revels is a presentation of literature, dance, and drama from around the world, in celebration of Christmas and other winter holidays.

Herman also studied with Nellie McCaslin at Columbia University.

The new "arts approach" to the study of children's literature by Jane M. Gangi will be used in Herman's class. Each week will include a variety of topics from children's literature: including predictable picture books, short stories, chapter books and novels; folktales, fairy tales, tall tales, legends, and myths; poetry, songs, nursery rhymes, tongue twisters, and folk rhymes; and literary, modern, and multicultural stories.

National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, National Council of Teachers of English, and International Reading Association standards will be considered in the course as well.

Participants will listen to stories read, told, and acted. Guest speakers and authors, as well as the instructor, will create environments for discussions. They will also explore many related storytelling, drama and art activities, in addition to stories and books themselves.

For this semester only, seniors age 60 and over may take the course free of charge. All fees as well as tuition are waived for seniors, who may either audit or take the class for credit.

Registration will continue through Feb. 4. To register, persons may call the Garrett College registrar's office at 301-387-3040.

Swanton Man, Television Actor Named FSU Artist In Residence

ED MALLORY

Swanton area resident Ed Mallory, a former television actor and director, has accepted an invitation to serve as "Artist in Residence" for the Department of Mass Communication at Frostburg State University, FSU president Catherine R. Gira announced recently.

Mallory's experience "should prove to be of great benefit to FSU students," commented Gira.

Mallory, a native of Cumberland, played Dr. Bill Horton on the popular NBC daytime drama Days of Our Lives from 1966 to 1980, and later directed several dramas, including Generations, All My Children, and The Young and the Restless. Throughout his career in Hollywood, he made appearances in feature films such as Diamond Head with Charlton Heston, and Birdman of Alcatraz with Burt Lancaster. He also guest starred on several classic television shows including Bewitched, The Munsters, The Man from U.N.C.L.E., Wagon Train, McHale's Navy, and Perry Mason. He later worked on biographies and documentaries for A&E (Arts and Entertainment) Network and the History Channel.

Mallory previously served as an adjunct professor at FSU, teaching such classes as "Writing for Electronic Media," and acted as executive producer of the documentary Biographies: The Story of J. Glenn Beall Jr., which was shot by FSU Mass Communication students.

In his new position as Artist in Residence, Mallory plans to shoot a new documentary on former U.S. Attorney for Maryland George Beall and his involvement in the resignation and conviction of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Mallory has also proposed an "Acting for the Camera" seminar for FSU students, and a soap opera to be broadcast on FSU's cable station, TV 3, produced, directed, written, and acted by FSU students.

"It's pay back time for me," Mallory stated. "I intend to work hard at imparting what I have learned in a long career to my future students."

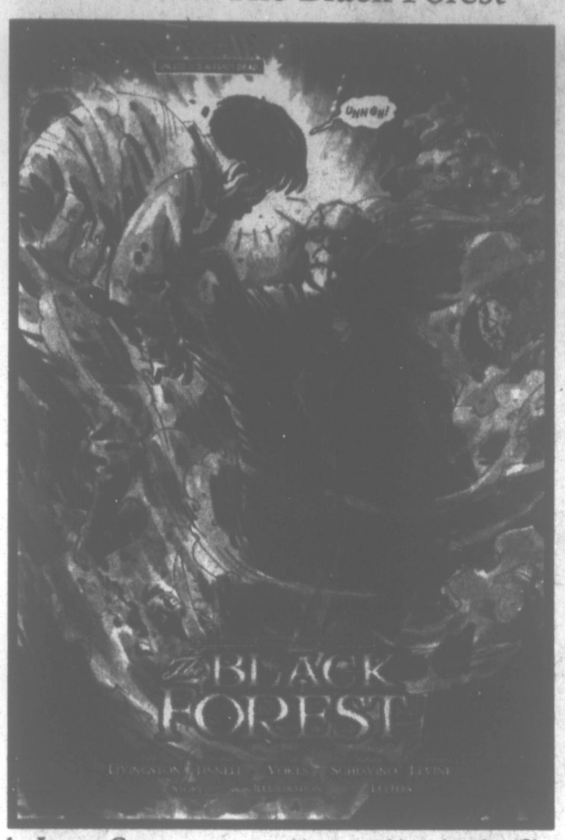
Local Writer Completes Graphic Novel Titled The Black Forest



by Jeremy Carr

Robert Tinnell, a resident of McHenry and a working screenwriter and movie director, is nearing completion on a new project. Tinnell and co-writer Todd Livingston wrote a script originally intended to be a film but was instead adapted as a graphic novel, with comic book veteran Neil Vokes doing the art work.

With a scheduled release date of March 31 from Image Comics, the book, titled The Black Forest, has been described as "combination of All Quiet on the Western Front and the old Universal horror films, now in a comic-book based medium."

Tinnell has written and directed several feature films, including Kids of The Round Table, Believe, and Frankenstein and Me, and has been working in the film industry in various ways for 20 years. A long-time fan of comic books, Tinnell had never really given comic writing any consideration. It was, however, after several meetings at conventions throughout the United States that he began discussing the possibility with other comic writers and artists, including Vokes, who received much acclaim for his work on another graphic novel, Parliament of Justice.

Through meetings, phone conversations, and Internet communication, Tinnell and long-time friend Livingston, also a film writer and director, began discussing an idea for what they have dubbed a "monster rally."

The basic premise of The Black Forest is that, during World War I, classic monsters such as the Frankenstein monster, Nosferatu, and werewolves are now involved in the trench, fighting alongside the soldiers. The story came about via a mutual love of old monster films and horror comic books, as well as the possibilities that an original idea such as this presented.

When the idea was presented to artist Vokes, the book began to take shape. Vokes shared not only similar passions as Tinnell and Livingston, but was also thrilled by the interesting concept. An artist with a distinctive and impressive style, Vokes was an obvious choice as artist, and the three men were confident that he, if anyone, would be able to bring striking visuals to the project.

Along with the novel itself, a documentary film will be released which details, through interviews and candid making-of clips, the creative process of The Black Forest. This film was directed by the writer of this article, fellow Garrett County resident Jeremy Carr, and was shot over the course of several months in locations such as New Jersey and Baltimore.

Carr completed editing the picture recently and along with the writers and artist of The Black Forest are now looking into distribution possibilities, such as film festivals and comic conventions throughout the U.S.

An Internet trailer and a website devoted entirely to The Black Forest (its story, its art work, and its creators) are two of the promotional tactics that this team is utilizing to get advanced word out. It can be accessed at www.theblackforest.net.

The book should be available at most comic book shops and in many regular book stores as well. It can also be found through the distributor, Diamond, at www.diamondcomics.com or the publisher, www.imagecomics.com.

"I can honestly say that this has been the most rewarding experience of my professional life," said Tinnell. "I think horror fans, monster movie fans, and people who love great art are going to love it."

Tinnell resides in McHenry with his wife Shannon and two children, Jack and Isabella.

1st Books Publishes Local Author's Novel

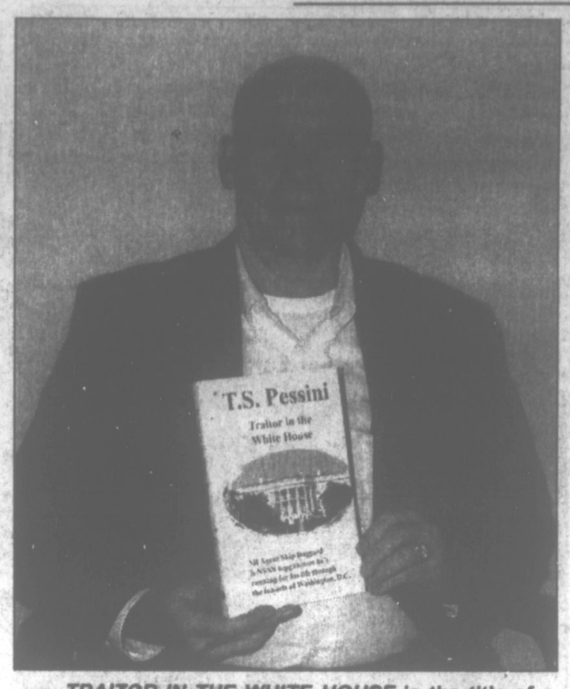
What began some four years ago as a derailed short story in a college class at Frostburg State University is now a complete novel by Friendsville resident Tom Pessini. Traitor in the White House has been published in both paper and hardback by the 1st Books Publishing House and is now available for purchase.

"I turned in what I thought was a short story to Brad Barkley at FSU, and he told me it actually violated every rule of the traditional short story. But he then said it was actually the blueprint for a novel," Pessini said. The writer took Barkley's advice and completed the book. The author, a retired officer of the United States military, graduated from FSU last spring with a degree in English education. He now substitute teaches in the Garrett County school system.

The novel is the beginning of a lengthy series of books, the author said. It follows the adventures of a military man, Skip Daggard, also known by his code name "Snoopy," in Washington, D.C., among many other locales. Daggard takes the readers into the world of the National Security Agency and the military intelligence community that Pessini said is rarely written about. The writer fictionalized real events, and explores how the Vietnam experience psychologically affected those who served.

As for Pessini's readership, he said that as he was writing the book, he mainly pictured former co-workers in Washington as his readers. However, several other genres can be found in the novel, he said, making the book appealing to many other readers. Amidst the fictional story are many details of true history, such as the reason Washington, D.C., is the capital of the country, and how the various branches of the military were born. The author said he was surprised to find out that there was even a genre involved that he hadn't realized.

"My wife and I were talking about the plot and the subplots, and she said, 'And don't forget the romance.' And I said, 'What romance?' because I seriously didn't know what she meant. But she saw a real relationship between the protagonist and a women in the book. So I think the novel will be enjoyable to a wide range of readers — those who like thrillers, mysteries, history, and even romance — it's all in there."



TRAITOR IN THE WHITE HOUSE is the title of a novel penned by Friendsville resident Tom Pessini, pictured. The book was recently published by 1st Books and is available for purchase. Pessini, a 21-year veteran of the U.S. Army, specifically in the military intelligence field and the National Security Agency, has written a fictional story based on facts that follows the adventures of Skip Daggard. The story is taken from Pessini's many experiences in his military career, and includes factual history as well as dramatized action. He said the multi-genre novel, which is to be the first of a lengthy series, should speak to a wide audience. See story.

The writer enlisted in the United States Army in August 1967, working in the field of electronic communications. He served 19 months in Vietnam. His next assignment was at the Ent Air Force Base in Colorado Springs, Colo. After completing eight months at Ent, he separated from active duty in August 1970. He then returned to his home in Morristown, N.J.

He re-enlisted in the army in 1973 and serve with the 3rd Armored Division in Frankfort, Germany; the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Wash.; and the military intelligence and military police in Augsburg, Germany. He also worked for the National Security Agency (NSA) and the 519th MP Battalion at Fort Meade. Her served a short tour of duty in Korea as a site commander with the 293rd Signal Battalion, and retired from active service in March 1990.

Among his decorations and awards are the Good Conduct Medal with six oak leaf clusters, the Vietnam Service Medal, the Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry, the Army Achievement Medal, an Army Commendation Medal, the Meritorious Service Medal, and four Service School ribbons.

Although Pessini said he has been a storyteller since he was a child, he didn't start writing in earnest until 1987.

Pessini first published his novel chapter by chapter with the help of his daughter Tammy, who used desktop publishing to put her father's work in print. He distributed the chapters to local shops and businesses, such as S&S Market and Twila's Restaurant. The chapters became a popular item, the author said, which surprised him.

"I got a call one day from a man who had read all the chapters so far. He asked me where the next chapter was, and I was sitting there staring at the computer screen with writer's block, trying to finish it. I said I was working on it and it would be out in a few days. That was a surprising call, and it made me realize that people out there really were reading my story," Pessini said.

He conferred with his FSU professors throughout his publishing journey, and received help from Mary Ann Chapman, who edited his manuscript. He credits her along with Barkley, his daughter, and his wife, Errol Jean, for supporting him in the process of becoming a published author.

Traitor in the White House is available through Pessini, who can be reached at 301-245-4115 or by email at tpessini@qcol.net. It can also be obtained by ordering at local book shops, or by contacting the publisher directly at 1-888-280-7715.

Pessini is "going on the road" to promote his novel. He has met with area book stores, such as the Book Mark'et in Oakland and Main Street Books in Cumberland. He plans to donate one of the books to the new Grantsville branch of the Ruth Enlow Library, as well as to the main branch in Oakland. He hopes to host readings and book signings in the near future. He will also be distributing the novel to the military base "PX" stores, and will visit other towns where he has resided in his life.

For more information, persons may also visit Pessini's website at romance qcol.net/tppublications.

Young Readers Club To Discuss Award-Winner

The Ruth Enlow Library Young Readers Club will meet at 4:15 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 5, in the Oakland library to discuss Regarding the Fountain by Kate Klise. This book has won numerous awards, including the West Virginia Children's Book Award 2000-01 and the Young Adult's Choice Award in 1999.

"The Dry Creek Middle School drinking fountain has sprung a leak, so principal Walter Russ dashes off a request to Flowing Waters Fountains, Etc.: 'We need a new drinking fountain. Please send a catalog.' Designer Flo Waters responds: 'I'd be delighted...but please understand that all of my fountains are custom-made.'

"Soon the fountain project takes on a life of its own, one chronicled in letters, postcards, memos, transcripts, and official documents. The school board president is up in arms. So is Dee Eel, of the water-supply company. A scandal is brewing, and Mr. Sam N.'s fifth grade class is turning up a host of hilarious secrets buried deep beneath the fountain." (From the publisher's description.)

Persons may stop by the Oakland library or call 301-334-3996 to reserve a copy of this month's selection.

Upcoming Young Readers Club book selections include Quit It by Marcia Byalick, Pictures of Hollis Woods by Patricia Reilly Giff, and Surviving the Applewhites by Stephanie Tolan.

The library also offers book clubs for teens and adults. Persons may check the Ruth Enlow Library's Web site at www.relib.net.

ACTRESS VISITS NORTHERN MIDDLE – As part of a $500 Dr. Manekin grant and through the efforts of the Reading Incentive Committee at Northern Middle School, actress Gloria Gantt recently paid a visit to the school, where she discussed acting and perseverance with the children. She also presented a one-person program about Coretta Scott King, widow of Martin Luther King Jr. The event was part of an outside reading program at NMS where the students were encouraged to do as much reading on their own out of school for enjoyment, as well as to obtain points to earn a reward. The reading committee members were Lori Burdock, Jane Nolan, Carolyn Tice, and Julieann Benyo. Gantt is presently employed at the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services, though she said theatre has always been her "first love." She has appeared in plays including Macbeth and Oedipus The King, an opera, and was involved in several feature films and television shows. She currently resides in Baltimore and is a member of the Children's Theater Association. A spokesperson said her message to the students was simple: "Never give up, no matter what."

Northern Girls Downed By SHS Rams, Fort Hill, Berlin

The Northern High School girls' varsity hoops squad hit some rough sailing this week, for despite playing some very competitive basketball the Huskies came away with four losses in four outings. Northern's record is now 3-8.

NHS was defeated by Southern Thursday, 68-59 (see SHS account), and twice by Fort Hill this week, dropping a make-up contest in Cumberland Saturday by a 41-34 margin, and a Monday night homecourt battle 35-30. Last night the Huskies hosted Berlin's Mountaineers, and lost 65-30.

NHS controlled much of the first half against the Sentinels Saturday. After the first quarter ended with the Sentinels holding a slim 10-9 lead, the Huskies broke loose on an 11-6 run over the second stanza to go up 20-16 at the half. Fort Hill turned the tide after the intermission, however, and rolled through a 14-4 third quarter tally to take a 30-24 advantage as the final stanza got under way. Forced to foul, the Huskies sent the Sentinels to the charity stripe for some clutch free-throw shooting that helped seal Northern's fate.

Junior center Lakin Weimer paced the Huskies with a 14-point performance, and senior NHS teammate Lyndsi Butler recorded 7 points from her guard position. Junior forward Jeseca Gibson contributed 6 points before fouling out. Fort Hill's Lindsay Holliday led all scorers with 16 points.

The Husky junior varsity lost 47-12, despite an 8-point tally by Amber Savage. The hosts were led by Natalie Athey's 14 points.

After suffering through Saturday's second half, during which Fort Hill held sway with a 25-16 run, the Huskies made some good adjustments for Monday's rematch.

NHS took a 7-5 first-quarter lead over the visiting Sentinels before Fort Hill rebounded to take an 18-13 halftime advantage. Northern narrowed the margin to three after the third stanza, 25-22, and ended the contest down by only five points.

Sophomore Husky center Sarah Stewart hit for a team-high 13 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, while Gibson recorded 7 points. Weimer crashed the boards for a game-high 14 rebounds. Tamisa Page had 16 points for the Sentinels (5-3).

Fort Hill also won the junior varsity game by an unreported score.

Last night's contest with Berlin at the Cove started out poorly for the Huskies, as they fell behind 15-2 after one quarter and were down by a 30-11 deficit at the half. The visiting Mountaineers held a 45-19 lead going into the fourth quarter.

The leading Huskies' scorer was Butler with 10 points, including two three-pointers, while Stewart had 9 points and Gibson contributed 7. Berlin's Ashley Hartman took game-high honors with 19 points, while teammate Brittney Pryde had 14 points. Weimer and Stewart each pulled down eight rebounds for Northern.

"We're playing some good defense, but having trouble getting it together on offense," NHS coach Dave Yoder commented. "Even with all the obstacles, I'm still proud of the effort our girls are putting out. They refuse to give up, and that makes us dangerous."

The Huskies visit Salisbury tonight and Frankfort Monday.

HUSKIES DIVIDE AND CONQUER – Getting it done with pressure and without, the Northern High School boys' varsity basketball squad crushed Union Friday night by a whopping 81-41 margin. Junior Eric Johnson (#34) is pictured below leaving his opponent in the dust as he breaks free to an uncontested hoop. NHS Cagers Tame Tigers In 40-Point Runaway Triumph

The Northern High School boys basketball team caged the visiting Union Tigers as the Huskies ran away with a huge 81-41 win before a delighted Cove crowd. The victory, which was NHS's only action of the week, upped Northern's mark to 4-7.

The Huskies wasted no time in marking their territory at the Igloo. Northern raced out to a 16-7 first-quarter lead en route to a 32-16 halftime advantage. After the third quarter, NHS was up 55-26, and went on a 26-15 run through the final eight minutes of play.

Sophomore guard Chris Speicher paced a superbly balanced Husky offense with 18 points, including a trio of three-pointers, and eight assists, while classmates Brent Beachy, who fouled out, and Blake Walker each bagged 13 points. Senior forward Billy Jones netted 11 points, including a pair of treys, while classmate Andrew Frantz recorded 10 points and eight rebounds, junior Eric Johnson contributed 9 points, and senior Jason Rice had 7 points, including two three-pointers.

The Tigers were led by Aaron Hartman's 12 points, and teammate Jacob Reed tallied 10.

Northern won the junior varsity game by an unreported margin.

Last chance for bonus

Points leader Matt Kenseth has one last chance to claim this season's Winston Leader Bonus. The bonus has grown to a record $300,000 going into Sunday's race at Homestead.

Kenseth takes points title by finishing 4th

By RICK MINTER

Rockingham, N.C.

Next to be outdone by Bill Elliott's sentimental run at history Sunday, Matt Kenseth wrapped up his second Winston Cup championship by finishing fourth in the season-ending Pepsi 400 at Homestead, Fla., and the title was his.

Even though Kenseth never tried to keep the points race, which he has led since the March race at Atlanta Motor Speedway, in the back of his mind, he always had an idea where he wanted it to end.

"Even when we were way ahead, I was hoping that this would be the place that we could wrap it up if we did do it because it's a really cool race track and it's got a lot of meaning for all of us," he said.

That's certainly the case for Kenseth's car owner, Jack Roush, who also saw his first championship come at the same track where he scored his first major victory in 1989. Mark Martin beat Rusty Wallace in the fall race here for Roush's first Winston Cup win.

Kenseth, the 31-year-old former short-track driver from Cambridge, Wis., is only in his fourth full season on NASCAR's elite Winston Cup circuit.

There were times the outwardly unassuming driver didn't believe he had a chance to become NASCAR's top driver.

Just a few years ago, he was driving on short tracks across the Midwest when Robbie Reiser, who has been his crew chief from the start, called and offered him a ride in the Busch Series. From there, Mark Martin saw his ability and convinced his car owner, Roush, to find a way to field another car.

That huge career break came just in the nick of time because, at 26, Kenseth was getting too old to start a NASCAR career.

"I felt like my time was past," he said.

Now, he's got a Winston Cup trophy for his own, and he's not sure what to make of it all.

"I've got so many emotions going through me that I really don't know what to think right now," he said. "I'm just so thankful to have this opportunity. There are so many great race drivers that never get the chance to do this."

Newman chalks up 11th pole

Ryan Newman rolled to his 11th Winston Cup Total Pole of the season in qualifying for Sunday's Pop Secret 400.

Newman's 11th pole of the season ties him with Elliott, Darrell Waltrip, David Pearson and Bobby Allison for second place in NASCAR's modern era (1972-present).

"To me, that's a great feat," he said. "There are definitely a lot of great drivers in this agency."

Rockingham, N.C.

Bill Elliott's heroic run to victory in the final fall race at North Carolina Speedway, creating a moment that likely will go down as one of NASCAR's greatest.

Just as the late Curtis Turner, in the twilight of his career, won the first race at Rockingham in 1966, Elliott came to "The Rock," where he made his first Cup start 25 years ago, and outran the best young drivers of the day to collect the 44th victory of his career.

Elliott's triumph in the Pop Secret 400 came in his 730th career start — despite starting dead last in a field of 43.

"God, that felt good," Elliott said of pulling away from young guns Jimmie Johnson and Ryan Newman, who are well on their way to claiming the superstar status that Elliott and other soon-to-retire veterans have held for years.

Making the victory more special for Elliott was that three spots behind him on the final lap, Matt Kenseth, who made his Winston Cup debut as a fill-in for Elliott when Elliott's father died in 1980, clinched his first Winston Cup championship.

The whole scenario unfolded at a storied old track that, although the stands were mostly full on Sunday, could end up losing its other race date to newer tracks in major markets elsewhere.

"To win the last fall race at Rockingham and to do it at the track where I ran my first race back in 1976, is like a storybook come together," Elliott said.

As he has for the past several months, Elliott said he's too soon to say whether he'll return for a full-time ...

Bill Elliott won the final fall race at North Carolina Speedway, where he ran his first race in 1976. The veteran driver says he has "some decisions to make" about driving next year.

By RICK MINTER

Rockingham, N.C.

Bill Elliott's No. 9 pit crew polished off one of its greatest pit performances in winning the 9th annual World Championship Pit Crew Competition at North Carolina Speedway.

The Mike Ford-led crew changed four tires and added two cans of gasoline in 15.725 seconds, breaking the old mark of 16.323 seconds set last year by Matt Kenseth's No. 17 crew.

"We knew coming in that if we had a good, solid pit stop and didn't make any mistakes that we would have a shot at it," Ford said. Eight of the 24 teams that participated had three added to their scores for various infractions such as loose lug nuts. Dale Earnhardt Jr.'s crew finished last after posting a time of 41.634 seconds, including penalties.

The Victory Junction Gang Camp that Kyle and Patti Petty created for children with chronic or life-threatening illnesses is $1 million richer thanks to Tony Stewart.

Stewart announced Saturday that his foundation is making the donation to the camp that is set to open in the summer of 2004 in the Petty family hometown of Randleman, N.C.

"I really admire Kyle and Patti Petty for the people they are and the work that they do," Stewart said.

He also helped raise $340,000 for the camp in 2003.

RAMS CAGE MOUNTAIN LIONS — An impressive fourth-quarter rally led the Southern High varsity boys to a 49-46 victory over visiting Tucker County last Friday evening. Hitting four crucial free throws in the final stanza was guard Cory Bosley, who is pictured directly above driving the lane against a Tucker defender. Hitting a team-high 12 points for the Rams was sophomore center Evan Lantz, pictured at right, who also grabbed eight rebounds. In the background of the photo is Corey Tressler (#40), who led the Rams in rebounding with 10. The Rams, 4-5, will face a tough test this Friday evening when they host Allegany, currently the top-ranked team in the area. Photos by John McEwen.

BECCA'S BACK BIG-TIME, as area girls' varsity basketball opponents learned this week when Southern High School forward Becca Flanagan (#20) returned from a pre-season foot injury to pace the Rams to a pair of wins. Flanagan was the game high-scorer against Keyser Saturday, and Allegany last night, and the senior's return should help the 7-2 Rams as they battle some much larger schools downstate this weekend. Fourth-Quarter Rally Gives Rams 49-46 Win Over Tucker

A fourth-quarter scoring spurt led by Dewaine Jones allowed the Southern High School boys' varsity to get back into the win column last Friday night, as the Rams edged Tucker County, 49-46.

Jones finished with 11 points, but scored seven of them in the final stanza which opened with the Rams trailing by four, 35-31.

Sophomore center Evan Lantz led Southern's scoring with 12 points, and also grabbed eight rebounds. Finishing with a game-high 10 rebounds was Ram senior Corey Tressler, who also had eight points, while Cory Bosley provided five assists.

Another key to the Rams' successful fourth-quarter comeback were four clutch free throws made by Bosley, who finished 4-for-5 at the line.

The score remained close from the opening tip-off, with the Mountain Lions up by one, 11-10, at the end of the first period, and Southern on top 25-22 at intermission. The Lions then won the third quarter by outscoring their hosts, 13-6.

Pacing the Lions' scoring effort were Jeremy Maxwell with 15 points and Adam Helmick with 11. Nine of Helmick's points were recorded from three-point range.

The Southern junior varsity was victorious in the preliminary game, 55-43, behind a 16-point performance by Joey Tressler and a 12-point effort by Bret DeWitt.

The win improved the Ram varsity record to 5-6. Coach Tom Bosley and his squad will return to action this Friday evening against visiting Allegany. Tip-off for the junior varsity game will be 6 p.m., with the varsity encounter slated to follow at 7:30.

Southern will also travel to Keyser next Tuesday.

Rams Down NHS, Keyser, Alco; Gregg Joins SHS "Grand" Club

After an uncharacteristically slow 4-2 start, the Southern High School girls' varsity basketball squad gained some traction this week with three straight wins over Northern, Keyser, and Allegany to take its record to 7-2 overall, and 3-0 in the WMIL, just off Fort Hill's 4-0 mark.

Last night's win over Allegany, the Rams' 37th straight league victory, featured a milestone as guard Robbin Gregg joined some stellar company when she bagged her 1,000th career point in the fourth quarter. Gregg is just the fourth 1,000-point scorer in Ram girls' history, with the others being SHS leader Jenny Hillen at 1,831, Ashley Liller with 1,625, and Emily Friend at 1,167.

"Robbin has a fantastic work ethic which allowed her to get to this moment," SHS coach Don Stemple remarked afterward. "When you look at the path each of our 1,000 point scorers have taken, you realize one thing they all have in common is the time they put into the game, both on and off season—people just don't realize how much time goes into it. They all had a love for the game, and you could almost predict from a young stage by seeing the ability and the determination she and the others had that they'd each achieve something big like this."

The week's slate opened with the Rams taking their second straight victory over the Northern Huskies, as SHS recorded a 65-44 victory last Thursday, Jan. 8, in Oakland. Southern then downed Keyser 68-59 in a Saturday homecourt contest, and last night the Rams hosted the Allegany Campers, and came away with a 64-53 win.

Southern and Northern played a hard-fought game in the Thursday meeting. SHS rolled up leads of 12-4 and 28-12 after the first and second quarter, respectively, but the Huskies fought back to cut the difference to just five points, 41-36, as the third stanza ended. The pitched battle included a total of 47 fouls as two Huskies fouled out, and Southern connected on 22 of 29 attempts from the charity stripe.

"It was a very physical game," Ram coach Don Stemple said afterward. "At halftime we felt we were in pretty good control because up to that point our offense wasn't doing a whole lot but our defense was. In the third quarter, we couldn't get either working, and Northern outscored us to get right back in the game. We were able to put together a nice fourth quarter, and finally managed to pull away.

"The Huskies had a very good game plan and played us well," the SHS skipper commented.

Southern senior forward Becca Flanagan, making her campaign debut after recovering from a foot injury she sustained in the final pre-season practice session, showed no signs of rust as she paced all scorers with 14 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. Guard Robbin Gregg hit for 11 points, and fellow backcourt speedster Justine Pagenhardt reeled off six assists as she scored 9 points. Sophomore forward Kendra McGlaughlin recorded 9 points of her own, and junior guard Jasmine Scheffel contributed eight points.

Northern guard Lyndsi Butler, the Huskies' sole senior, paced NHS with 12 points, while center Lakin Weimer and forward Jeseca Gibson, both juniors, netted 9 points apiece before each fouled out.

Southern won the junior varsity game by a wide 32-13 margin. Sarah Stephens led all scorers with 11 points for the Rams, while Amber Savage had 6 points for Northern.

The first quarter of Saturday's contest with Keyser ended in a 14-14 tie, but Southern kicked into high gear during a 24-10 second quarter run to go up 38-24 at the half. The Rams held a 50-44 advantage as the fourth quarter got under way.

Pagenhardt turned in an outstanding performance, recording game highs of 28 points and 11 rebounds, and also dished out five assists. Gregg netted 18 points, and Scheffel grabbed 10 rebounds. Samantha Lyons scored 16 points for the balanced Keyser offense, and teammate Aushia Beavers had 15 points.

The Rams' JV took its contest by a 46-22 tally as Sarah Cosner led the way with 16 points and teammate Natalie Rohrbaugh recorded 12 points. Liz Kephart and Kerry Simmons both had 6 points for the Golden Tornado.

Last night's match-up with Allegany started off in nip-and-tuck fashion, and the first quarter ended with SHS holding a slim 17-13 lead. A 23-6 run over the next eight minutes put the Rams up 40-19 at the half, and the third quarter ended with Southern on top by a 47-31 margin.

Flanagan led the Ram effort with a game-high 19 points, while Gregg had 15, Pagenhardt contributed 10, and McLaughlin recorded 8. Gregg and Pagenhardt handed out seven and six assists, respectively, and Jasmine Scheffel hauled down nine rebounds. Erin Wilson scored 18 points for Alco.

The Rams' JV squad took a 36-25 victory behind 12 points from Sarah Cosner and 10 by Adrienne Yoder.

The Rams face a pair of huge tests this weekend in a road swing that takes them to 3A Patuxent in St. Mary's County Friday, and to Annapolis on Saturday to face private school powerhouse St. Mary Ryken. Southern returns to host Beall Monday before visiting Fort Hill on Jan. 22.

Lakers Finally Lose One, But Bounce Back To Defeat PG

After racking up 11 straight victories, the Garrett College men's basketball team finally tasted defeat for the first time this season with a tough, 78-75 loss to nationally ranked Frederick CC Saturday on the Cougars' floor. Garrett trailed by 24 points in the contest before rallying to take a one-point lead in the second half, only to fall in the final moments.

The Lakers bounced back last night, however, in another Maryland JUCO League contest to record a 71-63 win over a talented Prince George's team, also on the road.

Frederick, which came into Saturday's contest ranked 10th in the Junior College Division II poll, demonstrated their talents early in the first half by storming to a seemingly commanding 36-12 lead. But the Lakers finally warmed up and went on a scoring run of their own, recording 23 of the next 29 points to cut the Cougars' lead to 42-35 by halftime.

Midway through the second half, the Lakers took their first lead of the game, 61-60, and the teams traded buckets the rest of the way.

With 50 seconds to play, the Lakers trailed by four, 76-72, but Adam Morgan drained a three-pointer for Garrett to make it 76-75.

After a Cougar miss, the Lakers had an opportunity to take the lead, but missed a lay-up with just 14 seconds left and were forced to foul. Two good free throws put Frederick back up by three. The Lakers had a chance to tie, but missed on a three-pointer. They got the rebound, but did not have time to get another shot off.

Darren Stackhouse led three Lakers in double figures, finishing with a game-high 19, while Akeem Scott netted 15 and Morgan scored 12.

James Prince led the Cougars with 17 points, Temetris Bryant finished with 13, and James Lame and Cameron Alborz each contributed 10.

The score of last night's game with Prince George's was knotted at 32-32 at halftime, and the Lakers finished the game trailing in field goals by a 27-21 margin. But eight of their buckets were from three-point range, and they hit a sizzling 21-for-26 (81%) at the free throw line, while the Owls made good on just six of 10 opportunities at the line.

Stackhouse and Scott led a balanced Laker offensive effort by netting 15 points apiece. Jon Mann, who had four three-point buckets, finished with 13 points, and James Jones contributed 12.

The Lakers trailed in rebounds, 44-39, with Mann and Jones each grabbing seven for Garrett. Jones also had six assists and seven steals.

Leading the Owls in scoring was Antoine Lesesene with a game-high 21 points. Brandon Jackson scored 17 and Jermaine Hill recorded 14. Hill also pulled down a game-high eight rebounds.

The 12-1 Lakers will host Hagerstown CC in another JUCO clash this Saturday, with tipoff set for 7 p.m. They will play at Potomac State on Monday and entertain Harford CC next Wednesday.

SHS Pair Receive First-Team All-WMIL Volleyball Accolades

Huskies' Garlitz, Rams' Pike Named To Second Team

JULIA BOSLEY

KAYLA NAZELROD

Southern High School juniors Julia Bosley and Kayla Nazelrod have been named to the 2003 First Team of the All-Western Maryland Interscholastic volleyball squad. Bosley and Nazelrod led Southern to an 11-3 record and a 5-0 mark in the league, and both also earned All-Area First Team accolades last month.

The WMIL's six head coaches selected the local pair, along with fellow First Team members Lauren Mouse and Tracy Guthrie of Fort Hill, Sara Harris and Jessica Burkett of Beall, and Katie Harvey of Westmar.

Named to the All-WMIL Second Team were fellow Ram Megan Pike, the team's lone senior, Northern High senior Kristi Garlitz, and Casey Wilson and Autumn Wilson of Allegany, Cara Wilt of Beall, and Erin Steele of Westmar.

Outside hitter Bosley, a junior, was named the Rams' Most Valuable Player this past season after pacing the SHS unit with a squad-high 14 service aces, was second in kills with 88 and service points with 114. The three-year starter will enter her final season next fall already in possession of the Southern record for most career service points with 266.

Nazelrod, a middle hitter described by SHS coach Sue Newton as an exceptionally aggressive player at the net, led the Rams in kills with 110 and blocks with 19. She and Bosley will anchor a Southern squad that will be one of the most experienced units in the area.

Ram Freshmen Whip Allegany

The freshman boys' basketball team of Southern High School recorded a 50-37 victory over host Allegany on Monday. Adam VanBogelen paced the Rams' scoring with 16 points, while Tyler Wharton was Alco's offensive leader with 14 points.

The Southern frosh will play again this evening at Petersburg and will travel to Beall next Wednesday.

Ram Grapplers Flatten Keyser And Fort Hill

The wrestlers of Southern High School upped their dual meet record to 6-1 Tuesday evening by flattening Keyser, 55-24, and crushing Fort Hill, 52-17, in a tri-match hosted by the Golden Tornados.

In the contest with Keyser, seven Rams recorded pinfall victories, including Justin Ratliff in the 119-pound division, Daniel Carr in the 125-pound encounter, Andrew Pritts in the 130-pound matchup, Nathan Sines in the 135-pound clash, Chris Tepper at 152 pounds, Scott Wildesen at 160 pounds, and Jason Weeks in the 171-pound division.

Earning a technical fall for Southern was Chris Bennett at 189 pounds, while Josh Armstrong earned a major decision in the 103-pound bout and Jeremy Gregory recorded a decision in the 145-pound class.

Golden Tornados gaining pins were Nathan Durr (112), Daniel Feaster (140), John Shillingburg (215), and Aaron Stump (275).

The Rams dropped the first two matches against Fort Hill, but then won 11 of the final 12 to post the lopsided team victory.

Winning on pins for the Rams were Wildesen, Brandon Manko (171), Weeks, Bennett, and Dan Goulart (275).

Pritts and Sines both won by technical fall, and Ratliff and Carr were decision winners.

Two of the Sentinels' three wins were via pins by Michael Hupe (103) and Kenny Squires (152).

The Rams will be back in action this evening at Northern, where they are favored to defeat the Huskies for the first time since 1986.

They will then host Frankfort, Westmar, and Northern in a make-up quad match next Tuesday before traveling to Beall next Thursday.

Garrett Women Down High-Flying Hawks, Bag Cougars

The Garrett College women's basketball team passed a big JUCO test Friday by defeating a powerful Hagerstown squad 75-60, and last night the Lakers followed up with a huge 89-38 win over a struggling Frederick unit. Garrett's record is now 8-2.

Going into the Hagerstown game, freshman guard and Southern High alumna Ashley Liller was third in the Maryland JUCO scoring average standings with a 19.5 average, and fellow freshman guard Denae Kennedy, a native of Baltimore, was second in assist average with 6.63 per game.

Friday's contest was against a tough Hawks' squad that brought an 8-4 record into the battle. Garrett grabbed the lead in the early going before the hosts knotted the score at 10-all. GC took control from there, and by the intermission was up by a sizable 39-26 margin. The Lakers controlled the second half with a 36-34 run.

A well-balanced offensive effort proved key to Garrett's victory, as sophomore post player Tamika Duck and freshman guard Ashley Liller scored 16 points apiece, and sophomore guard Jenna Bradford contributed 13 points. Duck grabbed a team-high nine rebounds, Bradford handed out four assists and snagged three steals, and freshman guard Denae Kennedy had five assists and two steals. Hagerstown was paced by Ariel Holsom's 13 points.

Last night's 51-point win over the Cougars was paced by Liller and LaSha Anderson, who netted 21 and 19 points, respectively. Bradford and Kennedy both had superb all-around performances, as each hit for 14 points and snagged seven steals. Bradford also hauled down 11 rebounds and handed out four assists,

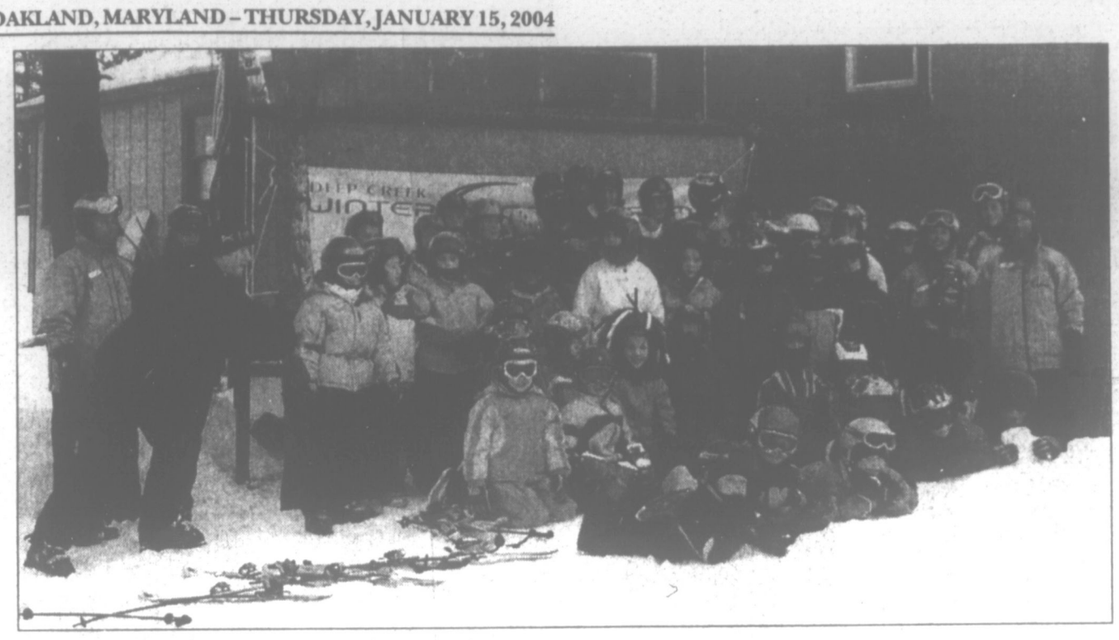
DC Winter Sports Team Kicks Off With Mini-Camp



The Deep Creek Winter Sports Team (DCWST) kicked off its inaugural year with a four-day mini-camp at Wisp at Deep Creek Mountain Resort recently. Over 40 youth attended the camp.

During the first two days of mini-camp, up to 11 ski and snowboard coaches worked alongside parent volunteers to instill the team's core values and goals in the youth members, and outline fundamental racing skills. Over the last two days, members had their first opportunity to ski and snowboard through slalom gates.

In addition to camp, several team members placed in two different competitions during the first weekend of competition for the year.

Placing first and second in the first of four Ford Big Air Series at Wisp were team member Tom Wallish and coach Josh Spiker, with local youth Taylor Cabe finishing in third place. Tom Warnick, in the junior division, rounded out skier wins.

In the snowboard junior division, team members Garrett and Blake Kiedrowski placed first and second, respectively, with local rider Alec Holloway taking third. The top finishers in the next class were Mark Nester placing first, Jeff Wright in second place, and John Schmidt clinching third.

At another ~~local~~ U.S. Amateur Ski Association competition the DCWST was represented by Blake Kiedrowski in the Borders-cross and Slopestyle events, and he finished first in both.

"Based on the high level of talent apparent in team members, we have great expectations for the future success of the Deep Creek Winter Sports Team," stated head coach Greg Rouse.

The DCWST has slated its first Invitational Race at Wisp for Sunday, Feb. 1. Persons interested in joining the team or participating in the Invitational may contact the team at dcwst@hotmail.com.

Results of the Ford Built Tough Super Pipe Jam skiing and snowboarding competition, hosted Saturday by the Wisp in McHenry, were announced.

Placing first in the skiing division was Brian Schlossnagle, followed by Patrick Drumm in second and Patrick Digioia, third.

Mark Nester was the top finisher in the snowboarding division for ages 13 and over. Runner-up was John Schmidt, and placing third was Paul Beatty.

The winner in the snowboarding division for ages 12 and under was Chad Miller. Dylan Kiedrowski finished second and Garrett Kiedrowski placed third.

throughout the week of the crash, as well as providing shelter for family of the soldiers, has annually received Christmas cards from relatives of some family members. Klotz was instrumental in the days of the search, urging the local ladies to turn on their porch lights and to help out.

When talking with those who were directly connected to this event, either through providing food, shelter, or rescuing services, the one thing that many hold in highest remembrance is the way in which the entire community worked together for the common cause. Residents from throughout the immediate area all chipped in, doing whatever they could.

As of five years ago, there have still been no direct quotes from both Boeing and the Air Force in regard to the final flight of Buzz One Four.

They had both also declined to respond to a series of questions, saying that it was just too long ago.

Gasoline Prices Hit Historic January High

Less than a month into the New Year, Maryland motorists have seen their holiday gift of lower gas prices suddenly stolen by cold temperatures and costlier crude oil. The cost of self-serve, regular unleaded gasoline in Maryland and nationwide has jumped to $1.57 a gallon, the highest price ever recorded in January.

Gas prices have surged by more than 10 cents a gallon in Maryland since the beginning of December. At the same time that temperatures dropped into the teens last week in Maryland, the price of crude oil shot upward and gas prices followed.

"Maryland gas prices climbed a penny a day last week," said John White, public and government relations manager for AAA Mid-Atlantic. "The bitter cold weather that swept through much of the country resulted in high crude oil prices, which were passed along to consumers. As always, the advice is to shop around. Don't wait until your gas tank is nearly empty, leaving you at the mercy of the nearest station."

Last month, Maryland consumers enjoyed a reprieve from the pre-Labor Day gas spikes and were paying only $1.46 per gallon. One year ago, a price for a gallon of unleaded fuel in Maryland was $1.49 a gallon.

Crude oil prices peaked at over $35 a barrel yesterday – the highest price since before Operation Iraqi Freedom began last March. Some industry analysts are attributing very high crude oil prices to recent terrorist concerns. Since the year-end holiday season passed without a major terrorist incident in Europe or the United States, analysts expect crude oil prices to recede. If this happens, gas prices should also come down considering there appears to be adequate gasoline supplies nationwide.

Today, the average prices for a gallon of self-serve, unleaded gas are as follows: National $1.57 (today) and $1.47 (year ago), Maryland $1.57 (today) and $.149 (year ago), and Cumberland $1.60 (today) $1.47 (year ago).

AAA Mid-Atlantic serves 3.4 million members in Delaware, the District of Columbia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Virginia. It provides a wide range of automotive, personal insurance, travel, and financial services through its 50-plus retail branches, regional operations centers, and the Internet. Ask The Everyday Scientist

EXTREME COLD AND THE GREENHOUSE EFFECT

Q. I've noticed that when it's really extremely, bitterly cold, it doesn't snow very much. It seems that most of the snow falls on medium-cold days in the winter. Is this just my imagination, or is it real?

The effect is real—extreme cold is seldom accompanied by much snow.

The reason has to do with cloud cover. In order for snow to fall, there have to be clouds overhead, and the snow forms within those clouds. (Actually, even in the summer, precipitation starts to fall as snow, but melts high above the ground, and arrives in the form of rain.) If there is no cloud cover, there won't be any snow.

Meanwhile, the earth radiates heat away, both day and night. That radiation is in the infrared part of the spectrum. The surface of the earth gets cooler as the radiation leaves. If there are no clouds above a certain region, the radiation goes away into space. But where there are clouds overhead, the radiation is reflected back toward the earth by the clouds. The reflected radiation keeps the earth a little warmer.

This pattern of radiation going back and forth is known as the greenhouse effect, because in a greenhouse, sunlight of all wavelengths can enter through the glass roof, but infrared radiation given off by the vegetation inside will not go out through the roof, but is reflected back down, thus keeping the entire inside of the greenhouse warm. Nowadays, most of the attention given to the greenhouse effect has to do with global warming, and nobody thinks about global warming when it's freezing cold out. But the greenhouse effect due to cloud cover takes place all year-round.

On a day with no clouds, the absence of reflecting clouds means that the earth can cool down a lot. On a night when the temperature drops to 0 degree Fahrenheit, chances are that it's a clear night, and radiation can completely escape. It's not going to snow on such cloudless occasions. Bring the clouds back and the greenhouse effect raises the temperature; but now those clouds might open up and drop some snow. So what you've noticed is really true: Extremely cold days tend not to have all that much snow. The snow tends to fall mostly when the temperature is somewhat warmer, around 20 or 30 degrees Fahrenheit.

There are other important factors, of course, such as wind velocity, temperature in neighboring regions, altitude, and the movements of low pressure/high pressure fronts. The amount of sunlight hitting different parts of the earth contributes to warmth—Georgia is a lot warmer than Minnesota. Nevertheless, within any region, the coldest climes usually have clear skies.

One other thing happens in winter: When a large region of ground is covered with snow, the white surface tends to reflect away incoming sunlight. We call this the albedo of the surface. That tends to keep it cold longer than if sunlight could strike bare ground. To speak of the "icy grip of winter" refers to a combination of several effects reinforcing one another to keep conditions cold.

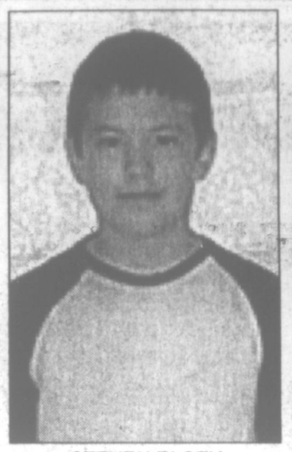
4-H Club News

BITTINGER
by Darryl Glotfelty

The youth of the Bittinger community made time in their busy schedules to participate in an active year in 4-H. The club meets every first Monday of the month at the Bittinger fire hall at 7 p.m. Any young people in the community are welcome to join, ages 8-18. Club members are gradually graduating and some new faces would keep the club active.

To recap the past year:

January – Don Sealing cooked a turkey dinner with all the trimmings for the clubs and their families.



STEVEN ELSEY

Club officers elected for the year are as follows: Robbie Glotfelty, president; Claire Sussman, vice president; Blakely Glotfelty, secretary; Elliot Glotfelty, treasurer; and Emma Bass, reporter.

February – Vicki Teets held a craft workshop on origami. There was free snowtubing at the Wisp for all 4-Hers sponsored by the livestock association.

March – Each member presented a speech to the club. Blakely Glotfelty went on to the county and regional contest and did very well. The club hosted a buckwheat supper featuring Pat Lohr's famous buckwheat cakes.

April – Almost all members of the club attended 4-H Achievement Night at NHS where they received awards for their accomplishments in 4-H over the past year. The whole club also went on a guided deep exploration of Laurel Caverns. For most members it was a first spelunking exploration.

May – The Bittinger club did a Memorial Day weekend clean up of Rt. 495. A leadership training session was attended by several members at the 4-H camp.

June – Jodi Brenneman participated in the Spring Livestock Show at the fairgrounds. She was an excellent showman with her market lamb and market beef. Many members of our club attended 4-H camp. Robbie Glotfelty served as an O Chief; Blakely Glotfelty, Matt Bass, and Claire Sussman all served as tribe leaders; and Scott Bass, Darryl and Elliot Glotfelty, and Caity Sussman served as sagamores.

July – Members of the club spent one morning traveling to each others farms to see livestock projects. Following the visits there was a special program by Melissa Lucas, a trainer of search and rescue dogs.

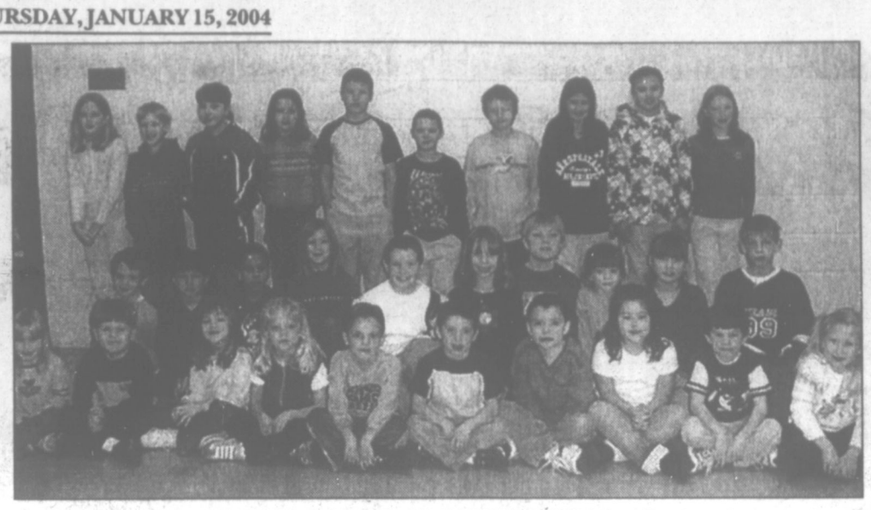
August – All members spent a very busy week at the fair. All members entered something and most members were kept busy with showing and selling their livestock projects.

October – The club participated in Adopt-A-Highway for the second time this year for a final cleanup of Rt. 495 before winter. All club members gave demonstrations at the October meeting.

November – The club served at the Woodman of the World dinner, and hosted a buckwheat supper to raise money for the clubs upcoming activities.

December – Talented musicians of the club presented a musical Christmas program for the residents of the Goodwill Nursing Home.

The Bittinger 4-H Club is planning for an eventful year in 2004. Anyone interested in joining should call Marci Glotfelty at 301-245-4543 or attend a regularly scheduled meeting.



STUDENTS HONORED FOR PE AT DENNETT ROAD – During the month of December, many Dennett Road Elementary students were chosen as Physical Education Students of the Month. They demonstrated caring qualities and followed the rules of PE. In the front, from the left, are Kristin Britner, Logan Hinebaugh, Ashton Higdon, Madison Cooper, Greyson Messinger, Jeffery DeWitt, Quentin Sisler, Morgan Tasker, Seth Matthews, and Brianna Evans. ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Jeremiah Wilt of Oakland and Amanda N. Nazelrod, both members of Co. C, 129th Signal Bn., located at Brown Ave, Cumberland, were promoted recently to the rank of E4 by John V. Tonello, the unit commander.

Spc. Wilt has been a member of the military for three years, all in this unit. The promotion brings a new position, that of specialist, with the responsibilities for multi-channel transmission system operator/maintainer.

In civilian life, Wilt is employed by Sunset Builders as a carpenter's helper.

Spc. Nazelrod has been a member of the military for two years, both in this unit. The promotion brings a new position, that also of specialist, with responsibilities as a 31U, a signal support specialist.

In civilian life, Nazelrod is employed by ACS of Frostburg as a Nextel representative. She also attends Garrett College, with a major in social and behavioral sciences.

Bravo gives 'Keen Eddie' a reprieve of sorts

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Mark Valley

'KEEN EDDIE' LIVES: Well, sort of. The smart, funny Fox comedy canceled way too quickly by its trigger-happy network has been given a reprieve by Bravo. The arts channel has acquired rights to all 13 existing episodes of the 2003 series starring Mark Valley as a wisecracking New York cop working for London's Scotland Yard, including six that Fox never broadcast. Bravo airs the original "Keen Eddie" pilot on Tuesday, Jan. 20, followed a week later by one of the previously unseen episodes.

There are no plans to produce additional original episodes, however.

Q: Is Joe Mantegna, who plays the father in "Joan of Arcadia," the same actor who played one of the Shirk brothers in the movie comedy "The Money Pit"? –Susan Kristie, Bridgeport, Conn.

A: Yes, Mantegna, 56, played lecherous carpenter Art Shirk in that 1986 Tom Hanks-Shelley Long comedy. Since then, the actor has become a familiar face in films and TV, but many people still think he has done his best work on stage in the plays of David Mamet, including "Glengarry Glen Ross," for which Mantegna won a Tony Award, and "Speed the Plow."

Q: The recent deaths of both John Ritter and his mother leave me wondering when John's father, Tex Ritter, died. What was his real name? (I'm sure it wasn't Tex). He was my favorite cowboy movie star. –Bob Myers, Fort Worth, Texas.

A: You're right, Bob. Woodward Maurice Ritter is a far cry from the screen name by which most people knew this singing cowboy star, who died of a heart attack on Jan. 2, 1974, just a few days before his 69th birthday.

Q: Did John Wayne ever make a movie called "Somewhere in Sonora"? –Sarah Christopher, age 84, Lower Lake, Calif.

A: Yes, Wayne starred in this 1933 Western, which is available on VHS via special order from Amazon.com.

Q: I love the show "8 Simple Rules ..." and I think they did a wonderful job on the show concerning the father's funeral. Please tell me where I might have seen Martin Spanjers (Rory) on TV before. –L.J.P., Eddystone, Pa.

A: Spanjers, who turns 17 on Feb. 2, made his acting debut at age 7 as Michael Darling in a summer theater production of "Peter Pan." After several other plays, he moved into the film and TV arenas, appearing in the features "The Ride," "Perfect Game," "Max Keeble's Big Move" and "Home."

He is perhaps best known to viewers from his series roles in "Daddio" and the Olsen twins' sitcom "Two of a Kind," as well as guest appearances on "Touched by an Angel," "The Hughleys," "Malcolm in the Middle," "Grosse Pointe," "First Monday" and "All About the Andersons."

IN FOCUS

Goths are among the marauding conquerors explained in "Barbarians" airing Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 19 and 20, on The History Channel.

The four hours are divided among Vikings and Goths the first night, and Mongols and Huns the second.

Covering 1,000 years of history, the special features re-enactments that were done on locations made to look like the times they are depicting.

A slew of history experts are on hand to guide the making of this epic.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• It may seem a little strange that one of the most famous directors of all time, Steven Spielberg, was an English major in college. He actually wanted to study film, but the film school at the University of Southern California rejected his application.

• The world's first traffic signal was in England, and it was put up surprisingly early — in 1868.

• If it has seeds, it's a fruit. This includes cucumbers, tomatoes, squash and okra.

• Civil War combat photojournalists moved bodies around to compose more dramatic shots. They even staged some pictures using live soldiers lying sprawled on the ground.

• Sailboats go faster sailing across the wind line than they do sailing downwind.

• Bin Laden Aviation in San Antonio was started by Salem bin Laden — Osama's brother — who often traveled to Texas on family business.

• The number of American coal miners who have died in mining accidents is greater than the number of American soldiers who died in all of World War II.

• If you could gather all the world's population into a single room, roughly every third person would speak some form of Chinese.

• Professional truckers drove over 200 billion miles last year.

• Many think of the Pilgrims and the founding fathers as being members of the same generation. But the Mayflower landed in 1620, and the Declaration of Independence was not signed until 1776, 156 years later. If you consider a generation to be 20 years, that's almost eight generations later. To put it another way, that's like the difference between this year (2004) and the year 1848!

Kitchen Cabinet

Q. I have a kitchen cabinet made during the 1920s. It is cream and green. How much is it worth? — John, Louisa, Va.

A. Your question is impossible to answer. Who manufactured this cabinet, what condition is it and what type of cabinet is it? An appraiser in your region might be able to help you. Two members of the International Society of Appraisers from Virginia are Barbara Walter, 8287 Reunion Drive, Mechanicsville, VA 23111; and Elizabeth Bullock, P.O. Box 24, Richmond, VA 23173. You should expect to pay a nominal fee for their services.

Q. I am in the process of liquidating an old farm. The barn is filled with various tools and equipment. I would like to establish some sort of values, since other family members are depending on my expertise. — Paul, Green Valley, Ariz.

A. "300 Years of Farm Implements and Machinery 1630-1930" by Ronald Stokes Barlow (Krause Publications, $19.95) should answer most of your questions about such things as combines, tools and plows. Barlow has spent most of his lifetime collecting and studying farm equipment and is nationally recognized as an expert. In addition to fairly common equipment, there's also the more obscure items such as the Western Potato Bug Sprinkler (no farm should be without one!). Extras in this fascinating new book include period advertising copy, detailed engravings and rich illustrations.

Health Insurance for Pets

Q. I saw a brochure at the vet's office that advertised health insurance for pets. Come on, why would a pet need insurance? — Chuck S., via e-mail

A. As more and more advanced medical techniques are introduced to the animal world, pet healthcare costs are rising, just as their owners' healthcare costs have climbed. And many pet owners consider their dog or cat to be members of the family — as important as their children and relatives.

Unfortunately, not everyone can afford to pay for the advanced medical treatment available to pets. Dogs and cats face health risks similar to humans, like skin or bone cancer, tumors or systemic diseases — not to mention accidents. When the costs of care rise above what owners can afford, euthanasia often becomes the only recourse for a sick pet.

Pet health insurance can be structured to pay for regular veterinary visits, medication, vaccinations, lab fees, surgeries, hospitalization or emergency care. Rather than worry about what an unforeseen health problem may cost them, owners can create a healthcare budget for their pet that fits their overall household budget, allowing them to manage expenses no matter what happens.

While not everyone agrees that pet insurance will work for them, the idea is catching on. Look into health insurance options available for your pet — not just at the vet's office, but at pet stores or through kennel clubs and other pet-friendly places. You may just become a fan of the insurance plan.

Many of us have had the misfortune to suffer a broken bone or to sympathize with someone who has. The worst part is the pain of the broken bone. Then there is the discomfort and confinement of the solid cast, allowing no mobility of the area, no leeway for the bone to bend. Yet, this must be so that the bone heals straight and strong to support the body again.

Similarly, God heals a broken spirit. In Jeremiah 23:9, we read, "My heart is broken within me, all my bones shake." For a spirit to heal, we must stay close to God, not bending to the familiarity of "quick fixes." This may seem uncomfortable during times of temptation, yet as the bone heals, so does the spirit, in due time. Nehemiah 8:10 proclaims "....the joy of the Lord is your strength."

Is your spirit weak? Visit the Great Physician at your church or synagogue this week. He will strengthen you.

What Do You Want?

This is such a simple question, and yet its simplicity obscures its depth. In the context of ordering dinner at a restaurant there is nothing particularly profound about this question. But in the context of our lives this is perhaps the deepest and most important question we can ask ourselves. Do we want fame or fortune, or a simple life devoted to serving God? Do we want to share our life with just one person or do we want a big family? And, can we even answer this question without knowing what others may want for us? In other words, is it important to know what our family and friends want for us, or can we decide what we want on our own? Is it important for us to know what God wants for us, and from us? How we answer this question certainly speaks volumes about us. When we are hungry, we are likely to want food, and when we are spiritually hungry, we are likely to want God. We should think long and hard about this simple question and ever harder about its answer, for they have the power to transform our lives.

Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant in search of fine pearls, who, on finding one pearl of great value, went and sold all that he had and bought it.

Cinnamon Provides Medicinal Value As Well

Cinnamon bark has been used for healing for centuries. When taken by mouth, cinnamon has been shown to decrease intestinal gas, stomach cramps, and stimulate a lagging appetite. The volatile oils found in cinnamon bark are thought to be responsible for cinnamon's medicinal qualities. The main constituent, cinnamaldehyde, at low doses, stimulates the central nervous system, but in higher amounts it can be a sedative. This active ingredient is also thought to increase blood flow to the extremities, slow the heart rate, reduce blood pressure, and affect blood sugar levels, although all these effects have been found to be fairly weak.

Preliminary research suggests that a different constituent in cinnamon might improve sensitivity to insulin in persons with diabetis. A recent study showed that a half a teaspoon daily of cinnamon taken in a cup of tea or on cereal reduced sugar levels in diabetics. Researchers cautioned against the dialy use of cinnamon from cinnamon buns or apple pie because of the fat and sugar content usually associated with such foods.

WEPCO To Open New "Drive-Thru"

WEPCO Federal Credit Union has announced its plans to open a new drive-through facility on Fourth Street in Oakland, between McDonald's Restaurant and Garrett County Memorial Hospital. WEPCO has already posted a sign on the property.

While the opening date is unknown, construction should begin sometime in early spring, said a spokesperson. The facility will only provide drive-up services and will have four lanes with the ability to "stack" approximately 25 vehicles.

The new facility is being added to speed up service to members and cut down on traffic at the Oakland branch located on Garrett Highway, added the spokesperson. That facility will remain open for lobby traffic only and will handle new accounts, lobby teller services, and loans. However, the drive-up will be closed at the Garrett Highway office, with renovations planned for that building to add additional services and space for members.

WEPCO Federal Credit Union currently has three offices located in Bloomington, Oakland, and Keyser. WEPCO serves anyone who lives, works, worships, owns a business, or belongs to an organization within Allegany, Garrett, Mineral, Tucker, and Preston counties.

For additional information, persons may contact any Credit Union office.

Zion Lutheran Church Hosts Bloodmobile

An American Red Cross bloodmobile was recently held at Zion Lutheran Church in Accident. Twenty-two productive units of blood were obtained from 30 prospective donors, according to a church spokesperson.

Additionally, a milestone was reached by Kenneth Bowman who became a one-gallon donor.

Volunteers serving at the drive were coordinator Rev. Dr. Wilfred Karsten, greeters Mildred Haenftling and Arlene Georg, walker Jack Parker, and canteen workers Carol Edmiston, Shirley Higdon, Ruth Boehmer, Ruth Bowman, Lynette Karsten, and Rachel Karsten.

Jack Parker, Hobert Bower, and Jim Fratz also helped with setup. Sandwiches, cookies, and juice were provided by the Zion Lutheran Ladies Aid, the sponsor of the drive.

Felting Workshop Slated At Thomas Education Center

MountainMade.com will host "Hand Felted Wool Fiber Vessels," a felting workshop, on Saturday, Jan 31, at the Thomas Education Center, Douglas Road, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m.

During the one-day class, students will use sheep's wool, available in many colors, and the "felting on the ball" technique to create a vessel of their own design. The process requires no sewing, weaving or binding agents, and no experience is necessary.

The wool fibers naturally become felted when they are rubbed by hand in warm, soapy water. The vessel begins in ball form, and students will be able to transform the shape into their liking. They will also be able to add surface designs to the shape during the process.

Award-winning fiber artist and teacher Lori Flood will conduct the workshop. Her work is featured at MountainMade, Tamarack, the Wheeling Artisan Center, The Gallery at the Seneca Center, and at galleries in other states. She recently won an Award of Excellence in the West Virginia Juried Exhibition 2003 at the Cultural Center in Charleston.

The workshop is limited to 12 participants. There is a $15 materials fee. For more information, a list of supplies, or to register for the workshop, persons may call MountainMaid.com at 304-463-3355 or 1-877-686-6233.

MountainMaid.com is a program of the MountainMade Foundation, a nonprofit organization designed to assist West Virginia artists with marketing and business education opportunities. More information is available at mountainmade.com.

Gov. Ehrlich Commits To Protecting Much Of State's Remaining Farmland

Governor Robert Ehrlich's commitment to permanently protect more than 40 percent of Maryland's remaining farmland puts the state on course to ensure a future for farming and contributes to the restoration of the Chesapeake Bay, according to American Farmland Trust, a national farmland conservation group.

In Maryland's Land Conservation Program – the governor's plan to improve water quality in the Chesapeake Bay – the governor directs state agencies to meet a key goal set by the state legislature in 2002 to permanently protect 1,030,000 acres of farmland by 2022. That's more than 40 percent of the estimated 2.5 million acres of farmland left in Maryland.

"The governor's commitment to permanently protect more than 40 percent of the state's remaining agricultural land – and to work to find the funding – is wonderful news for farmers and for all citizens of Maryland who enjoy fresh, local food, green open spaces, clean water and healthy communities," said Ralph Grossi, president of American Farmland Trust.

Although agriculture is considered one of Maryland's most important industries, it is also one of its most endangered. More than 14,000 acres of productive farmland were converted to development in 2002, according to the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation. At the same time, agricultural products contributed roughly $1.8 billion to Maryland's economy in 2001, and 325 companies that pack or process farm products employed 21,200 workers and paid $787 million in wages in 2000.

"Agriculture is still one of the state's principal industries," said Kevin Schmidt, American Farmland Trust's Maryland state director. "We applaud the governor's recognition of the importance of agriculture to the state's economy and his commitment to working toward a sustainable future for the industry."

Schmidt also commended elements of the governor's land conservation plan that called for strategic mapping of the state's remaining farmland through the use of a collaborative process that involves various stakeholders. Farms for the Future, a Maryland mapping project conducted by American Farmland Trust and the Chesapeake Bay Foundation in 1995, demonstrated that farmers, communities, and local land conservation groups could effectively come together to identify the most important agricultural land in the state.

"At the end of the day, the governor's plan to strategically identify and protect the state's most economically and environmentally important agricultural lands adds up to a smart and efficient use of state funds," Schmidt said.

USDA Releasing 2002 Agriculture Census Data

Updated information about the agriculture industry in Maryland and in the United States will be made available on Tuesday, Feb. 3, when the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) releases initial 2002 Census of Agriculture data. Information for the 2002 census, which is conducted nationally every five years, was gathered during 2002 and early 2003.

"The Census of Agriculture is the nation's largest information-gathering project for farming," said Agriculture secretary Lewis R. Riley. "The results provide invaluable tools to understand changes in farming and to plan for the future. I thank each and every Maryland farmer for making the effort to complete the census."

The forthcoming census data will include numbers of farms, land on farms, value of sales, types of operations, and principal operator by primary occupation. In addition, selected operator characteristics by race, gender, and national origin will also be available These data include sex of operator, primary occupation, years on present farm, number of persons living in the household, race, and age group categories.

"Snapshots of U.S. agriculture dating back to 1840 are available to the public thanks to the participation of American farmers in the Census of Agriculture," said Norman Bennett, director for the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. "Each response by a farmer adds to the statistical profile created by the Census of Agriculture. The full census results provide a comprehensive portrait of agriculture at the county, state, and national levels and make up the statistics used to promote Maryland agriculture and agricultural products, develop state and local agriculture policies, and target outreach programs."

The complete tabulated Census of Agriculture data for Maryland and the 23 Maryland counties (in addition to all other states and counties in the U.S.) will be available in late spring, 2004. In addition to a complete county-level picture of agriculture, the 2002 Census of Agriculture will include new information on multiple operator characteristics, production contracts, computer and Internet use, and more detailed farm-related income.

A farm, for census purposes, is any place from which at least $1,000 worth of agricultural products were produced and sold or could have been sold during the census year.

All reports will be available free through the NASS Web site at www.usda.gov/nass/. For additional information or questions regarding published data, persons may call the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service at 1-800-675-0295, or e-mail norman_bennett@nass.usda.gov.

Ag. Statistics Svc. To Survey Farm Water Use Needs

To gather reliable information about irrigated land, the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) of the United States Department of Agriculture is conducting the 2003 Farm and Ranch Irrigation Survey during January and February. More than 300 Maryland farmers will be asked to participate in this year's survey, and should receive a report form in the mail sometime late this month.

"Producers participating in this survey will make an important contribution to the U.S. agricultural community," said Agriculture secretary Lewis R. Riley. "Accurate and complete responses from farmers help industry representatives, leaders, and planners chart the best course for the future of on-farm irrigation, and I encourage farmers to respond to the survey as fully as possible."

"USDA has an obligation to provide reliable data on the prevalence of farm irrigation and associated practices," said Norman Bennett, director for the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. "This survey gives NASS the data necessary to do that and to measure many factors, including the effects of irrigation on production, type of system, and overall water usage in weather conditions of all types."

Every response is held strictly confidential by law (Title 7, U.S. Code). The information is used only in combination with all other responses to produce state and national summarized totals. Over 300 of Maryland's irrigated farms are being asked to provide information on their irrigation practices, as are thousands of farms around the nation. Results from this irrigation survey are scheduled for release in the fall.

According to the 1998 Farm and Ranch Irrigation Survey, 50 million acres were irrigated in the United States (55,150 acres in Maryland), compared to 46 million acres irrigated in 1994.

All agricultural statistics, including irrigation data, are published by NASS on the Internet at www.usda.gov/nass/. For information on this survey or other NASS reports, persons may call the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service at 1-800-675-0295, or e-mail norman_bennett@nass.usda.gov.

In Memory of Bill O'Brien

In one sense there is no death. The life of a soul on earth lasts beyond his departure.

We will always feel that life touching ours, that voice speaking to us, that spirit looking out of other eyes. Talking to us in familiar things he touched, worked with, loved.

He lives on in our life and in the lives of all others who knew him.

Great American Smokeout Helps GC Residents "Kick The Habit"

Kicking the habit can be tough, especially for those who have smoked for years. But that didn't stop 15 Garrett County residents from quitting on the day of the Great American Smokeout in November.

"The Great American Smokeout is an upbeat, good-natured effort to encourage smokers to give up cigarettes for 24 hours," said Kendra Todd, director of health education at the Garrett County Health Department. "If smokers can prove to themselves they can do it for the day, they might quit for good."

This was the case with at least two of the successful quitters on the Great American Smokeout. Christy Thomas of Friendsville and Jimmy Browning of Kitzmiller both quit on Nov. 20, and have remained smoke free since.

Thomas participated in the Health Department's smoking cessation class that began in October and chose Nov. 20 as her official quit date, in conjunction with the smokeout.

Browning was encouraged to quit by his mother, a member of the Kitzmiller Empowerment Group, an organization that provides alcohol, tobacco, drug, and teen pregnancy prevention information.

"Kitzmiller went all out in promoting the Great American Smokeout," said Health Department spokesperson. In addition to encouraging their family and adult friends to quit smoking for the day, students in kindergarten through fifth grade at Kitzmiller Elementary School also participated in a poster contest. In their art classes they created designs with tobacco-prevention messages.

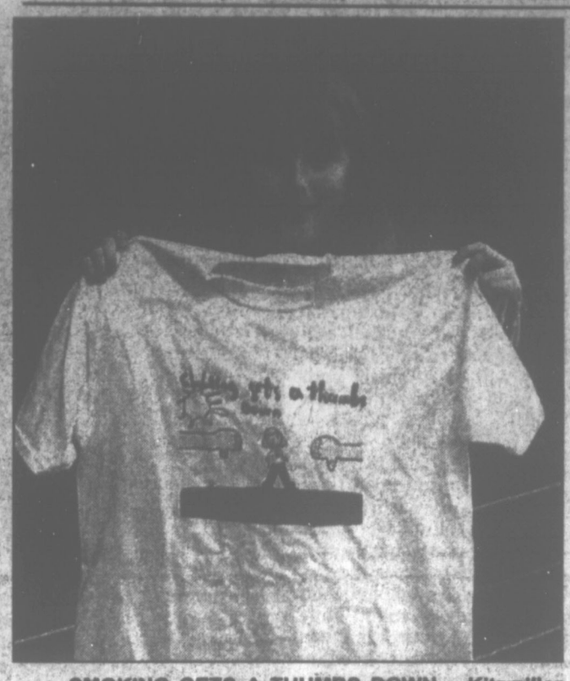
The winning design, created by Caitlyn Virts, was then printed on a T-shirt that was given to each student and staff member at the school. The contest was sponsored by the Kitzmiller Empowerment Group.

The group also sponsored an awards ceremony, where winning poster designers from each grade were recognized and ice cream sundaes were provided to all the participants. Community members who quit for the Great American Smokeout were also invited to participate in the awards ceremony.

Countywide, those persons who successfully quit for the smokeout, as well those who supported them in their efforts, were rewarded with a coupon for a dessert at either Perkins or Denny's restaurants. Each of these restaurants provided the coupons to support the Health Department's Great American Smokeout promotion.

For more information about the smokeout or quitting smoking, persons may call the Health Department at 301-334-7730 or 301-895-3111 or visit its web site at garretthealth.org.

QUITTERS ARE WINNERS IN THE GREAT AMERICAN SMOKEOUT – Several Garrett County residents successfully quit smoking on the day of the Great American Smokeout, Nov. 20, with assistance from the Garrett County Health Department's outreach workers. See story for details. According to the department, 27 adults pledged to quit smoking for that day, and 15 of the 27 were successful. As a reward, Denny's Diner, Oakland, and Perkins Restaurant, McHenry, provided coupons for a free dessert to each successful quitter. Pictured above, left to right, are Brenda Frazee, community outreach worker, Christy Thomas, successful quitter, and Brian Kivett, manager of Perkins. Thomas not only quit on the day of the Great American Smokeout, but she has also remained smoke free since then with additional assistance from the Health Department's smoking cessation program. Pictured below are Amanda McDonald, another successful quitter, and Robert Hinebaugh, Denny's Diner manager, giving her a dessert coupon.



SMOKING GETS A THUMBS DOWN – Kitzmiller Elementary School fifth grader Caitlyn Virts, above, created the winning T-shirt design for a Great American Smokeout promotion, recently sponsored by the Kitzmiller Empowerment Group. The design on the shirt reads "Smoking Gets a Thumbs Down." All students at the school, kindergarten through fifth grade, participated in the contest. They were also encouraged to adopt an adult friend or family member who smokes and encourage her or him to quit for the Great American Smokeout, which took place on Nov. 20. See article on this page for more details.

Start Fixing Bad Credit Now!

If you've had credit problems in the past and are worried about how you'll ever be able to finance a home or repair your credit history, you'll be happy to learn that it's possible to do both. Practically anyone with a reasonable income can contact a mortgage broker and secure a loan to buy a home.

There might be just one catch you may have to pay a much higher interest rate than the current market average. But if you can successfully apply for that mortgage and consistently make your payments in full and on time, you'll find that in a few short years you can refinance at a much lower rate.

It's important to begin as soon as possible, however, while the rates are still so amazingly low. Even what we consider higher rates now were just normal rates a few years ago!

It makes a lot of sense to pay higher interest now, build up a better credit record, and then refinance at a lower rate. Why? Because, over time, your home's value will almost certainly appreciate. You'll be building up equity, and that may even allow you to take out some cash when you refinance!

Remember that it's never too late or too soon to repair your credit, build up equity, and experience the pride that comes with owning your own home.

If you'd like to buy a home, but feel "out of touch" with what's happening in real estate, give me a call today!

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

By June, "Notes From Bittinger" will be written under my new name. You all can help spread the word that I will again become Joan Glotfelty, so if someone wants to locate me and is not successful, they should look for me under that name. I am unsure how much trouble it will be to officially change it, and I'm not sure what bureaucratic details are involved with that, so I'm not sure yet that I will go the full route to do that. But my byline will be Glotfelty, as I feel myself gradually becoming now, even though it's not yet official.

As winter comes to Bittinger, I am feeling pretty fed up trying to get more local news, as it seems this week few have anything to add or share, so here is what I know.

Sally Poholsky hasn't returned my call yet to give me the straight story about their vacation. Word is they went to Hawaii. I assume this is true, because it seems like just the place they would end up. No Florida or Carolina for them, I guess (although I hear they did stop off in California to see Leah and Michael and had a great visit). I bet that Sally will be in shock with the cold weather this past week.

I just got Sally on the phone. She, Lenny, and Torrey were joined on their adventure by Steve and Maryellen Prescot. They had some pretty heavy seas on the cruise across the Pacific, high enough to reach their cabin portholes. They got to visit four of seven islands of Hawaii, and enjoyed beautiful weather while there, along with some great food. They enjoyed the Mercedes Golf Tournament and collected some great autographs.

Our black Lab Boo found a new friend. She has been lonely since our little old Emily died last year. The Weaver family, who lives in Pappy Dale's old house, have a great little dog named Ben. They had another great little dog (I forget his name now, but I always called him Toto because he came from Kansas and kind of looked like that pooch from the Wizard of Oz), but he met an untimely end on Rock Lodge by one of the speeding cars we get along here. Anyway, Boo and Ben seem to have found each other, and I often see them playing together in the field between our two homes.

Sheila Southerly is recovering nicely from her second bout of kidney stones. Actually, she is just relieved that it is over, as she says it was worse than childbirth. That is pretty bad, at least according to my experience. As far as natural childbirth goes (I don't know what they do for kidney stones), when my doctor tried to talk me out of pain medicines I told him, "Either you give me medicine or just get a big two by four and hit me over the head." Sheila didn't say she had this discussion with her doctor. She says that he can't tell her how to prevent any further attacks, or why she is prone to develop them.

It is amazing that my uncle, Dr. Ralph Hummel of Olympia, Washington, has finally reached his decision to retire from a long, successful career as a psychiatrist. Uncle Ralph grew up in the New Germany area. My family used to visit his family in the Pittsburgh area when he was a resident there. They then moved to Topeka, Kansas, and spent some time doing research in using medications in treating serious mental illnesses. They finally moved to the Pacific north coast, where he and wife, Betty (Boo) Glotfelty Hummel, finished raising their three children. When he was off work (rarely) he enjoyed fishing and picking banjo. He was a guest of honor at a retirement party on January 10 that included "toasts and roasts." I always thought he was a natural for his profession, because he was so down to earth and easy to talk to. It was always fun to have a conversation with him. He and I shared an interest in wild mushroom hunting. I will never forget the hunt in my woods when I was almost ready to have my first baby. We crawled over big rocks and ducked under low hemlock boughs. It was quite an exercise session for me.

To me, people come in two types, the ones who think, "That is not my problem," and the others who believe any problem is theirs and that they better do something about it. I am intending to go out today and buy some blankets for the Mennonite Church's drive for earthquake relief in Iran. It seems to me to be a great way to make peace with that part of the world, rather than bombing them back to the stone ages.

I didn't make it out today and I feel terribly guilty about it. I feel almost as guilty as I felt yesterday in Beachy's Pharmacy in Grantsville when I heard a poor older man who had just gotten off a Greyhound bus call a neighbor in Oakland to try to get a ride home. His neighbor refused because it was too far. I couldn't help but think "What if God was one of us, just like one of us, on a bus just trying to make his way home?" I wished with all my heart that I could face the very long drive (for me), but I was exhausted from being out and was on my way home. I got my wits together to think that maybe the solution was the Community Action bus, "The People Mover." I tried to call them on my cell phone, but it doesn't work well in Grantsville. When I finally got home I called Beachy's, and they had it all arranged and he was to be picked up at 3 p.m. It was a big load off my mind knowing he was on his way home.

I just felt like I didn't get it done, not getting the blankets for Iran and not being able to help the man in Grantsville. I did receive a Christmas card from former President Jimmy Carter. I always treasure them. One may get many cards proclaiming "Peace on Earth," but it means something special when it comes from a real peacemaker. As a result, I enclosed a check to his foundation. I have always thought that he did everything he could to make the world a better place for all the people of the world. Even though my contribution is a drop in the bucket, it is a little something that I can do.

It is hard for me to believe that soon all three of my girls will be teenagers at the same time. Meredith will turn 13 years old on Monday. Luckily, Mere will have a holiday from school because of Martin Luther King's birthday. She seems to grow up so much faster than Claire and Caitlin. I guess most mothers feel that way about their baby. Many people have told me how she looks like an angel when she does her acolyte duty at church. Yes, she is an angel, as much as any 13-year-old girl can be. I do think they usually have a good dose of the devil in them, too. Happy birthday, Mere.

PRESTON SWORN IN AS TOP ENLISTED SOLDIER – Sgt. Maj. Kenneth Preston, center, is shown as Army Chief of Staff Gen. Peter Schoomaker and his wife Karen Preston pin his Sergeant Major of the Army (SMA) shoulderboards during Preston's swearing-in this week in a Pentagon ceremony. Preston is only the 13th soldier promoted to the Army's highest-ranking enlistment grade, and in his new position the western Maryland native will serve as Schoomaker's personal advisor on all enlisted-related matters. Preston's father's family hails from the Finzel area, and he spent the earliest years of his childhood on the family's Pocohontas Road farm, which is still in a relative's hands. Preston and his wife Karen are both graduates of Mt. Savage High School. Photo by Sgt. 1st Class Gail Braymen.

Preston Takes Oath As Army's Sergeant Major

Western Maryland native Kenneth O. Preston was sworn in this week as the sergeant major of the Army (SMA) during a Pentagon ceremony attended by numerous friends and family, including several Garrett County residents. Preston is the Army's 13th SMA, the branch's highest rank for an enlisted soldier.

Preston, who spent the earliest years of his childhood on his father's family farm in the Finzel area, was raised in Mt. Savage after his parents moved there from the farm, which is still operated by a relative. "As someone who grew up in western Maryland, I think our close-knit family and small town values had a big impact on my military career," Preston observed recently.

"People from that region have a very strong sense of service to others and their country, and in the military are often very successful because they go above and beyond what it takes to get a job done. It's also been my observation that western Marylanders and other small town and farm folks from around the country take things like quality of life issues and the strength of their families more seriously than a lot of people in general," he remarked.

"Preston is the finest noncommissioned officer in the NCO Corps," Army Chief of Staff Gen. Peter Schoomaker said as he introduced the new SMA. "We have a real soldier here, and I am confident he will serve our soldiers well as we transform and reorganize our Army."

As sergeant major of the Army, Preston will act as the Army chief of staff's personal advisor on all enlisted-related matters, particularly in areas affecting soldier training and quality of life.

One of the soldiers Preston will serve is his own son, Spc. Michael Preston. Michael is a member of the 327th Military Police Company, an Army Reserve unit based in Maryland and currently deployed in Iraq. Because his son is a reservist,

Monday Meeting Set For Comment On DCL Study

The Deep Creek Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Analysis, a study county officials plan to use as a resource to help make decisions guiding future development in the DCL area, will be the topic of discussion at a public meeting this Monday, Jan. 26, at 8 p.m. in Room 314 of the Continuing Education building at Garrett College.

The purpose of the meeting is to solicit ideas and opinions from all citizens on growth and development issues in the lake area. The DC Watershed Economic Growth and Planning Analysis study was recently initiated by the Environmental Resource Management (ERM) consulting group, with guidance and assistance from a 10-member task force of local citizens appointed by the Board of Garrett County Commissioners.

Projected for a November completion date, the study will evaluate existing plans, policies, regulations, and development trends in the Deep Creek planning area, and identify growth issues and potential problems. ERM is responsible for providing recommendations for solutions in order to assure continued economic growth, and responsible and managed development and resource protection in the watershed, according to a spokesman for the county.

Study To Look At Feasibility Of Year-Round Marketplace For GC Products

The Garrett County commissioners met with economic and marketing consultants from Basile Baumann Prost & Associates Inc. on Tuesday. The Annapolis firm was hired by the Garrett County Economic Development Department to conduct a feasibility study on establishing a year-round market in the county.

The retail venture would be a place for local producers and artisans to sell their processed food, crafts, and other products. "We've worked on similar assignments," said Jim Prosbt, a principal on the project.

Also working on the study are Christopher Yake and Bill Franz, who has been involved in the operations of Baltimore's Lexington Market and other farmers' markets.

"This is our first day on the job," said Probst. "We want to hear what locals want and how they want it done."

The consultants will be looking throughout the county for possible locations, Probst said. Sites include the train station and Pritts building in Oakland, the future exhibit center in Thayerville, and Penn Alps in Grantsville. Demographics such as driving times and distances from tourist attractions will be examined as well.

"Is this a likely fit for the exhibit center," asked Commissioner Ernie Gregg about the location of the market. The center will be located off Rt. 219 behind the Garrett 8 Cinemas.

"That's one of the things we've talked about," said agriculture marketing specialist Cheryl DeBerry, Economic Development. She has been working on the center project as well.

Commissioner Fred Holliday told the consultants that the county was looking into putting a commercial kitchen in the exhibit hall so that residents could process their food products in compliance with health regulations. For example, a grandmother in Grantsville could make and sell her homemade jelly there.

The commissioner also noted that the county had many "great" craftspeople who could also benefit from a year-round marketplace. "This will be a real asset to the community," said Holliday about the venture.

There could be space and scheduling issues involved with locating the market at the exhibit hall, since events would be conducted there, said Probst.

The marketing and operational side of the project also needs to be examined, the consultants noted. "In terms of operations," said Franz, "nothing is written in stone yet."

Factors to consider include the type of and cost of building a completely new facility, if one is needed. Possible revenues and operational costs will also need to be compared.

"Opportunities abound here for this sort of thing," Gregg said, but cautioned that the market needed to be

Terra Alta Man Arrested For DUI, Speeding

A Terra Alta, W.Va., man was arrested after his 1993 Jeep was observed speeding and driving erratically on Garrett Highway between Mayhew Inn Road and Sand Flat Road early Saturday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

After failing field sobriety tests, William Thomas Harless, 22, Terra Alta, W.Va., was arrested and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI), driving while impaired by alcohol (DWI), speed greater than reasonable, and failure to drive right of center.

In other police news, Eric Scott Bender, Kitzmiller, lost control of his 2000 Toyota truck along Maryland Highway near King Reis Road Sunday afternoon.

According to police, because of the heavy snow and slush, he lost control of the vehicle, struck an embankment, overturned, and came to rest in a stream.

Draft Black Bear Mgmt. Plan Released; Comment Sought

The draft version of the 10-year Black Bear Management Plan has been released by the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Wildlife Heritage Service, which is soliciting public comment on the document over the next three weeks. The plan is designed to guide black bear management strategies in Maryland through December 2013.

Likely to be among the chief topics of discussion as the state's final decision regarding its black bear population approaches is the draft document's proposal for a limited bear hunt. "We want to keep the bear population healthy, thriving, and reproductive," secretary Ron Franks told the Baltimore Sun this week. "We have to limit the bears because we're not going to limit the people. We don't have a choice in the matter, and the governor recognizes that.

"The pressure on the habitat for bears has increased because the bear population has increased. Bears are territorial. As the population increases, they don't allow another bear in their territory; they add onto their territory, even if it includes people. If you deal in reality, bears and people don't mix when they're in the same territory," the agency head stated.

"This plan will ensure that the state's black bear population is managed based on sound scientific principles and informed public input," said DNR Wildlife and Heritage Service director Paul A. Peditto. "Many of the goals and strategies identified are a direct result of the 2002 Black Bear Task Force."

The 2002 Black Bear Task Force (BBTF), composed of 12 private citizens, worked for more than a year to examine DNR's previous black bear management efforts, solicit public input regarding bear management in Maryland, and offer recommendations to DNR for inclusion in the 10-year management plan. The BBTF issued its final report and recommendations last March.

Local Man's Assault Charge Placed On Stet

One count of second-degree assault against an Oakland area man was placed on the stet docket by the state's attorney in Garrett County Circuit Court recently.

William Obadiah Cowgill, 30, was charged in July 2003 by Oakland City Police after he assaulted another man at the Broadford Park ball field. According to the police report, Cowgill and the victim were on opposing softball teams and had argued over an umpire's call during the game.

Witnesses stated that Cowgill and the victim exchanged words again in the parking lot after the game, and that Cowgill struck the victim in the face with his fist. When the victim fell, Cowgill, who was wearing spiked shoes, kicked him in the face until a witness broke up the fight by pushing Cowgill away.

The victim was transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by private vehicle and was treated for facial fractures, according to the report.

The assault charge against Cowgill was placed on stet with the condition that he pay $781.77 to the victim, have no contact with the victim, and remain on good behavior.

In other court news, Christopher O'Neil Hendrickson, 21, pleaded guilty in Garrett County Circuit Court to violating the conditions of his probation by

Grantsville Library Conducting Survey Of Needed Children's Programming

The Grantsville branch of the Ruth Enlow library is conducting a needs-assessment survey for children's programming and services for children, infants to 5 year olds. The survey will help the staff determine the types of programs that will best meet the needs of the Grantsville community and the most convenient times and days for residents to attend those programs.

Some possible children's programs and services include a story hour, special events such as puppet shows, science programs such as the Zoomobile, and workshops for parents and caregivers about library literacy resources. Scheduling will begin in March.

The survey and the resulting programs and services are made possible by a $40,000 Library Services and Technology Act grant recently awarded to the Ruth Enlow Library. The goal of the funding, called the Grantsville Grows grant, is to improve literacy and preliteracy skills in young children through library programs and services for children, birth to 5 years, and their caregivers.

This federal grant also provides books, materials, and furniture for the new Grantsville Library. More than 500 children's picture or easy books, as well as a number of literacy resource books for parents and caregivers, will be added to the library's collection.

Other materials will include story–telling props and manipulatives, audio-visual equipment, and children's music. The grant will also provide for a project director to help administer the grant and plan and present the children's programs at the new library.

Many members of the community, including those in Grantsville and Route 40 elementary schools, Grantsville Head Start, churches, and home-school groups have participated in the survey, noted a library spokesperson. Main Street Books in Frostburg also donated a gift certificate. The names of residents who filled out the survey by the end of December were entered in drawing for the certificate. The winner was Stacy McKenzie.

Parents, grandparents, and caregivers who are interested in filling out surveys may still do so. They will be available at the new library through Jan. 30. For more information or to request a survey, persons may contact Emily Townsend, project director for Grantsville Grows, at Emily-@relib.net, or Kim Lishia, Grantsville Library branch manager, at 301-895-529-5298.

Commissioners Slate Hearing On Animal Ordinance

The Garrett County commissioners will hold a public hearing on updating the county's animal control ordinance on Tuesday, Jan. 27, at 10:30 a.m. in their meeting room at the courthouse.

The county's current ordinance was adopted in 1985, but only a few amendments have been added since then. Proposed updates to the edict include requiring pet owners to purchase licenses for their cats and that the fees for animal licenses be increased.

Forest Heritage Proposal Gaining Momentum; Public Support Sought

Garrett County is one of 18 counties in the surrounding region of Maryland and West Virginia that make up West Virginia University's Appalachian Forest Heritage Area (AFHA), which is seeking designation as a National Heritage Area from the U.S. Congress. Such designation would open up federal expertise and funding sources to help develop the region into a forest heritage themed network of tourist destinations providing forestry-based products, programs, educational experiences, events, and visitor services.

Local officials are soliciting the public's assistance in securing National Heritage Area designation, and are encouraging demonstrations of public support through a letter-writing campaign. (See accompanying story.)

The AFHA includes all of Garrett County, along with neighboring Allegany County, and Barbour, Braxton, Grant, Greenbrier, Hampshire, Hardy, Mineral, Morgan, Nicholas, Pendleton, Pocahontas, Preston, Randolph, Tucker, Upshur, and Webster counties in West Virginia. Described as a "regional, grassroots effort" to integrate central Appalachian forest history, culture, natural history, products, and forestry management into a multistate heritage tourism initiative, the ultimate goal of the proposal is to promote rural community development.

Oakland, along with the West Virginia towns of Webster Springs and Elkins, was chosen for an AFHA feasibility study that has identified existing opportunities and possible projects that make the Oakland area a strong component of the proposed National Heritage Area.

Singled out by AFHA proponents was Oakland's well-established tourism economy, which could be combined with the county's unique natural history, good working relationship with DNR and the Maryland Forest Service, strong county forestry board, and existing State Heritage Tourism, Main Street programs. The study also envisions the possibilities of a forestry-products based artisans center in Oakland, a Powerpoint or other graphic display outlining the logging and mining history of the Crellin area, and the development of a forestry aspect to the Autumn Glory Festival, among other projects.

For more information on the Appalachian Forest Heritage Area, persons may consult AFHA's web site at www.appalachianfor-est.us, or contact Jeremy Morris of West Virginia University at 304-293-2941, ext. 2456, or via e-mail at jeremy.morris-@mail.wvu.edu.

Information about National Heritage Areas is available at www.cr.nps.-gov/heritageareas.

Letters of support can be sent to AFHA, P.O. Box 1206, Elkins, WV 26241.

GC Officials Urge Written Support For Heritage Area

Garrett County commissioner Ernie Gregg is among several public officials who are asking for the public to show its support for inclusion of the Appalachian Forest Heritage Area (AFHA) on the list of National Heritage Areas. The designation would serve as a focal point for interpretation, conservation, heritage tourism, and other activities managed through partnerships among federal, state, and local governments and the private sector.

"I think it will attract attention to our past history and heritage," commented Gregg as he expressed his support for the national designation. "Garrett County was a high profile focal point of the timber industry in its early history, and it continues today."

Several other public officials, including Oakland mayor Asa McCain and Kitzmiller mayor Jim Browning, along with Garrett County Chamber of Commerce president Charlie Ross, are also urging local town councils, businesses, organizations, and private citizens to write letters and pass resolutions in support of the proposal, which is a key part of the effort to garner federal approval. "Any recognition the area can get as far as heritage goes will increase tourism opportunities," said Browning.

If approved by Congress, the AFHA would be added to the list of 23 existing National Heritage Areas. Although the National Park Service provides technical and financial assistance to National Heritage Areas, there are no regulations or management controls associated with the designation.

"Support letters showing public support for the designation of the AFHA National Heritage Area is a key component of the required documentation," explained AFHA program coordinator Phyllis Baxter. "The project's final feasibility study will address all of the required National Park Service criteria, including public support."

Letters of support can be sent to AFHA, P.O. Box 1206, Elkins, WV 26241.

Oakland Strategic Plan Meeting Set For Next Week

The presentation of the strategic plan for the town of Oakland will be at a public meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 27, at 7 p.m. at the Oakland City Hall. During the past year, community meetings have been held in conjunction with Terrell Ellis & Associates of Charleston, W.Va.

Meg Ellis has been assisting Oakland and other municipalities in Garrett County with the visioning and structuring of a strategic plan for growth and development. The process has been designed to help identify development opportunities, community resources, and financing requirements in order to achieve the potential visualized by the communities' businesses and residents.

The funding for this planning process has been provided by the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development's Community Legacy program.

Ellis will present the final strategic plan that was devised reflecting the results of the months of meetings, research and discussions necessary to develop the vision and the plan. Doug Devlin of Devlin Architecture will be joining Ellis in the presentation.

The public is encouraged to attend and participate in this meeting.

For further information, persons may call City Hall at 301-334-2691.

A CENTURY AGO, WHEN THE AX WAS KING – This 1894 photograph shows a logging crew giving the final touches on a log slide in the St. George area of Tucker County. Once a common site in area woodlands, the slides were long runs of logs laid end-to-end, and notched in a "V" shape with greased sides, that used gravity to slide logs downhill for transport to a lumber mill. The 18-county Appalachian Forest Heritage Area, which includes Garrett, Preston, and Tucker counties, is seeking congressional designation as a National Heritage Area, which could greatly improve tourism opportunities in the region. Local officials are urging town councils, businesses, organizations, and above all private citizens to write letters in support of the National Heritage Area proposal. Letters may be sent to AFHA, P.O. Box 1206, Elkins, WV 26241. See story.

ROTARIANS REACHING OUT TO CHILDREN OF AFRICA – The Rotary Clubs of District 7350, which involves 45 clubs in western Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia, have engaged in a unique project with the aim of making a significantly positive difference in the lives of 900 African orphans. The children lost their parents to AIDS, and the Rotarians want to help them learn how to avoid contracting the devastating disease, as well as provide opportunities to them as they mature. See story. In the photo, Rotary District Gov. Doug Riley (standing at center) looks on as Appalachian Laboratory environmental education coordinator Alison Wiklund (seated, left) shows an educational AIDS prevention cartoon book to Wayne Spiggle, chairman of the Keyser Rotary world services committee, and biology professor Kenneth McKaye. District Rotary clubs donated $15,000 to help produce the book.

Local Rotarians Join Project To Help AIDS Orphans In Africa

Children in Africa whose parents have died of AIDS have become the focus of area Rotarians. A project of the Rotary District 7350, which includes the local clubs, is aimed to reach out to these children and to equip them with knowledge and opportunity that will significantly brighten their futures.

The purpose of the project is to provide a pilot program in the village of Chembe, Mangochi District, Malawi, to help 900 orphans through HIV/AIDS education, and to improve nutrition and healthcare. The pilot will be potentially applicable throughout rural Africa, organizers hope. The endeavor will proceed within the village in a "culturally relevant way," organizers said.

Douglas Riley, a Garrett County Rotarian and governor of Rotary International District 7350, which consists of 45 clubs in western Maryland, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia, is heading up the project locally.

Chembe village has a population of 10,000 and is situated in Lake Malawi National Park, a UNESCO (United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization) World Heritage Site. Riley said there are two partners, Dr. Kenneth McKaye and Alison Wiklund, who have lived and worked among the people of Chembe for the past 25 years.

"In that time they have observed the population evolve to the very young and the very old as a result of the AIDS epidemic," Riley said. "With the decrease of the income-generating age group, the social fabric is in tatters. This, along with the pollution-driven reduction of the fisheries of Lake Malawi, has significantly degraded the local economy. Dr. McKaye and Ms. Wiklund are helping the people of Chembe to improve their situation. They are well known in the community and surrounding region, and plan to maintain their home there for the foreseeable future."

The two workers have turned to the World Wide Fund for Nature, which is actively involved in strategies to preserve the natural resources in this region. With this project they will partner with the Rotary, which has identified HIV/AIDS in Africa and its associated issues as a major World Community Service challenge, Riley reported.

"District 7350 has a major opportunity to catalyze a practical, culturally relevant project that should succeed and become a model to be encouraged by Rotary throughout Africa," Riley said.

It is hoped that the project's outcome will be lasting, so that at the end of several years, culturally acceptable HIV/AIDS education will have significantly raised the awareness and preventive practices within the village, particularly among the young. Available health care will be enhanced by encouraging local people to become trained as providers and return to the community.

The need for funds within this project is significant, Riley said. In the first year, the start-up costs will include the creation, publication, distribution, and implementation of the HIV/AIDS education program.

Part of this program involves using both visual and performing arts as a vehicle for communicating important educational concepts. Wiklund has found an educational tool that has worked well in Senegal, Africa, Riley said. It is a comic book approach that reaches out to the very young, a target audience well recognized as essential to any HIV/AIDS education effort. The planned comic book type publication is titled "The Story of the Amorous Hyena." The cartoon characters will be wild animals in the region familiar to the local community. Local people will be involved in the creation of the characters, he said.

Ruth Longer, District 7350 literacy chairperson and past district governor will work with Wiklund and others on the project.

Riley recently presented a check for $15,000 to the Appalachian Laboratory, the University of Maryland System Center for Environmental Science located in Frostburg, to help produce the comic book. He hopes to continue raising significant funds for the Africa project.

"Rotarians in District 7350 have a very unique opportunity, an opportunity to start a project that in its initial phase can make a difference between life and death for 900 orphan children and in the future the possibility of saving thousands of children from HIV/AIDS," Riley said in a letter to his fellow Rotarians. He hopes that every Rotarian in District 7350 donates at least $5, which alone will raise a significant amount.

Persons who wish to donate may do so by making checks payable to Rotary District 7350 Chembe Project and mailing them to Jack P. Corderman, 940 Oak Hill Ave., Hagerstown, MD 21742.

A BEAUTIFUL ADDITION TO GRANTSVILLE – The town of Grantsville has been enhanced with the new Ruth Enlow Library branch, which opened on Monday. The building is the result of continuous community effort and work, as numerous individuals and local businesses donated funds and time to help make the new library a reality. The grand opening ceremony is slated for April 16. Photo by Jeremy Carr.

Police Investigate Disturbance; Man Attempts To Flee

A man being investigated for a reported disturbance on A Street in Mtn. Lake Park attempted to flee when being escorted to the police car early Saturday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Scot Anthony Bowman, 22, Oakland, was observed in the parking lot of the Parkwoods apartment complex exiting a vehicle without a passenger side front tire. He failed field sobriety tests and was placed under arrest and in handcuffs, police said.

While the deputy was escorting Bowman to the police car, Bowman turned and ran. The deputy apprehended and secured him approximately 100 yards from the parking area, police said.

Bowman was charged with driving under the influence (DUI), driving while impaired (DWI), driver fleeing from a uniformed police officer on foot, and driving an unsafe vehicle on the highway.

Judge Jim Sherbin sentenced Hendrickson to one year in the Garrett County Jail. The judge suspended the sentence and placed Hendrickson on three years of unsupervised probation.

The former Frostburg area man was originally sentenced in May 2002 to six months for one count of second-degree assault and two years for one count of reckless endangerment, with one year suspended. The sentences ran concurrently. Following his release from jail, Hendrickson was required to be on supervised probation for one year.

Bender was cited for driving too fast for conditions.

In a separate incident, two vehicles were involved in a collision on Hutton Road just east of Oakland Rosedale Road Saturday afternoon.

Shondel Mayne, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, lost control of her 1996 Jeep on the snow-covered road, crossed the center line, and struck a 1994 Subaru operated by Cindy Moats, 28, Terra Alta.

Both drivers were transported by Southern Rescue Squad to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Two passengers in the Jeep, David Mayne, 22, and Christopher Guthrie, 25, were checked and released at the scene, police said.

Another two-vehicle accident was investigated by deputies Friday afternoon at Deer Park Ave. and Oakland Drive in Mtn. Lake Park.

Josh Beckman, Mtn. Lake Park, was cited for failure to yield intersection right of way to another vehicle.

Beckman's 1992 Ford truck collided with a 1994 Pontiac driven by Debora Coddington, Oakland.

No injuries were reported.

Local Blood Donors Needed

All eligible donors are encouraged to donate blood on Monday, Jan. 26, from noon to 6 p.m. at St. Peter's Catholic Church, located at 220 South Fourth Street in Oakland.

Winter weather and cold temperatures have caused area blood inventories to reach critical levels, said a spokesperson for the American Red Cross.

To donate blood, one must be healthy, at least 17 years old, weigh 105 pounds or more, and meet other donor requirements. Most people can safely donate every 56 days.

For more information, persons may call 1-800-GIVELIFE.

Driver Cited Following Two-Vehicle Accident

A Deer Park woman was cited after she pulled her vehicle out into the path of a empty log trailer and struck its tire Wednesday morning on Maryland Highway just west of Sand Flat Road, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Jackylen Hoover, 39, had stopped her 1991 Isuzu on the westbound shoulder of the road and was pulling back onto the road when she apparently did not see the 1993 Kenworth log trailer, which was also traveling westbound. The trailer was driven by Teddy Vance, 51, Elkins, W.Va.

Compromise is Crucial...

The 90-day legislative session of Maryland did not exactly get off to a good start this past week, and little has improved over the past few days. Partisanship is rampant, to the point that some Republicans have stormed out of the session, infuriated over a rules change by the Democratic majority that usurps some of the minority party's power in filibustering. Specifically, the move changed the ratio of votes needed to end a filibuster from two-thirds to three-fifths.

Already three of Governor Robert Ehrlich's vetoes have been overridden by the legislature, also prompting tempers to flare and mud to be slung.

Major issues confront Maryland, particularly the enormous budget deficit inherited by Ehrlich from the Glendening administration. A piece of Ehrlich's solution to that problem is to legalize slot machine gambling. The Democratic majority opposes slots and believes that increasing taxes is the only realistic way to overcome the deficit. Downsizing of state government is another of Ehrlich's approaches that has already been implemented, to the chagrin of many Democrats who believe too many necessary agencies and services are being cut.

There are positives and negatives to both solutions, so the ultimate decisions must, we hope, be reached via compromise. There is no doubt in our minds that there is still plenty of government waste and oversize. A good argument can also be made for increasing some taxes, without a broad-based approach. And, since the state already operates a lottery and allows various games of chance (gambling) in many venues, it seems that the addition of slot machines could be justified.

Compromise, ladies and gentlemen, is the key — choosing one's battles carefully and being willing to lose a few in order to win some. Without compromise, the 2004 session will likely be a disastrous exercise in futility.

A curious man named George
Longed to visit a huge Martian gorge,
With a great NASA plan
On the red sphere to land,
The first man on Mars should be George.

I'd love to see live TV transmissions of George W walking on Mars, but I think he should pay his own way and not expect the American taxpayer to foot the bill for his trip.

To all genealogy buffs!

My great-uncle Phineas Snyder was a minister in the Brethren Church from the early 1900s to 1952. I have several ministerial copies of marriage licenses, as well as obituaries that would have been read at funerals. Most of these were people in the Sines, Swallow Falls, Deer Park, and Eglon areas. However, there are also other places mentioned.

If you think I may have copies of interest to you, please call me at 301-334-8362.

To the Editor:

My name is Taylor and I am 10 years old. Last week on Wednesday, Jan. 14, my mom was on Mayhew Inn Road. It was very icy and our truck spun out of control. After landing in a ditch with the truck blocking over half of the road, finally some nice man stopped to see if we needed to use his cell phone. The only person I told my mom I could think of to call was Gene Schenk.

After Mr. Schenk had been feeding about 100 head of horses since 7 a.m. all over the county and training his horses, he did not hesitate to go get his tractor and pull us out. And guess what? He would not take one penny for helping my family. So the only way I could think of thanking him and letting him know how selfless a man he is was to write to you.

It is nice to know there are still good people in this world.

Thank you,
Taylor Day

P.S. My mom checked my spelling. I hope it is O.K.

Dear Taylor,

Your spelling is perfect.

Someone please tell me why this country is so messed up on their priorities. We are spending millions of dollars to rebuild an oil-rich country and no one can say where the millions of dollars are that were taken by Saddam and his sons by the case-full after the invasion.

Here, in the greatest nation in the world, old people have to decide if they want to eat, take their meds, or heat their homes, and yet we pay actors and sports players millions of dollars that would take a lifetime or more to spend.

When will we get these priorities straight and feed the starving here in the USA, furnish homes for our homeless, and provide everyone affordable national healthcare coverage?

In our county we had a man who had 96 charges of child molestation, yet he only got three years in jail, and two of them were for drug charges. Now, come on, you get more time for recreational use of drugs than for molesting a child?! We all need to think or one day there will be a revolution of poor over rich to try to bring to balance this world.

To the Editor:

I write on behalf of the Garrett County Republican Central Committee. We are trying to track down service men and women from Garrett County who have been (or still are) on active duty in Iraq or Afghanistan.

The reason is this: Our committee is preparing a commemorative booklet, to coincide with our annual Lincoln Day Dinner in April. The booklet is to include eyewitness reports from our military personnel about what they have seen and experienced. We have reason to believe that first-hand accounts will differ substantially from what appears on the TV news programs.

We have about two weeks to identify the individuals, and then about three more weeks to collect their stories, preferably by e-mail, but in handwriting if necessary.

We will be most grateful if Garrett County citizens (typically family members) who know the names and accurate addresses of armed forces members would let us know; and then would contact the active-duty person to see if they would contribute an article for our booklet.

For questions, address information or further details, please feel free to phone me at 301-387-2522.

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to remind the residents of Garrett County about the aluminum beverage tab recycling/fund-raising project for the Ronald McDonald House. If you are like me, you probably think that this project was going on years ago. While that is true, I don't think it is widely known that the project is an ongoing one.

Approximately 900 families stay in the Ronald McDonald House in Morgantown, W.Va., per year. I am happy to say that I was among the families who needed the help of the Ronald McDonald House. In October, my son was born with a breathing problem at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. He was flown to Ruby Memorial in Morgantown, where a two-week stay in the NICU (neo natal care unit) ensued. I don't know what I would have done without the help of the Ronald McDonald House. I'm sure most would agree that a two-week stay in a hotel/motel can be quite costly, and driving back and forth from Deer Park to Morgantown can be exhausting.

The Ronald McDonald House in Morgantown is available for families with critically ill children. The house can handle 16 families at a time. Although a donation of $12 per night is requested, a family is never turned away if they cannot pay for their stay. The money collected for aluminum recycling helps to offset the utility and operational expenses for the house.

With the collection of aluminum beverage tabs, the Ronald McDonald House in Morgantown receives approximately $1,200 per month. The tab-recycling project really helps the Ronald McDonald House to help people – just like you and me. Hopefully you will never need the services offered by the Ronald McDonald House, but it's nice to know that the dedicated volunteers will be there to welcome and assist you in your time of need.

Not only are the tabs worth money for the fund-raising efforts of the house, they are a great example of a successful recycling project. So please pull tabs for the Ronald McDonald House: it teaches our youth a sense of pride in helping others and the importance of recycling.

Collecting the aluminum tabs is easy! Colorful "banks" are available to keep the tabs in. I have ordered 100 free banks from the house. If you are interested in collecting the tabs and would like a "bank," please pick one up at the Garrett County landfill in Oakland, at any of the six satellite refuse sites throughout Garrett County, or by contacting me.

To those who have continued to collect the beverage tabs for years, keep up the good work – you are appreciated!

Thank you,

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter after reading Jeremy Carr's very well-written article on the 40th anniversary of the B-52 Bomber crash in Garrett County. After reading the article and seeing what a sense of community the crash brought to local people in the midst of the Cold War, I could not help but think about the current war on terrorism.

The current war on terrorism, in my mind, is very similar to the Cold War because it is a conceptually based war, not a war against one particular enemy, but rather against one particular concept. The Cold War was over the evils of communism and included mechanisms by which the United States could prevent its spread. The Cold War continued for 40 years until the collapse of the Soviet-Union. It was not a quick and decisive war, but rather an ongoing process.

I recognize the same of the war on terrorism. A quick victory is not going to happen in hours, days, weeks, or even months. However, with time, the evil of terrorism, much like that of communism, will be defeated and our world will become a safer place for all future generations.

Currently it seems that the public is very divided over this war, especially the Iraqi portion of the war. Some even purport that this is "Bush's little war." I could not disagree more. This is America's war. This is the war to make the world a safe place again, the war to ease everyone's fears of another September 11, 2001, related tragedy, and the war to show the world that we will not tolerate such injustices against our citizenry and the peoples of the world.

Many believe that the war is an issue for the Republicans to retain the presidency or for the Democrats to take the White House back, but this war is far more than a political issue. It is an issue that is dear to the hearts of all Americans, a war that is fundamentally centered around safety from future attack by our enemies.

No matter how individuals feel about the current administration and the war, I believe it is time we as Americans rally behind the great principles our soldiers are fighting for, and recognize that although we may disagree with the means of making the world a safer place, the ends are what we all want: a world free from terrorism and evil dictators where every man, woman, and child will be blessed with the opportunity to do what they want with their lives without living in constant fear.

So, I encourage everyone, regardless of your feelings on the war, to attempt to find a sense of community in the efforts to eradicate terrorism, a sense of community similar to that of the locals after the B-52 crash 40 years ago, and to remember that brave men and women daily risk their lives fighting to protect us so we can go to work, go to school, and carry on our lives as usual. I ask everyone to remember the American soldiers and to keep them in your daily thoughts and prayers as they continue to fight to make our lives better for years to come. For without the American soldier, the men and women who are defending our nation now, those much like the men on the B-52 that crashed in Garrett County during the Cold War, and those who have served in all past wars, our nation would quickly fall. So, let us never forget what the American soldiers of today and the past have done for our nation and each and every one of us.

Respectfully submitted,
Brandon J. Hoover

To the Editor:

Kudos to the readers of The Republican.

Every day I read the entire Cumberland Times-News, and the entire Hagerstown Daily Mail, among other editorial pages, and I honestly find The Republican readers to be more balanced, and less ideological and less rabid in expressing their views. Indeed, I suspect Republican readers have more education than some correspondents found elsewhere, or else the more moderate letters aren't selected by the editors, which has been a recent complaint in the Herald-Mail by several readers – one asked directly where the moderate letters were.

Why has this come to mind?

I've just finished reading the letters in the January 8 Republican, and want to make a few observations.

First, kudos to Jamie Tasker, Dan Bever, and Kam Gillespie for pointing out such positive events as scholarships, community help, and wonderful volunteers.

Second, kudos to The Republican for printing letters about perceived flaws in the criminal justice system. While it is impossible for any reader to know from these letters what has truly occurred, or whether a misperception was formed from lack of knowledge about how the courts work, it is important to note that many editors won't even consider printing such letters.

And third, Bill Thomas, Cynthia Knight, and Emily Morgan all gave erudite explanations for their feelings about Iraq, Iran, al-Qaida, and the whole terrorist mess.

Now I know that Bill Thomas and Emily Morgan in particular are frequently flogged on these pages by other readers, but to give credit where it is due, they make their case without biting their tongue or worrying about the floggings, and that makes me smile.

And while I don't usually defend President Bush, I have to throw in two facts about the discussion which many people have forgotten. Saudi Arabia gave the United States a deadline to close their superbase for regional supervision and control of all American forces in the Middle East, so the U.S. toppled Iraq in order to establish another regional base of operations. The announcement of the closing of the base in Saudi Arabia was made about a day before the climax of the war in Iraq, so it was largely overlooked in the media and only merited small AP wire reports in the various newspapers.

Also, there was one purpose in invading Iraq which has not been publicly disclosed, but is clear to anyone who understands the geography of the region. Invading Iraq was a classic pincers movement. It is Iran which was declared to be one of the three in the "Axis of Evil" and since American forces had already established a base in Afghanistan, by invading Iraq we were able to place our troops on the other side of Iran's geographic borders.

The invasion of Iraq was a way to send a clear message to Iran that they would be next, and it was a way to close off much of Iran's borders to reduce terrorist travel and fund-raising. When the "Axis of Evil" is largely contained, physically, by troops poised all around it, President Bush knows his clear intent is there for them to see.

The only surprise about all this is that, in all the discussion of the terrorism problems around the world and the origination of their funding and training and ability to slip over borders, you would think the 1,000 bleating columnists printed in all the newspapers would have made some astute observations about these two largely overlooked facts!

WARM THOUGHTS

I was lying in bed the other morning, all piled up with blankets and a comforter, wearing flannel sleep pants and shirt, and not wanting to get out from under it all. The time to get up was upon me, but it was so dark and cold. It's been so stone cold, hasn't it? I like winter, and I love Garrett County, but the temps have been too stark lately. As I lay there, looking out the window at the frozen world, I began to think warm thoughts. It was such a nice daydream I thought I'd write about it.

Summer. The windows are open, the breeze is filtering in. The air is a sensory picnic, full of sound and fragrance and warmth. Cicadas buzz in the tree tops, hidden among the leaves, wide and green. The honeysuckle is blooming. The scent, so distinct, makes me think of North Carolina, where John and I lived our first years together. The little house we shared was surrounded by the crawling vine. Such a sweet smell.

The air brushes my face, warm and soft, pushing the curtains out just a little. The cat lies flat on her side, stretched out. Not like in winter, when she stays in a tight ball, her ear tips cold. The birds have been up and about since daybreak, which came while we were all still sleeping. The sun is up and bright, the sky azure. There is only a sheet to pull away to get out of bed. The blankets were pushed off early in the night. Too warm. Imagine that.

What to do today? A Saturday in summer. The grass is thick and deep, so mowing is an option. Remember the smell of cut grass? There are roses to prune and sheets to wash and hang on the line. The boys pull on shorts and T-shirts — that's all they have to wear on this hot day — and run to the old orchard behind our house to play with the neighbor kids. There's a herd of them. They have ball games and spy missions and some arguing, of course. Hot and sweaty, they come home and ask if we can go swim at Mom's. A wonderful plan.

Swimming. Hot concrete. The scent of chlorine. The boys dare me to dive in without testing the water at all. I take them up on it and they watch like I'm Greg Louganis on the high dive. I shatter the surface and shock my system. Then I dare the boys to follow my wake. They do. We're all in, reveling in the coolness, the buoyancy. I remember how my sister and I used to swim all the time when we were little, and how her long hair looked when she came up from a dive. Honey-blond, all melted together. And how I would pretend to be walking into a room and casually step off the edge into the water. That was funny every time. Now the boys do it. We go underwater, too, with goggles, and we can see each other perfectly. Bubbles sneak out of our noses and mouths, and we wave at each other like idiots. They all look like babies under there, their hair floating around their heads like halos; their cheeks popped out and their eyes squinting. Alex has the biggest blue eyes, and opens them as wide as he can at me. It's funny and we laugh. Huge bubbles explode from our mouths and we come up coughing.

I get out to lie in the sun — just for a little while — and the boys play. I lie on my back and squint. Slowly the water on my skin disappears into the air. I can feel it going away. The kids splash and yell. It's okay. There's no one around to disturb, really. The day stretches out like the cat on the bed, long and restful, with no worries.

We cook out that evening. The scent of burgers grilling mixes with the onion John cuts up. I don't like raw onion on my hamburger, but the potent fragrance is another memory provoker. The day lingers as summer days do, and the kids join in a game of hide and seek, or just plain "chase." Finally evening edges in, and Venus sparkles in the west. The boys drop into bed, wonderfully exhausted, and the tree frogs chirp them to sleep. John and I sit on the porch and let the cooler air creep around our ankles. We are content.

Ahh. It's not that far away, really. Only a few months. And in the meantime, we will have scenery of ice and snow, the hillsides and valleys white clean. It's good to have the seasons, I believe, and Garrett County offers splendor in each one. I'm glad I live here.

Gov. Ups School Support, Excludes $45 Million For Large Districts

by Mary C. Schneidau
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – About $45 million of a landmark education plan was excluded from the $23.8 billion state operating budget Gov. Robert L. Ehrlich Jr. presented Wednesday, a decision that drew the ire of some legislators and educators. The money would have gone to some large county school systems – including Prince George's, Montgomery and Baltimore City – to compensate for higher costs of education and living.

The Attorney General's Office determined last fall that funding the county cost differences was not mandated by the $1.3 billion Thornton plan passed two years ago by the General Assembly. Despite deleting those funds, state support of primary and secondary education increased $326 million to more than $3.6 billion.

"I am thrilled about this funding for public education," State Superintendent of Schools Nancy S. Grasmick said. "I'm supporting the legal opinion that was rendered."

But at least one lawmaker said Ehrlich's exclusion could prompt legal action.

"I would imagine somebody would come forward with [a lawsuit]," said Sen. Nathaniel J. McFadden, D-Baltimore, chairman of the city's Senate delegation. "People are going to take every avenue to receive an appropriate education."

Some legislators said the attorney general nitpicked the language of a popular education bill just to balance the budget.

"There's no question in the original legislation [the cost-of-education index] was supposed to be funded, and this ill-conceived attorney general's opinion misinterpreted the guidelines," said House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel.

"It's a nuance by a hair that is being used to hurt children," added Sen. Paul Pinsky, D-Prince George's, county Senate delegation chairman.

Other lawmakers said Ehrlich should have fully funded the Thornton plan because he promised he would, even though it was not required.

"According to what he said in his campaign, he should [have] and he didn't," said Delegate Neil Quinter, D-Howard, author of a letter to Ehrlich signed by more than 60 delegates in support of full funding.

Ehrlich dismissed questions about why the $45 million was not included in the budget and said all of the mandated Thornton funds were incorporated. Approval of slot machines, he said, would pay for the cost of education differences and that was his campaign platform.

"We support Thornton with a funding mechanism called slots," he said.

Last year, the Maryland Senate approved installing slot machines at four state racetracks, but the bill was killed in the House. Ehrlich said Wednesday he will introduce slot machine legislation, and the battle over the issue is expected to dominate legislative discussion this year. With or without slots, many lawmakers said they believe there will be legislation to reinstate the $45 million.

"I think there's a fair chance the Legislature will put this back on [the agenda]," Pinsky said.

While Grasmick said she was hoping for a "continued source of revenue," county school systems will have to decide how to compensate for the loss of their share of the $45 million.

Montgomery County Public Schools were counting on their portion of the funds, said Board of Education member Patricia O'Neill. "We're very disappointed. We feel frustrated and betrayed," she said.

Although the school system's operating budget has not been finalized yet, O'Neill said the lack of funds may prevent the county from expanding all-day kindergarten.

Western Maryland Educators To Hold Rally In Annapolis Monday

In an unprecedented demonstration of unified advocacy, a diversified group of public education stakeholders plans to rally in large numbers in Annapolis next Monday, Jan. 26, at 6 p.m., the Coalition for Public School Funding announced this week. With the threat of diluted funding for Maryland's public schools, superintendents, school board members, parents, children's rights advocates, teachers, and other school employees have formed "a collective voice" to emphasize their assertion that public school funding must remain a major priority in the legislative session that began January 14.

"Allegany County cannot afford to sacrifice another generation of our students; it is imperative that we fully fund the Thornton Commission's recommendations as defined in the Bridge to Excellence Act passed by the General Assembly," said Valeria Arch, president of the Allegany County Teachers Association at a press briefing last Friday.

The coalition urged legislators who continually voice their support for public school students to back their words up with actions by voting for the funding of the Bridge to Excellence Act within the prescribed timeframe in the law. They counsel against any version of "Thornton Lite," which would dilute the benefit of the law by stretching out the timeframe for implementation. They expressed serious concern about the loss to current students if full funding is not forthcoming. Students who will be "put on hold" while funding is stretched out will never be able to make up the loss in instructional quality, they claimed.

Recent polls indicate that Maryland's citizens continue to worry most about public education as the Maryland General Assembly completes its first week in Annapolis. That concern is magnified in western Maryland, where income and available funding for public schools is lower than in some other parts of the state.

Garrett County Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Wendell Teets, noted that "Education Week's annual survey of education gave Maryland a grade of D for equity in school funding with only 39.7% of total state and local funding allocated to education, which ranks Maryland 47 out of 50 states. From this national comparison, it is evident that Maryland must do more to support education at the state level. Consequently, it is essential that full funding of Thornton is secured and maintained."

Allegany County Superintendent of Schools, Dr. William AuMiller, also referred to current data, saying, "A recent poll of taxpayers and citizens from throughout Maryland indicates overwhelming support for funding public education."

Referring to the federal and state legislation that raises the bar for Maryland students, AuMiller further noted that "adequate and equitable funding for public education in Maryland is critical if school systems are going to meet the standards in No Child Left Behind and the Bridge to Excellence in Education." He said he joins his coalition partners in urging that the "playing field for all Maryland students must be level to meet uniform accountability standards across the state."

Coalition members predict the rally on January 26 has the potential to be the biggest event held in Annapolis in recent years. Over 30 organizations throughout the state compose the coalition, including the Maryland State Teachers Association, the Maryland PTA, the Public School Superintendents Association of Maryland, the Maryland Association of Boards of Education, Advocates for Children and Youth, and many others. Some of the rally speakers will include State Superintendent of Schools Dr. Nancy Grasmick, Reg Weaver, president of the National Education Association, and Dr. Alvin Thornton, chair of the Thornton Commission.

Members of the public are invited to participate. For information about participation from western Maryland, persons may contact the Allegany County Teachers Association at 301-729-8280 or visit www.SupportPublicSchools.org.

Gov. Ehrlich Unveils Budget; Democrats Call It Chicanery

by Rolando Garcia
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Gov. Robert Ehrlich unveiled his $23.8 billion fiscal 2005 budget Wednesday, boosting public school and health care spending, but sparking Democratic criticism that it hides a structural deficit that will plague the state for years.

Ehrlich touted a record $326 million increase in primary and secondary education funding, a 10 percent bump from the previous year. He also added $302 million to Medicaid funding, the budget's second-largest increase.

Also included were smaller initiatives to preserve the Chesapeake Bay and give state employees a 1.6 percent pay raise. The budget also contains $250 million in spending cuts, but the bulk of the state's $800 million budget shortfall is plugged with one-time revenue sources.

"This budget is fiscally responsible and also sensitive to people who need government," Ehrlich said.

Although Ehrlich's budget includes $180 million in new revenue from the closing of a corporate tax loophole and raising a host of user fees, Ehrlich is resisting calls by Democratic leaders in the General Assembly to solve the state's long-term budget woes by raising sales or income taxes.

Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, said Ehrlich's stop-gap measures just push the deficit off into the 2006 fiscal year, when it will hit $1 billion.

"Without a new sales or income tax, [Ehrlich] has to borrow from Peter to pay Paul," Miller said. "It's a good budget on paper, but the devil is in the details, and the out-years. You can't run a government on debt and promises."

Miller also faulted Ehrlich for not replenishing the $300 million taken from the Transportation Trust Fund last year to cover the budget deficit, although the governor did earmark $25 million as an installment on the debt.

Department of Budget and Management Secretary James DiPaula Jr. said Ehrlich did not support raising the gas tax to replenish the fund.

The budget also cuts $114 million in state aid to local governments.

Sen. Patrick Hogan, D-Montgomery, said these cuts would place a strain on county budgets still reeling from last year's cuts.

Ehrlich said the budget meets the state's education funding obligations under the Thornton plan. However, the governor excluded $45 million intended to remedy geographic disparities in the cost of education, such as raising teacher salaries in counties with a high cost of living.

The state Attorney General's Office ruled that portion of funding was not mandatory under the Thornton legislation passed by the Assembly.

House of Delegates Speaker Michael Busch, D-Anne Arundel, said the Assembly would pass legislation to restore the funding. Ehrlich's higher education budget, which was flat, also drew Busch's criticism. The governor's failure to restore funds slashed last year would force another round of tuition hikes, the speaker said.

And while funding levels for many health and social programs remained constant, Ehrlich's budget actually amounts to a cut because of soaring medical costs, Busch said.

Ehrlich sharply disagreed.

"There's a wing of the Democratic Party that isn't happy without new taxes and thinks that there is never enough spending, but that viewpoint lost in 2002," Ehrlich said.

Ehrlich also said he would introduce a bill to legalize slot machines that would generate $700 million in revenue annually. The House of Delegates shot down a slots bill last session. DiPaula said slots, combined with the increased revenue brought by economic growth, would improve the state's long-term budget outlook.

However, DiPaula's rosy fiscal outlook also contained a stark warning – that Medicaid spending was "out of control" and, unless reined in, would devour the state budget. Nelson Sabatini, Health and Mental Hygiene secretary, said Medicaid funding nationwide would exceed $600 billion and outstrip Medicare spending within 10 years.

"The current Medicaid program is not financially sustainable," Sabatini said. "We have to make sure poor people have access to quality health care and assure taxpayers we're buying health care in the most prudent way possible."

To preserve the Chesapeake Bay, Ehrlich allocated $98 million to upgrade wastewater treatment plants and reduce levels of nitrogen in the bay.

Angry Republicans Walk Out Of Senate After Failed Filibuster

by Adrienne Saunders
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – After a wild floor session where three Republican senators walked out of debate, the Senate approved a rules change that will make filibustering by the minority more difficult. The GOP opposed the change saying it stifles their voice, and, at one point, called for Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr., D-Calvert, to step aside and allow someone else to oversee debate.

The contentious change, which needed only a majority vote to pass, lowered the number of votes needed to end a filibuster from 32 to 29. Discussion of the change was prompted by a lengthy debate on a tax bill last year and was supported by Miller.

Miller's spokeswoman, Vicki Fretwell, said the change is modeled after the U.S. Senate's filibuster rules and reflects a need to keep filibustering from delaying the chamber's work. But Republican leaders saw the move as a partisan tactic to boost the Democratic majority's power.

"We don't see any reason why the rules need to be changed or why minorities need to be further suppressed," said Sen. J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset.

Debate was lengthened by seven quorum calls, forcing legislators back to their seats for a roll call. Baltimore Democratic Sen. Nathaniel McFadden's motion to limit debate to 30 minutes diverted discussion for a vote.

Minority Whip Andrew Harris, R-Baltimore County, objected to the motion and requested Miller step down to allow another member to oversee the debate. Miller dismissed the appeal and called the vote. Harris unsuccessfully protested, then huffed off the floor before the vote on McFadden's motion, which passed.

Sen. Alex Mooney, R-Frederick, then took the floor to admonish the body for allowing Miller to break Senate procedure by not stepping down and allowing Harris to speak.

"You ignored the rules again," Mooney shouted, referring to a lengthy debate about gun control in 2000 in which Miller also dismissed an appeal that he step aside for someone else to lead the debate. Dropping his copy of the Senate rules on his desk, Mooney stormed out of the session grousing about the rules.

Then Sen. Nancy Jacobs, R-Harford, also left, yielding her time to Stoltzfus.

The rule change passed, 27-16.

After the session, Harris contended that Miller violated the rules of the Senate by dismissing his appeal.

"[Miller] obviously doesn't feel that he needs to follow the rules," Harris said. "It's going to be a very long 90 days."

Miller responded that he would not allow the debate to quash his efforts to work with the minority party to pass meaningful legislation. "Sometimes friends disagree," Miller said. "These are our friends and we will continue to deal with them as fellow legislators."

Minority views, he said, will be "afforded the opportunity to be heard in a meaningful way."

Senate Session Degenerates Into Partisan Shouting Match

by Zenitha Prince
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Sen. Alex Mooney vowed yesterday to fight till Senate rules were fairly applied after he and other Republicans failed to defeat a rules change to make filibustering by the minority more challenging. Mooney, R-Frederick, led angry GOP senators in a stick-to-the-rules protest that soon reduced the session to a verbal brawl.

"We're people who stand up for what we believe in," he said.

Sen. Brian Frosh, D-Montgomery County, dubbed Mooney, Minority Whip Andrew Harris, R-Baltimore County, and Minority Leader J. Lowell Stoltzfus, R-Somerset, a "tiny band of radicals," and the trio adopted the name, sporting it on labels they wore on the floor.

The scene was a continuation of Tuesday's acrimonious proceedings when the Senate approved changing the ratio of votes needed to end a filibuster from two-thirds to three-fifths. During that debate, Harris asked Senate President Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr. to step aside and let someone else manage the discussion.

Miller, D-Calvert, ignored the appeal, and Mooney blasted the Assembly for allowing the president to flaunt Senate procedure.

"Clearly there are one set of rules for the majority and another set of rules for the minority," Harris said after Wednesday's session.

Mooney also questioned why black senators had supported the crippling of a measure that former black legislators had used to further their causes.

"We're talking about a tactic that was used years ago," African-American Sen. Nathaniel McFadden responded. "If we do need to have extended debate there are ways to do so."

In a move of political tit-for-tat, the Republican coalition tied up the session's agenda: invoking rules, pushing for the hearing of two procedure-related proposals and delaying the passage of bills.

"It's going to be ugly in here," Harris whispered to McFadden during a quick floor conference.

Mooney fired first, invoking the rules to deny Miller's request to delay the reading of the journal.

"Some of us care about the rules," Mooney said of his reasons for opposing the request.

Stoltzfus and Harris then stretched out the adoption of an energy efficiency standards bill into a tangled debate with Democratic Sens. Paula Hollinger, Brian Frosh, and Paul Pinsky. The Republicans finally won a postponement.

Pinsky, D-Prince George's, an energy bill sponsor, seemed stumped by the GOP's obstinacy, saying "You can spite yourself if you choose."

"This was so self-defeating," Pinsky said later. "They really just wanted to slow everything down."

Things degenerated further when Harris moved to strike the Senate rule mandating the president relinquish leadership of a debate on a member's request, and then Mooney moved to appoint a Senate parliamentarian to address questions about the chamber rules. Miller said he had not received Harris's proposal and directed Harris to send the letter to the Senate secretary.

Frustrated in their debate, Mooney finally yelled, "Stop making [the rules] up as you go along, Mr. President."

Miller gaveled him out of order, and the proceedings became a free-for-all, with McFadden finally appealing to the body for a measure of decorum.

"We have a long and great history in this body of conducting ourselves in a certain fashion," he said. "We can disagree, but we don't have to be disagreeable."

Despite the ruckus, the Senate did conduct some business: making committee announcements and voting 32 to 14 to override Gov. Robert Ehrlich's veto on a bill to restore pensions for some child support enforcement workers.

When asked if the GOP's campaign will impede the legislative work of the body, Harris said, "We have 90 days ... I think the work of the people would be better done if we clear up the rule book."

At the end, even the Republicans were somewhat divided.

"I don't believe returning evil for evil is the right way to go," Stoltzfus said.

Mooney, meanwhile, vowed to keep fighting until "all the rules apply to all senators."

Regional, International Students Fill Employment Needs at Wisp

Wisp at Deep Creek Mountain Resort has taken a creative approach to filling much-needed seasonal positions at its four-season resort by recruiting both regional and international college students.

Nine international students, who are from the southern hemisphere, are on their "summer" vacations, and have been recruited and screened by an international work-and-study organization based in Boston. Wisp provided the criteria for their specific job requirements.

In addition to its traditional job fair at Wisp this fall, the company coordinated job fairs at West Virginia University and Frostburg State University, increasing the number of regional college applicants by 20%, a spokesperson said.

"Garrett County residents are the majority of our 597 employees at Wisp, but with 625 full- and part-time seasonal positions available this winter, and unemployment at an all-time low in the county, recruiting employees outside our area is essential to meeting our needs," said Kelly Johnson, director of human resources at Wisp. "Our job fair brought only 212 applicants, so we had to think differently about finding qualified employees."

Jim Hinebaugh, director of the Garrett County Economic Development Office, said that although the December numbers are not yet complete, the 2003 year-end unemployment rate will come in at about 6.2%, which is the lowest the county has ever experienced. He added that the unemployment rate over the last 20 months has consistently been in the single digits. Since 1997, with the rate at 13.7%, unemployment in the county has steadily dropped.

Hank Thiess, general manager of Wisp, said he supports the student recruiting program.

"Almost every major ski resort throughout the country recruits abroad, as well as at regional universities. It provides us the opportunity to fill seasonal positions, and it gives the international students the chance to work in the United States and experience our culture," Thiess said.

In addition to filling the jobs at Wisp, the international students are bringing their own brand of education to their co-workers.

Laura Hinebaugh, daughter of Jim Hinebaugh and part-time employee of the Wisp ticket services staff, said she finds the cultural diversity of the students rewarding.

"We don't often get the opportunity to interact with people from other countries," Hinebaugh said. "I work with Sophie Obiero from Kenya. Just talking with her and learning about her culture and her country's way of life, their schools, shopping, government – it's extremely enlightening."

Hinebaugh is in her senior year at Southern High School and is attending Garrett College through the ECAP program. Obiero is a student at Cape Technikon in Cape Town, South Africa, studying civil engineering. The two have planned some after-work outings, including a visit to Swallow Falls State Park.

The other international students currently working at Wisp are as follows:

Valentin Tassev, 22, is a native of Bulgaria. She is a student at the University of Witwatersrand in Johannesburg, South Africa. She is working in the food and beverage department.

Daniel Kucharczyk, 23, is a native of Poland. He is a student at the Sydney School of Business and Technology in Australia. He, too, is in the food and beverage department.

Robert Mukasa, 23, is a native of Uganda. He is a student at University of Cape Town in Cape Town, South Africa. He works as a boot technician in the rental shop.

Heberth Cavalcanti, 22, is a native of Peru. A student at Cantuta University in Lima, Peru, Heberth is also employed as a boot technician.

Paul Riley, 26, is a native of Zimbabwe. He is a student at University of Witwatersrand in Johannesburg, South Africa, studying literature. He is working in the food and beverage department.

Jody Keizan, a native of South Africa, is 24 and is a student at the University of Witwatersrand in Johannesburg. Jody works in the food and beverage department.

Ivaylo Tassev, 22, is a native of Bulgaria. Also a student at the University of Witwatersrand, Ivaylo is working in the food and beverage department.

Patrick Bere, 24, is a native of Zimbabwe. A student at University of the Western Cape in Cape Town, Patrick is also employed in the food and beverage department.

Applications for employment at Wisp are available in the company's administrative offices, located in the A-frame at the resort in McHenry. Positions available can be viewed on Wisp's web site as well, located at www.skiwisp.com.

WISP EMPLOYS INTERNATIONALS – Students from the "other side of the world" are utilizing what is their summer break to work at Wisp Resort. The ski area needed employees, and the students were willing to work. See story. Kelly Johnson, human resources director at Wisp, is pictured at left standing with the international students who are helping to fill the unemployment void at the resort. Next to Johnson and continuing to the right are Valentin Tassev, Daniel Kucharczyk, Sophie Obiero, Robert Mukasa, Heberth Cavalcanti, Paul Riley, Joey Keizan, and Ivaylo Tassev. Not available for the picture was Patrick Bere.

The memories I have fondly of Lena Lawson
July 21, 2003 - January 21, 2004

You went first and I remain to walk the floors alone. The memories I have of you are the only happy days I know. You've been gone six months, but it only seems like yesterday. I hear your voice and see your smile. Friends would say, "Hi Lena" and you would jokingly say, "I'm not high, I'm as sober as you are."

I see your blonde hair blowing in the wind. I live in memory's garden forever, Lena. We had so much happiness together that no one but you and I know.

The fifty-one years, seven months, twenty-one days, twelve hours and forty minutes will live in my heart forever. We were nothing but kids when we married, but we soon grew into woman & man, and molded our lives together. You were everything to me, wife, lover, mother, & best friend. Memories are a gift from God and without Him (God) I could not go on. I have to walk that long lonely faith alone, but I'm sure to follow soon. Someday down that road I'll be walking and you will hear me say, "Hi Blondy, I love you with all my heart."

Missing you,
Your loving Marlin

Notes From Bittinger

by Joan Sussman

Cousin Courtney asks for only one birthday present on January 21, which happens to be that the Maryland basketball team will defeat Duke. I don't know whether it is too much to ask for or not. At least he can hope for it, taking into consideration that Maryland beat North Carolina, which is always a tall order.

On the past Saturday evening my family gathered at the Bass home to watch the Terps take on Georgia Tech. No ACC game is a sure win for any team, which we found out when Georgia Tech beat the Terps. Of course, there was much disappointment among the Terp rooters.

I hope we will escape the freezing rain. I guess I am over cautious so that I warmed up my house in case we will lose power. Now it is too hot, especially with both Claire and I having a fever and the usual cold symptoms. With that and a looming record book deadline for 4-H, I am afraid Ferne will be disappointed at our non-appearance at church. But you know that all lives must have some rain fall on them.

After several years of the non-appearance of my favorite bird, it finally reappeared in the old Glotfelty cemetery. An Arctic rough-leg hawk again chose the most windy and blustry location south of the Arctic Circle for a winter vacation. But they do love to come to the Glade area to escape even worse weather near the North Pole.

This January 19 is almost the same as the one 13 years ago. Snow is falling, bombs are falling in Iraq, and I am in terrible pain. But there is one big difference, as I can't look forward to a beautiful new life in my arms or end the pain with pure bliss.

I did everything I know to do to make my littlest baby's birthday as good as possible, trying to straighten up the chaos of our living room and do all the dirty dishes and then put a birthday display of her presents, cards, and a birthday stocking for her and non-birthday stockings for me and her sisters. I bought all the supplies for her big sister's birthday breakfast for her. I sang "Happy Birthday" at 8 a.m., not too loudly, just loud enough if she were already awake and she could hear it. She already had her cousins' party last evening. Aunt Carol served up chili, cobbler, and two kinds of cake. Even Gram made an appearance, even though her coming home from her cruise to the Bahamas found roads that were really bad through West Virginia. She was dismayed with the weather after enjoying 70 and 80 degree temperatures in Florida and on the cruise. When she finally arrived in Bittinger she was greeted with more snow and ice.

It was so cold and slick out that I hated to go out, but who could bear to miss the Glotfelty clan's tuneless rendition of "Happy Birthday." We sure are not the Von Trapp family singers!

I heard that Rodney will be joining with a few other musicians in appearance with a rhythm and blues band, "The Old Ones," this Friday night at the Brewery restaurant in McHenry. They appeared several weeks ago and were well received by the audience. Some of the members are Dr. Jim Jones, Dr. Walch, Dr. Hazelwood, Gino Mauricci, Mark Ashby, Monty Pagenhardt, Rodney, and two gal singers. I am not sure if I missed anyone or not.

I am sorry that I missed last Sunday morning church at Emmanuel as we celebrated Global Mission Sunday, including hymns from many countries, including "Shalom" from Israel. Shalom means peace, something that we are in short supply of here. After the service a soup, bread, salad, and dessert fellowship lunch was served.

Luckily the forecast of freezing rain did not cause a power outage, but just coated my car in one inch of ice so I couldn't open the door to get a jump start. Clint Beitzel couldn't open the hood of my car. We did get a good snow squall, almost a blizzard, at least that is how it felt to Sheila Southerly when she was on her little snow plow trying to keep her driveway open.

Most adults of Bittinger really do not go anywhere in this arctic weather unless it is really necessary. I am afraid if I don't get my car running soon it will stay frozen solid until April. When it is too cold for my mother to go out you know it must be cold, as she has hardly stuck her nose out the door since she returned from her cruise.

Open House Set At Grantsville Museum Site

The Town of Grantsville is holding an open house this Sunday, Jan. 25, from 2 until 4 p.m. at the site of the new Grantsville Museum, the former Ruth Enlow Library on Main Street in Grantsville. Now that the new library is open and the building is nearly empty, the public is invited to come and share ideas about the new museum for Grantsville, said Gerry Beachy, mayor.

The Garrett County Historical Society has agreed to participate in setting up and running the museum.

"They have considerable experience in that field, having a great museum in Oakland that deserves a visit from all Garrett County residents," said Beachy.

Refreshments will be served. Items that have already been discussed for the museum are a display of Leo Beachy's prints, a display of artifacts from the National Pike and Braddock's Trail, and original items from the First State Bank that originally occupied the building.

A museum committee has been formed and will look for volunteers to work at the museum. They are also looking for a curator to run the museum, preferably someone with an interest in local history, said Beachy.

The county and the library are turning over the building to the town, and the town will search for grants or other means to restore the building while items are being collected for display.

For more information, persons may contact Beachy at 301-895-5387.

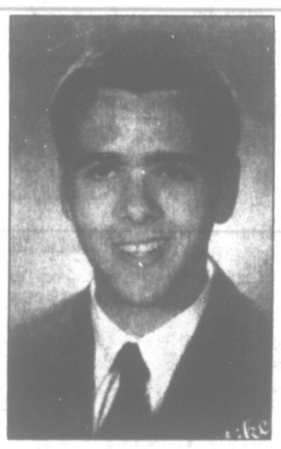
Virts Named To GC Democratic Central Comm.



James "Mikey" Virts Jr. has been named by the Garrett County Democratic Central Committee to fill the unexpired term of Loring Young, who has moved out of the county.

Virts was a candidate for the Board of Garrett County Commissioners during the 2002 election. He mounted a strong bid for office, winning the party's primary election, but was defeated by his Republican opponent in the general election.

Virts said he welcomed the challenges of his new position. "I look forward to assisting the members of the committee in revitalizing the Democratic party in Garrett County; participating in voter registration; and taking an active part in the upcoming presidential election," he stated.

A graduate of Southern High School, Virts is a senior at Frostburg State University, where he is majoring in theatre. He is a member of the Garrett County Democratic Club, and serves on the board of directors of Our Town Theatre.

The next scheduled meeting of the Garrett County Democratic Central Committee is slated for 6 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 4, in the Continuing Education Building of Garrett College.

Bird Count Tally Falls Prey To Wintry Weather

The annual Audubon Society Christmas Bird Count (CBC) took place in Garrett County on Dec. 20 in severe weather conditions, causing the tally of birds to be lower than expected, according to a Count spokesperson. The combined effort of CBC counters yielded 2,376 individual birds ranging across 46 different species on Count day, with two additional species observed throughout Count week.

"Because of the weather, the number of birds seen and number of species tallied was quite low," commented event coordinator Connie Skipper. "We received seven inches of snow on the 20th, plus the snow cover was approximately 10 inches in the woods. Drifts were much higher. In addition, most of Deep Creek Lake was frozen, sending the migrating waterfowl on south. It was pretty difficult to kick up birds in that weather.

"Nevertheless, we got some 'good' birds," Skipper continued. "Great blue herons are a real treat to find this late in the year. Kevin Dodge and his party found an adult bald eagle and the only common loon. Courtney Englar and Barb Skipper both found red-breasted nuthatches, a species seldom found here. Sallie Thayer had two field sparrows at her feeder, as well as a male purple finch. I briefly spotted an eastern meadowlark, and Jeff and Tina Opel found a flock of 26 wild turkeys, the only ones seen that day. Unusual is the fact that no one found any ruffed grouse. Bill and Fran Pope found the only Cooper's hawk and barred owl."

The top 10 species observed, in descending order, were American crow, 712; Canada goose, 371; mallard, 224; black-capped chickadee, 179; slate-colored junco, 148; European starling, 127; mourning dove and American goldfinch, 100 each; eastern tufted titmouse, 65; white-breasted nuthatch, 53; and northern cardinal, 42.

Participants in the field were Kevin Dodge, Courtney Englar, Bob and Stephanie Gray, Aaron Holochwost, Jeff and Tina Opel, Bill and Fran Pope, and Skipper. Those counters spent a total of 45 hours 15 minutes in search of birds across the county, logging 325.15 miles.

Feeder watchers included Dessie Bowman, Garrett and Tess Foster, Harold and Frances Hoecker, Cheryl and Hannah Newcomb, Barbara Skipper, and Sallie Thayer, who spent a combined total of 24½ hours counting birds at their feeders.

Two new CBC participants, Stephanie and Bob Gray, joined the counting crew for the first time.

Strong reaction

NASCAR fans — and some drivers — are bothered by playoff plan

By ALAN TAYS
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla.

Many NASCAR fans are burned up, and they're burning up the Internet.

What's the beef?

Playoffs. Specifically, NASCAR's plan to turn the final 10 races of the Nextel Cup season into a post-season.

"I'm lookin' forward to a better year in '04, but if they put in some kind of NASCAR 'playoff' boojy-woojy, I'll probably junk my TV and watch the fish-tank instead!!" wrote one fan on a NASCAR.com message board.

"Is this the beginning of the demise of NASCAR??" asked another on ThatsRacin.com. "This is a day that will live in infamy."

NASCAR Vice President Jim Hunter recently confirmed rumors that have been circulating for months: NASCAR will change the way it determines the Nextel Cup season points champion.

Saying NASCAR still is working on the plan's specifics, Hunter nevertheless acknowledged it will create a playoff-type competition among the top drivers in the points standings after 26 races. Those drivers — Hunter said how many has not been determined — would be the only ones to compete for the title during the final 10 races.

NASCAR's scoring system, which awards 175 base points to a race winner and progressively fewer to each finisher down to last place, has been criticized as not sufficiently rewarding race winners. Only a five-point gap separates first and second place, and bonus points for leading a lap and leading the most laps make it possible for a runner-up to earn as many points as a winner.

Last season, Matt Kenseth won the title despite winning only one race, while eight-race winner Ryan Newman finished sixth. Not since Benny Parsons in 1973 had a champion won so few races, but Kenseth's title was built on a better average finish than anyone else. Failing to finish seven races hurt Newman more than his victories helped him.

"There are people who say we haven't really had a significant championship run and the excitement's not as good as it could be," Brian France, NASCAR's new CEO, said in November. "But we hear that every year, and we do look at it every year, and I'm just looking at it maybe a little closer than ever in my new role."

Drivers aren't thrilled, either

Most NASCAR watchers figured points-tweaking might include increasing the reward for winning a race, equalizing points awarded for back-of-the-pack finishers and possibly giving points for winning a pole. (Hunter said points likely will be increased for race winners.)

The "playoff format" for the last 10 races, however, caught some by surprise.

"Oh NASCAR you forgot that old saying 'IF IT IS NOT BROKE, DON'T FIX IT' " read another e-mail on NASCAR.com.

Internet message boards, like talk radio and letters to the editor, are notorious for attracting more negative than positive input. But e-grousers aren't the only ones panning NASCAR's plan. Many drivers don't like it, either.

Dale Jarrett: "You can call me a traditionalist or whatever, but I'm not for the change."

Dale Earnhardt Jr.: "I like the point system we have. It rewards the driver with the best average finish. . . . I just really don't like the idea of the 10-race shootout."

Teaming up

Daytona International Speedway

Dale Earnhardt Inc. driver Michael Waltrip, right, talks with DEI teammate Dale Earnhardt Jr. during test sessions earlier this month at Daytona International Speedway. Waltrip, the reigning and two-time Daytona 500 champion, posted an impressive lap speed of 187.731 during his test session, while Earnhardt and John Andretti, driver of the DEI-owned No. 1 Chevy, also turned in strong performances. Many attribute the sharing of valuable testing data among teams as a reason for DEI's dominance at superspeedways.

Kevin Harvick: "In my opinion, the points system rewards the most consistent driver in 36 races. For the most part, I think our points races have been pretty good."

"That's not surprising," Hunter said of the criticism. "Human nature just does not like change."

Not everyone dislikes the plan.

"I like it," said Michael Waltrip. "Having 10 guys with a shot at a championship with 10 races to go is a story. I think it will add to our sport. All the negative talk about it means that people are afraid of change. It's scary at times. The more people understand what the proposed change might do, the more they'll like it. If I'm the networks, I love it. If I'm a race fan, I love it."

"Any change that helps the package we have and gets viewers more involved in the broadcasts, I'm in favor of," said David Levy, president of TNT, which along with NBC will broadcast the late-season races.

"That's fantastic for us, obviously," said Curtis Gray, president of Homestead-Miami Speedway, site of the season-ending Ford 400. "It almost guarantees that there will be a points race at Homestead-Miami Speedway."

But those who don't like the plan have several complaints or concerns about it.

"I don't like that idea at all because in the last 10 races there are no Daytonas, there are no Bristols, there are no Poconos and there are no road courses," Kenseth said. "I don't think a champion should be rewarded off of how good they are at a mile-and-a-half racetrack. I think it should have to be rewarded on how good you are at all the tracks like it always has been."

The last 10 races of this year's schedule will be mile-and-a-half (Homestead-Miami, Kansas, Charlotte and Atlanta), one-mile (Dover, Phoenix and New Hampshire), half-mile (Martinsville), 2.66-mile (Talladega) and 1.366-mile (Darlington) tracks. The venues include five of the circuit's oldest tracks — Martinsville, Darlington, Charlotte, Atlanta and Dover.

The most notable absentee is NASCAR's marquee track, Daytona International Speedway, whose two races — the season-opening Daytona 500 and the July 4 weekend Pepsi 400 — are highlights of the first half of the schedule.

Another prominent track not on the list is Richmond, but it figures to attract plenty of interest for its Sept. 11 race because it will represent the final chance for drivers to qualify for the "playoffs."

"All of a sudden that 26th race at Richmond becomes one of the most important races of the year," Gray said.

Added concerns

But what about drivers who don't qualify as title contenders? This is the part of the plan drawing the most flak.

"Say we've had a pretty decent 25 races and I'm seventh in the points going into Richmond, but from fifth to 12th is really close, within 100 points of each other," Jarrett said. "On the first lap, I get taken out at Richmond, and my car is torn up beyond repair, and I go all the way back to 11th or 12th. You're going to tell UPS, who spends millions of dollars, that the best their car can finish this season is 11th?"

"You'll have sponsors that will come in and sign you up for two-thirds of the year, and then if you do get into the top 10, they'll give you an additional bonus for the final third of the season," Kurt Busch speculated.

"I don't think too many sponsors would react that way," said Eric Pinkham, director of motorsports for Busch's sponsor, Newell Rubbermaid. "I don't think it would discourage a sponsor from supporting teams for all 36 events."

Busch is an example of a tricky scenario for NASCAR: What to do with a driver who, after being out of the top 10 with 10 races to go, gets hot?

Busch stood 12th in points after 26 races in 2002. But with three subsequent victories and six top-four finishes, he compiled more points during the last 10 races than anyone else.

NASCAR is considering various "wild-card" answers to such situations. But fans and drivers have expressed concern about teams out of the title chase after 26 races.

"They're still racing to win races, and they're still racing to finish as high in the points as they possibly can," Hunter said when asked what would motivate such teams. Also, he noted, "No driver has ever won a NASCAR championship if after the 26th race of the season he was not in the top 10 of the points."

Still, some aren't convinced.

"Brian France seems intent on trying 'Le Grande Experimen' so I hope he is man enough to stand up if the darn thing blows up in his face," said Ron Thornton, a 47-year-old NASCAR fan from Edmonton, Alberta. "While I support his goals, I think his implementation will prove to be amateurish at best and draconian at its worst."

"If Mr. France wanted to make the final nine or 10 races more important, as he has done with this playoff scheme, he could have simply doubled the points awarded over the course of the final quarter of the season," said Thornton, a former sports broadcaster.

"That would also have changed the face of the 2003 season if it had been implemented. It could have also opened the door to a number of teams outside the top 10 to make a run for the top, such as Bill Elliott."

Hunter cited NASCAR's desire to better compete for attention in the fall with other sports, especially the NFL, as part of the motive for the proposed change.

"I understand we're after the TV and stuff," Kenseth said, "but I just hope that we find out what the fans want, too. I hope we do what the core base of the fans who got us here want to do."

The fans have spoken

If a petition currently posted on the "Confused NASCAR Fans" Web site (confusednascarfans.us) represents the "core base of the fans who got us here," their opinion is pretty clear.

"As fans, we propose a return to the previous points structure with minor modifications, i.e. more points for winning; points given for qualifications; a standard awarding for points of equal value for a finishing spot to be determined by NASCAR for those finishing at or lower than the determined finishing place; and a minimum speed requirement.

"We, as fans, ask that our voice be heard."

NEWS & NOTES

A new ride for Benson

By RICK MINTER
Cox News Service

Atlanta

Johnny Benson, who lost his Nextel Cup ride in the No. 10 Chevy to rookie Scott Riggs, has signed on to drive the No. 09 Dodge owned by James Finch.

Finch, a Florida businessman who runs a partial Nextel Cup schedule, often fields one of the fastest cars on the track — particularly at Daytona and Talladega.

BENSON

Benson hasn't tested at Daytona because the deal was struck too late to have his seat installed in the car. Veteran Joe Ruttman handled those chores.

Benson is set to run both races at Daytona and Talladega as well as Las Vegas and Richmond. He also could wind up running Finch's No. 1 car in the Busch Series.

Tundra time

The Toyota Tundras were a little off the pace in preseason testing at Daytona International Speedway, but driver Bill Lester believes the speed will come.

"Everything we're doing is putting us in the right direction," he said. "For the first time in my career, I'm having the pleasure of driving a brand new truck. It's working really well and doing what I ask it to do."

The No. 59 Dodge, co-tested by veteran Steve Grissom and 2003 NASCAR Weekly Racing Series champion Mark McFarland, had the fastest speed, 182.964 mph, during the final truck test last week.

IROC back on track

The future of the International Race of Champions, a series that pits drivers from different racing series in equally prepared cars, was in doubt last year when longtime financial backer True Value dropped its support.

But IROC has bounced back in a big way, signing a new sponsor, raising its payoff and securing three new venues.

The four-race circuit will open its season as usual at Daytona International Speedway on Feb. 13, then go to three new tracks — Texas Motor Speedway on April 2, Richmond International Raceway on Sept. 9 and Atlanta Motor Speedway on Oct. 30.

The winning driver gets a major pay increase — from $250,000 to $1 million from a total payout of $1.9 million being offered by new sponsor Crown Royal.

Elliott's plans remain on hold

ELLIOTT

Bill Elliott's racing plans could be curtailed this season because of a lack of sponsorship. Elliott announced last fall that he hoped to run a partial Nextel Cup schedule this season, but he and his car owner Ray Evernham have had no success in signing a sponsor.

"We've talked to a lot of people, but nobody has made a commitment," Elliott said last week.

Still he's set to run the Bud Shootout at Daytona next month, then the Nextel Cup races at Las Vegas and Texas. His plans for the rest of the year hinge on finding a sponsor.

"Worst case scenario, hopefully we could do five [races]," he said. "Best case scenario, I'd like to run about 15."

In addition to being a test driver for Evernham, Elliott is planning to run some races in a dirt Late Model, and he's making himself available to run some Craftsman Truck and Busch Series races.

Gordon's new look: What's all the buzz about?

By ALAN TAYS
Cox News Service

Daytona Beach, Fla.

Everyone knows how important aerodynamic streamlining is at Daytona International Speedway. Sleek, smooth lines are a must. Some sleek, smooth lines turned up in an unexpected spot last week when Jeff Gordon offered a brief glance at what's under his hood... uh, hat.

"I don't have much hair," Gordon said. "This is actually a lot compared to what I had a month ago. The hair thing was just — it's the off-season and so I guess I just wanted to do something different."

Gordon's hairstylist took a pair of clippers with a No. 1 guard to give one of the most famous domes in NASCAR a mowing that, were it a putting green, would register about a 14 on the Stimpmeter.

Gordon liked it so much, he did it himself the next time.

"But I missed a spot," Gordon said with a laugh. "It's worth paying that extra money (to have it done professionally)."

Gordon's hair-razing adventure was part of an off-season that also included a diving trip to the Bahamas.

"They sink these ships out there and create dive environments. They also happened to do a shark dive near there. (Teammate) Jimmie Johnson and his girlfriend were with us, so I took Jimmie on his first dive, and he was surrounded by about 15 or 20 reef sharks. That guy doesn't scare easily, but I think he thought I was nuts."

Off-season playtime energized Gordon for the start of the 2004 Nextel Cup campaign. He is eager to resume the kind of racing he did in the final quarter of last season, in which he had eight top-10 finishes, including back-to-back victories, in the final nine races. He wound up fourth in the point standings, chalking up his 10th consecutive year in the final top 10.

Gordon hasn't been as pleased with what he has been hearing about NASCAR's so-called "26-10" plan to create a playoff scenario for the last 10 races of the season to determine the championship.

"It doesn't really matter if I like it or not, because it is what it is," he said. "I heard about it, and I gave my opinion on it, and my opinion didn't include a lot of things that they're doing.

"I would have liked to have seen something a little less drastic. But I do think that it's going to make things interesting and exciting. Those last 10 races — people are going to be watching, for sure.

"It's definitely going to change the way we think about the points and how we go about it."

Has Gordon talked to any other drivers who like the proposed system?

"Not one," he said. "It's not a driver-based point system. It's an entertainment-based point system."

His short hair, Gordon finally decided, has ceased to be entertaining. So no more buzz cuts.

"I was hoping it would be a little bit more grown out by now," he said, "but it's not. I plan on growing it out the rest of the year."

Daytona International Speedway

Jeff Gordon is seen during testing sessions wearing a cap, which hides his much-talked-about hairstyle. Gordon had his hair cut very short for the offseason.

Driver Cited After Single-Vehicle Mishap

Amanda Sisler, Oakland, was cited for failure to reduce speed in dangerous weather following a single-vehicle accident on Route 219 just south of Paul Friend Road Tuesday morning, according to Garrett County sheriff's deputies.

Sisler was driving a 1992 Pontiac Sunbird on Route 219 when she hit a patch of ice and lost control of her vehicle. The vehicle slid off the road and struck a ditch two times, police said.

The high crosswinds in the area at the time of the accident may have been a factor as well as speed, police added.

GC Map Books Available From Planning Office

The Garrett County Planning and Zoning Office has a shipment of the updated 9-1-1 map books available for the public to purchase.

The books, though similar to the old edition, have some improvements designed for easier use. They show all roads recognized in the county's 9-1-1 system as of July 2000 and sell for $10 each.

The books may be purchased at the Planning and Zoning office Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. The office is located in Room 210 in the new section of the courthouse in Oakland.

Rams Fall To Allegany In Overtime, Top Keyser In OT

It was one of the best team efforts of the year by the Southern High School boys' varsity basketball team last Friday evening at home, but the end result of their game with Allegany, the area's top-ranked team, was a 65-59 overtime loss.

Coach Tom Bosley and the Rams bounced back Tuesday evening, however, to top fourth-ranked Keyser, 59-52, on the Golden Tornados' floor. That contest also went into overtime.

The split left the Rams with a 6-7 record which they will put on the line against Northern, also 6-7, this Friday evening.

The Campers of Allegany came to Oakland with a 10-1 record on Friday, but found themselves in a war with the upset-minded Rams. Southern trailed by five, 16-11, at the end of the first quarter, but outscored their opponents by a 23-15 margin in the second stanza to assume a 34-31 halftime edge.

Both teams netted 11 points in the third period, leaving the Rams with a 45-42 advantage heading into the final quarter.

Corey Tressler sent the game into overtime, however, by hitting a two-pointer underneath.

The Campers scored the first few points in the overtime period, and eventually the Rams were forced to foul. All of the Campers' points in the overtime period were scored from the foul line, from which they made good on eight of 16 attempts.

The Rams finished with a 24-21 edge in field goals; however, Allegany's Shane McDade hit four three-pointers and Michael Paige netted three.

Cory Bosley played one of the finest games of his career for the Rams, finishing with a game-high 23 points. Tressler finished with 15, and Andrew VanBogelen reached double figures with 10.

Pacing the Campers was Ian Grady with 19 points, followed close by McDade with 18 and Paige with 15.

The Southern junior varsity was also defeated in the preliminary game, 58-38. Joey Tressler led the Ram jayvees in scoring with 13 points, while Scott Scaletta and John Pande netted 15 and 13, respectively, to lead the Campers.

Tuesday's win over Keyser was extremely satisfying for Ram fans, as Southern trailed throughout most of the game, successfully rallied in the final quarter, and then ran away with the contest in the extra period to record the victory.

The Rams were down 13-7 at the end of the first quarter, trailed by 12, 29-17, at halftime, and were behind 37-32 at the end of the third period.

It was a successful three-point shot by Cory Bosley just before the buzzer to end regulation that tied the score at 50-50 and sent the game into overtime.

The Rams scored 9 of the 11 points that were recorded in overtime to finish with the seven-point margin of victory.

Bosley and Corey Tressler led the Rams with 17 points apiece, while VanBogelen recorded 16.

Leading Keyser (5-6) in scoring were Brian Wilson with 14 points and Nick Landis with 13.

The Southern jayvee team was also victorious in the first game, edging the Keyser junior varsity in a defensive struggle, 24-23. Joey Tressler again paced the Rams with a game-high 13 points.

Friday's games against Northern at the Cove will begin at 6:00 p.m. (junior varsity) and 7:30 (varsity).

The Rams will be in action Saturday night as well when they will host a powerful Williamsport squad. Game times will again be 6 and 7:30 p.m.

A VALIANT EFFORT was put forth by the Southern High School boys' varsity last Friday night against 10-1 Allegany, the area's top-ranked team, but that effort fell just short, as the Rams were topped by the visiting Campers in overtime, 65-59. Driving into the lane in the photo above is Southern's Andrew VanBogelen, who finished in double figures with 10 points. At right is Evan Lantz of Southern being guarded by Allegany's Ian Grady, who led the Campers in scoring with 19 points. Crashing the board in the photo at right is Southern's Dewaine Jones (#3) and Allegany's Michael Paige. At left in that photo is Ram Corey Tressler (#40). The Rams also went into overtime against Keyser on Tuesday and came home with a 59-52 victory. See story for details. Photos by John McEwen.

Husky Boys Ready For Rams After Beating Hancock, Pirates

The Northern Huskies are making tracks, as the NHS boys' varsity basketball team has taken four of its last five outings over the past two weeks on their way to improving to 6-7. The latest victims of NHS's dogged determination are Hancock, loser of a 70-62 contest Friday, and Paw Paw, which Northern downed in a hard-fought 69-66 contest Tuesday. The Huskies' only defeat over their last five games was a three-point overtime loss to No. 2 Westmar.

NHS is slated to host Southern tomorrow night, and for the first time in recent memory the two schools are carrying identical records into a cross-county battle.

Coach Paul Edwards and his squad have been making the most of a relatively small roster in launching their run, as the scoring has been exceptionally balanced from all parts of the floor. Senior Jason Rice continues to step up both in the frontcourt and from long range to pace Northern's point production, along with sophomores Blake Walker and Brent Beachy, while sophomore guard Chris Speicher sparked the scoring flurry by dishing out team-high assist tallies in both of this week's outings.

NHS raced out to a quick 25-11 lead to quell the Hancock crowd early Friday, but the hosts cut the lead to three, 38-35, by the intermission. Northern outscored the Panthers 14-9 over the third stanza to take a 52-44 lead into the final quarter.

Rice nailed a trio of three-pointers on his way to a team-high 17 points, and also grabbed six rebounds and blocked six shots, while Beachy notched a 12-point, 10-rebound double-double with five assists. Walker put up a dozen points, and Speicher contributed seven points and six assists. Brad Spielman had a game-high 21 points for Hancock.

"Jason Rice played maybe his best game of his career as far as his all-around game is concerned," Edwards commented. "He played with a lot of poise, and led the team by playing hard and settling the other guys down. Brent Beachy played very well again, too, and I think he is just hitting his groove—he's becoming a real good player."

NHS took the junior varsity contest, but details were not made available.

Tuesday night's three-point homecourt win over Paw Paw was a basketball rendition of the tortoise and the hair tale. Despite the Pirates' phenomenal tally of 10 three-pointers, Northern grabbed the contest point-by-point at the foul line, where the Huskies sank 14 of 18 attempts. The visitors had only six free-throw tries, and hit four of them.

Much as they had done in the first half of Friday's contest, the Huskies sped out to an early 23-14 first quarter lead, then sputtered in the second quarter on the way to a slim 35-33 halftime advantage. Northern refused to cave over the third quarter, and had widened its lead to 54-49 as the final stanza commenced.

Walker led all scorers with 18 points and snagged seven rebounds, while Rice put in a carbon copy of his own Friday showing with 17 points, including three treys. Speicher had 10 points and six assists. Tyrone Spencer and Tyler Ridgeway each had 17 points for the Pirates.

Northern won the junior varsity game, 65-41, behind a 20-point performance by Lucas McMillan.

The Huskies' stellar play could be coming at just the right moment, depending on what end of the county you reside in, for they take on arch-rival Southern tomorrow in a varsity contest set for broadcast on 92.3-FM. Pre-game coverage will get under way approximately 20 minutes prior to the 7:30 p.m. tip-off. The Huskies then visit Allegany Tuesday before traveling to Oakland Friday, Jan. 30, for their second showdown with the Rams.

Outlander™ MAX 400 H.O. Quest™ MAX 650 Traxter™ MAX
Introducing the world's first ATVs designed with a passenger in mind. To create the Bombardier Outlander MAX 400 H.O., the Quest MAX 650, and the Traxter MAX, we had to rethink everything about the ATV. So we began with an extended wheelbase which positions both riders in front of the rear axle shafts for greater stability. Then we added a step-up rider/passenger seat and raised footboards for more comfort and control. And exclusively on the Outlander MAX 400 H.O., we offer an optional feature, the Convertible Passenger Seat/Rack System, which allows you to quickly convert from a two-rider quad to a one-rider machine with extra cargo capacity. So, whether you use your ATV for work or play, now you can take a passenger along for the ride

Rams Handle Bigger Patuxtent, Ryken, But Beall Snaps Streak

After riding high through a weekend of road action featuring victories over downstate opponents Patuxent and St. Mary's Ryken, the area's third-ranked Southern High girls' varsity basketball squad was tripped up by fourth-ranked Beall Monday night at home. The loss to the Mounties carried a special sting for the Rams, as it snapped SHS's record-setting 36 game WMIL win streak, which began on Feb. 16, 2000, with a 20-point win over Beall.

Southern started off slow before pulling out a 55-50 victory at Patuxent on Friday, as the Rams found themselves down by a 15-6 deficit after the first quarter. The Rams regrouped to go on a 23-10 run over the next eight minutes that put them on top 29-25 at the half. The third quarter was all SHS as the Rams outscored the hosts by a 19-8 tally, and held on over the final stanza for the five-point win.

Flanagan took game-high scoring honors with 25 points and also hauled down nine rebounds. Pagenhardt contributed six points, eight rebounds, and four assists, and Gregg and Caitlyn Brown also had six points each. St. Mary's top scorer was Amy Angel, who had 14 points.

Just two buckets separated the Rams from extending their league win streak Monday, as they dropped a narrow 59-56 contest to visiting Beall. An offensive fireworks show by the Mounties' Amy Williams combined with a tenacious Beall defensive scheme to spell Southern's doom.

"Their defense is really top notch," SHS coach Don Stemple said of Beall's defense, which held the Rams to 33 percent shooting. "We just didn't defend Williams and Kacey Kahl [18 points] very well. They carried the load for their team all night."

The two teams showed what kind of back-and-forth night it would be as Beall battled to a slim 13-12 first-quarter lead. The visitors doubled their lead by the half, 29-27, and were up 48-43 heading into the final eight minutes before a loud Oakland crowd feverishly yelling for their hometown favorites.

Some inspired play sparked a four-minute fourth-quarter opening rally that put the Rams on top by one point, but SHS was unable to stave off a Mountie comeback. Williams and Kahl combined for a clutch 4-for-4 free throw showing late in the game, and Williams sank a devastating three-pointer, one of four she had on the night, during the final moments.

Gregg led the valiant Ram effort with 23 points, including a pair of three-pointers and a 5-for-6 foul shooting mark. Pagenhardt netted 19 points, including two treys of her own.

Southern won the JV contest, 43-31, as Sarah Stevens scored 16 points for the Rams. Beall's Chelsea Raley had eight points.

SHS opens a string of six straight road games with a visit to Fort Hill tonight, followed by a weeklong break before traveling to Joppatown next Friday, Jan. 30.

Ram Freshmen Fall To Vikings, Top Mountaineers

The freshmen boys' basketball team of Southern High School dropped a 49-36 decision to host Petersburg last Thursday evening, but then bounced back last night to stop previously unbeaten Beall, 45-42, in Frostburg. The split left the Rams with a 6-2 record.

Lucas Geary and Jim Zimmerer led the Vikings in scoring with 16 and 11 points, respectively. Zimmerer also grabbed nine rebounds. The Rams were paced by Sean McCreery with nine points and Adam VanBogelen with eight.

The Rams trailed at the quarters, 14-11, 26-19, and 42-31.

"Petersburg out-hustled us to every loose ball and every rebound," stated Ram coach Jon Hegeman. "They are a very talented team, and you cannot give good teams second and third chances to score. But I believe our players learned a lot from the experience."

Three Rams finished in double figures to lead a balanced attack last night against Beall, handing the Mountaineers their first loss in seven starts.

Erik Cussins finished with 13 points, Mark Bittinger scored 12, and Mike Edwards netted 11 to lead the Rams' offensive effort.

Scoring leaders for the Mountaineers were Clifton Martin with 13 points, Corey Greig with 11, and Pat Winebrenner with nine.

The Rams are scheduled to play again to Saturday at Frankfort, with the tip-off set for 11 a.m. They will travel to Tucker County on Monday.

NHS Splits By Bagging Elks, Falling To Frankfort Falcons

The Northern High School girls' varsity basketball team have had a week of ups and downs, as the Huskies started off with a convincing 48-38 victory over Salisbury last Thursday, Jan. 15, but then dropped a 42-22 contest to Frankfort Monday. In NHS's defense, the Falcons are one of the top teams in the area, if not their entire home state of West Virginia.

The stalking of Salisbury's Elks began down the wrong trail, as the Huskies fell behind 12-11 after one quarter. Northern rebounded to take a 23-18 lead at the half, and was up 37-25 as the fourth quarter opened.

NHS was paced by junior forward Jeseca Gibson, who scored 23 points, and senior guard Lyndsi Butler, who hit a pair of three-pointers on her way to a 14-point tally. Gibson sank 8 of 12 opportunities from the free-throw line as the Huskies accumulated an impressive 15 points from the charity stripe. Jess McCleary had 13 points and Susan Kolb 12 for Salisbury.

Monday's outing at Frankfort opened with the hosts taking a 16-8 lead and a 24-15 halftime advantage. Northern was down 41-17 as the final stanza opened.

Gibson had 9 points for the Huskies, and Butler recorded 6. Frankfort was paced by Julie Cessna's 17 points, as the senior moved into first place on the Falcons' career scoring list.

The Huskies visit Bishop Walsh Saturday before opening a season-ending stretch run that will feature seven of eight games on their home Igloo court. The BW road trip will be followed by home battles with Allegany Monday and Meyersdale on Thursday, Jan. 29. Jayvee games tip off at 6 p.m., and varsity match-ups begin at 7:30 p.m.

Rams End 18-Year Drought Vs. NHS; Crush 'Cats, Falcons

It had been since February 6, 1986, that the Southern High School wrestling team defeated cross-county rival Northern, but that 18-year run finally came to an end last Thursday evening when the Rams rolled over the young Husky squad, 53-19, on Northern's mats.

The Rams then had a field day Tuesday evening at home, as they upped their dual meet record to 9-1 by embarrassing Westmar, 78-6, and Frankfort, 75-4.

Recording pins for the Rams in Thursday's win over Northern were Josh Armstrong in the 103-pound division, Justin Ratliff at 119 pounds, Daniel carr in the 125-pound class, Jeffrey Gregory in the 140-pound bout, Scott Wildesen at 160 pounds, Jason Weeks in the 171-pound clash, and Dan Goulart in the heavyweight division.

Earning major decisions for Southern were Nathan Sines at 135 pounds and Chris Tepper in the 152-pound contest, while Chris Bennett gained a decision in the 189-pound division.

Undefeated Casey Kamp at 112 pounds and Drew Clark, 215 pounds, won on pins for the Huskies, while teammates Eric Garlitz (130) recorded a major decision and Michael Wolf avenged an earlier loss to Jeremy Gregory by decision in the 145-pound bout.

In Tuesday's team win over Westmar, Armstrong, Greg Graham (112), Ratliff, Carr, Andrew Pritts (130), Jeffrey Gregory, Jeremy Gregory, Wildesen, Justin Fitzwater (215), and Goulart were all pinfall winners for the Rams.

Sines, Weeks, and Bennett were each awarded forfeits.

The sole winner for the Wildcats was Eric Beeman, who recorded a pin in the 152-pound division.

Getting pins against Frankfort were Graham, Carr, Pritts, Sines, Jeremy Gregory, and Bennett.

Ratliff won via a decision, while Jeffrey Gregory, Tepper, Weeks, Fitzwater, and Goulart were all declared winners by forfeit.

Devin Bosley kept the Falcons from being shut out by recording a major decision in the 160-pound division.

The Northern Huskies also competed at Southern on Tuesday, but only against Frankfort, over whom they recorded an easy 66-18 victory. They also had a match last night at home against Meyersdale. (See separate story.)

The Rams will face a major test tonight when they travel to Frostburg to take on the undefeated Beall Mountaineers. They will compete in the Musselman Tournament this Saturday and travel to Westmar next Thursday.

Northern will participate in the Bedford Tournament this Friday and Saturday, and travel to Westmar next Wednesday.

RAM GRAPPLERS KEEP WINNING — It was no contest for the Southern High School wrestling team Tuesday evening at home, as the Rams crushed Westmar, 78-6, and Frankfort, 75-4. In the 28 individual bouts, the Rams were 26-2 with a total of 16 pins. Getting two of those pins was Southern freshman Daniel Carr, pictured above in the midst of one of them over Frankfort's Josh Ours in a 125-pound division clash. Husky Grapplers Fall To Rams, Top Frankfort, Nipped By Meyersdale

Sandwiched between a pair of team losses this past week for the Northern High School wrestling team was one convincing victory, a 66-18 win over Frankfort in a match held at Southern.

The Huskies dropped a 53-19 contest to Southern last Thursday, which was the first loss to the Rams in 18 years. They were also nipped by visiting Meyersdale last night, 40-39.

The results left Coach Scott Stough and the Huskies with a 4-5 record in dual meet competition.

Recording pins for the Huskies in their win over Frankfort on Tuesday were unbeaten Casey Kamp in the 112-pound division, Eric Garlitz in the 130-pound contest, Michael Moyer at 135 pounds, Michael Wolf in the 145-pound clash, and Shane Snider at 215 pounds.

Randy Wilhelm (103), Rocco Andres (140), Remington Friend (152), Brandon Opel (171), Brock Glotfelty (189), and Jared Beachy (275) were all awarded forfeits.

Earning pin victories for the Falcons were Shaun Snoberger (119), Josh Ours (125), and Devin Bosley (160).

Last night against Meyersdale the Huskies won the final three matches, but fell just short of team victory. Northern had no pins in the contest, and in fact, all but one of their individual wins were via forfeits.

Brock Glotfelty recorded a decision in the 189-pound division, while forfeits were awarded to Wilhelm, Kamp, Garlitz, Wolf, Snider, and Beachy.

Meyersdale got pins from Steve Larue (125), Patrick Smith (140), Dan Ackerman (152), Shanon Bowker (160), and Shane Bowker (171).

The Huskies will compete in the annual Bedford Tournament this Friday and Saturday and travel to Westmar next Wednesday.

HUSKIES FLATTEN FRANKFORT — Frankfort was no match on the mats for the Northern High Huskies, who rolled over the Falcons, 66-18, in a match at Southern Tuesday evening. The final moment of the 135-pound division match between Northern's Michael Moyer and Sri Balasubramanian is captured above by staff photographer John McEwen, as referee Lynn Brenneman signals a pin victory. Incidentally, Brenneman is a Northern alum, current teacher, and former wrestling and softball coach. In the background of the same photo is referee Pete Stein, also an NHS grad and former state champion. Pictured below is Northern's Eric Garlitz in control of Frankfort's Aaron Snoberger. Garlitz won the 130-pound division match via a pin. See story for details.

Laker Juggernaut Steamrolls Over Northern Va., Rockville

The points, and wins, just keep coming for the Garrett College women's basketball squad, as the Lakers swamped two opponents by huge margins this week to take their winning streak to eight straight and their record to 10-2. After crushing Northern Virginia Community College Monday 112-57, GC absolutely flattened Rockville last night by a 72-point margin, 134-62.

The offensive fireworks and defensive stonewalling are becoming trademarks of the Garrett women, who are averaging close to 100 points per game in scoring output while holding opponents to less than 60 points per game. GC's unselfish offensive scheme put six players in double figures in scoring against Northern Virginia, and a whopping eight Lakers hit for double figures against Rockville.

Freshman guard Denae Kennedy is helping pace the point production by leading the Maryland JUCO in assists per game, while classmate and fellow backcourt sparkplug Ashley Liller is hovering near the top of the Maryland JUCO's scoring ranks.

After opening against Northern Virginia with a strong but rather unremarkable first half, which closed with GC holding a 38-26 advantage, the Lakers exploded for a phenomenal 74-31 run over the second stanza. Garrett's full-court pressure defense forced turnover after turnover that the fast-breaking Lakers converted into lay-up after lay-up.

Sophomore forward La-Sha Anderson paced the scoring frenzy with 24 points, Jenna Bradford had 19, Kennedy 16, and Amanda Frantz 11, while Tamika Duck and Liller contributed 10 each. A number of players turned in superb performances on both ends of the floor, as Anderson grabbed nine rebounds, handed out four assists, and snagged four steals; Kennedy recorded eight assists, four rebounds, and three steals; and Duck contributed eight rebounds and four steals. Lauren Crumpton led Northern Virginia with 16 points.

Last night's battle in McHenry was a rematch of the 2003 Maryland JUCO championship contest, and Garrett downed the Rockville Hawks again.

After rolling to a 71-22 halftime lead, GC cruised behind a solid team effort to the huge victory. Three Lakers—Duck, Liller, and Lovarsha Knox—notched double-double tallies, while freshman Amanda Frantz and Liller shared team-high scoring honors with 19 points apiece. Anderson netted 17 points, Bradford and Duck recorded 16 each, Kennedy and Knox hit for 14 apiece, and sophomore LaTonya Crowder had 11. Tiffany McFarland had eight.

Bradford had perhaps the finest all-around game in a contest marked by all-around effort, as she dished out 15 assists, and grabbed eight rebounds and four steals to add to her point tally. Kennedy had 11 assists, three rebounds and three steals.

Garrett swept the boards clean as Duck hauled down 13 rebounds, Knox grabbed 11, and Liller grabbed 10 as each notched their double-doubles.

The high-flying Lakers have three outings this week, as a 5 p.m. home-court contest Saturday with Takoma Park is sandwiched between Pennsylvania road trips to CCAC-South tomorrow and CCAC-Allegheny Tuesday.

FAST-BREAKING LAKERS ON THE FLY — McHenry was no place to be for Rockville's Hawks last night, as the Garrett College women's basketball team demolished the visitors in a rematch of last year's Maryland JUCO championship final (which GC also won). The Lakers ran away with a 134-62 triumph with a pressuring defense that led to fast-break opportunities such as the one pictured above that led to Garrett's 115th point with over 5½ minutes still to go. Sophomore LaTonya Crowder (#12) of Cleveland is shown streaking in for the lay-up with teammate Jenna Bradford (#23) also tearing down the lane, while Tiffany McFarland (#44) and Amanda Frantz (#20) trail in the background. Frantz, a Friendsville native and Northern High graduate, is shown below putting up an uncontested lay-up with Crowder following the action. Frantz and fellow freshman Ashley Liller, a Southern High alumna, shared Laker-high scoring honors with 19 points each. The 10-2 Garrett women visit CCAC-South tomorrow. Photos by John McEwen.

Lakers Stop Catamounts To Improve Record To 13-1

A big, 72-64 win over Potomac State College on Monday in Keyser upped the Garrett College men's basketball team record to 13-1.

Four fourth-quarter three-pointers by Garrett's Adam Morgan in a four-minute span of the second half were key to the Lakers' victory over the Catamounts, who came into the game with an impressive 11-4 record.

Morgan, who finished with 18 points, hit four long-range goals between the 10:00 and 6:00 marks of the second half. Then down the stretch the Lakers converted 14 of 18 foul shots to secure the win.

The score remained close throughout much of the game, with the Lakers on top by one, 34-33, at intermission.

Pacing the Lakers' point production was Akeem Scott, who recorded a game-high 21 points.

Leading the Catamounts offensively were Mark Hancock with 14 points and Aaron Butler with 11.

The Lakers were slated to play a Maryland JUCO contest last night at home against Harford CC, but that game was postponed. Garrett will seek win #15 this Saturday at home against Howard CC, with the tip-off set for 7 p.m. They will travel to Anne Arundel CC next Wednesday.

DNR's Schedule For Spring Trout Stocking Noted

Next month the Maryland Department of Natural Resources Fisheries Service will begin stocking nearly 373,400 adult trout in 128 lakes, ponds, and stream sections across 18 counties in the state.

Pre-season stocking will begin in mid-February, and the full season stocking will begin during the second week of March, in preparation for the opening day of trout season on Saturday, March 27. By the first week in March, 50,000 pre-season trout will have been stocked in 50 streams and ponds across the state.

Most of the trout are 16- to 18-month-old yearling rainbow trout, with 40,000 yearling brown trout that average 9 to 12 inches in length. DNR is also stocking over 40,000 holdover trout that are up to 3½ years old and average from 1 to 6 pounds. The stocking schedule, which is available at most DNR Fisheries offices, license vendors and on the DNR web site, lists the sites and numbers of trout to be stocked on a weekly basis.

Most of the put-and-take trout fishing areas have brief closure periods for stocking. "Closures allow stocked trout to spread out and acclimate to their new surroundings," a DNR spokesperson explained.

Anglers are reminded to check the "2004 Freshwater Sportfishing Guide" for details concerning closure periods for their favorite waters. In addition, a trout stamp is required to possess trout in Maryland and to fish in special trout management areas.

The DNR trout stocking program is funded entirely by the sale of freshwater fishing licenses and trout stamps, and Federal Sportfish Restoration Program (Wallop-Breaux) funds generated by anglers' and boaters' tax dollars.

For a complete listing for the trout stocking schedule, persons may consult the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/fisheries/springtroutstock.html.

Renowned Gun Maker To Speak At Game Dinner

World-renowned gun maker, teacher, and author Keith Casteel of Bruceton Mills, W.Va., will be the featured guest speaker at a wild game dinner slated for 5 p.m. this Saturday, Jan. 24, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. The free event, which is open to the public, is sponsored by the Men's Brotherhood of Faith Evangelical Free Church, Mtn. Lake Park.

Now semi-retired, Casteel, 67, is a self-taught artisan whose handmade long rifles have been displayed at museums and shows, and profiled in books and numerous magazine articles. He specializes in "tran-sition and Jaeger" style flintlocks, functioning firearms into which he carves and chisels—in the wood and the metal—early hunting scenes. A number of well-known gun aficionados own a Casteel rifle, including past National Rifle Association president Charlton Heston, former U.S. secretary of state James Baker, Senator Orrin Hatch and Congressman John Murtha.

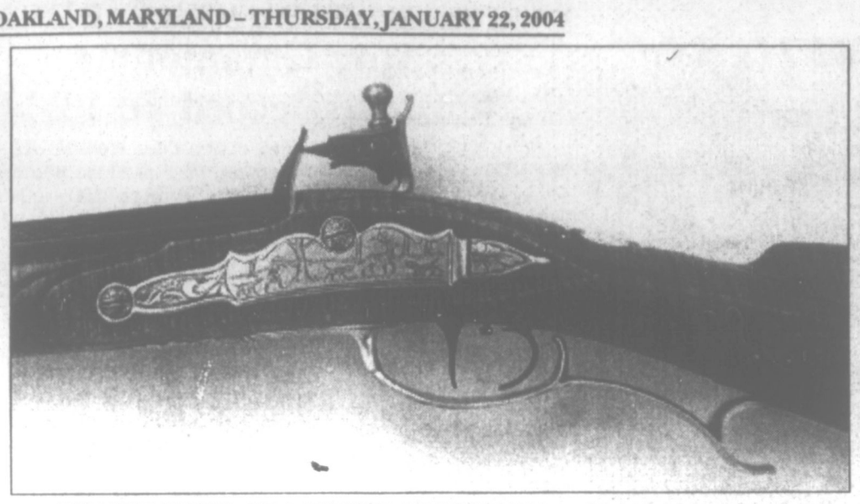
A former coal miner who had risen to the post of director of engineering for Island Creek Coal Company's Eastern Division, Casteel left the industry in 1969 to open his gun shop in Oakland, where he built muzzleloader rifles. The self-taught gunsmith's early productions were similar to southern Pennsylvania and West Virginia rifles. Some of the first rifles he produced sold for about $150 each, and are now valued in excess of $5,000.

In the 1970s Casteel taught many classes on building muzzleloading rifles, and some of his students went on to become full-time gun makers who are still active today.

Casteel's autobiography, Keith Casteel—Full Circle: One Man's Revival of an American Artform in Wood and Metal, contains color photography that shows the detailed work in his rifles.

Various wild game dishes will be served at the dinner, and persons attending may bring a wild game dish or other covered dish if they so choose. A dish judging, hunter's outfit contest, numerous raffle drawings, and entertainment are also on the event slate. A selection of taxidermy mounts will be displayed by Wes Massey.

No reservations are necessary. For further information, persons may contact the church at 301-334-4172.



THE FINE DETAIL OF A MASTER CRAFTSMAN is evident in this flintlock rifle made by noted gunsmith Keith Casteel of Preston County, who will be the featured guest speaker at a wild game dinner set for 5 p.m. this Saturday, Jan. 24, at the Pleasant Valley Community Center. Sponsored by the Men's Brotherhood of Faith Evangelical Free Church, the free event is open to the public. Further information can be obtained by calling 301-334-4172. See story.

Fall Turkey Hunt Kill Count Drops For Another Year

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources reports that fall turkey hunters harvested 164 wild turkeys in the three western Maryland counties during the one-week hunting season from Oct. 25 to Nov. 1. This is a 30 percent decrease from the 2002 harvest of 235 turkeys for western Maryland, while Garrett County's numbers have fallen by 50 percent over the past two years.

"DNR's field staff reported extremely poor reproduction for wild turkeys in western Maryland during the summer of 2003," said DNR Wildlife and Heritage Service director Paul Peditto. "Our brood surveys indicated that summer poult production was at a record-low level last summer in all regions of the state."

As expected, juveniles were an unusually small percentage of the total harvest this fall, supporting the theory that recent reproduction problems are affecting turkey numbers in the region, Peditto added.

"Two consecutive poor nesting seasons and severe weather last winter have surely impacted turkey populations in the region," concurred DNR wild turkey biologist Bob Long, "but populations can rebound surprisingly fast with 1 or 2 years of good poult production."

Although weather, reproduction, and food availability can affect the success of fall turkey hunters from year to year, the decreased turkey harvest is probably influenced more by the steep decline in hunter participation over the last decade, according to a DNR spokesperson. Currently, fall turkey hunters in Maryland number fewer than half of those who hunted in the 1980s and early 1990s.

Allegany County reported the highest harvest with 70 turkeys, followed by Garrett County with 59 turkeys, and Washington County with 35 turkeys. More than 30 percent of the turkeys were taken on public lands.

For tallies of fall turkey hunt harvest season totals for Garrett County and for the three-county region of western Maryland, persons may consult the DNR Web site www.dnr.state.md.us/dnrnews/pressrelease2004/-011604.html. The site lists turkey kill numbers from 1997 through 2003.

In Loving Memory of Cathy Ann Lipscomb
May 10, 1962 - Jan. 22, 1998

I've found a place where I can be free.
I've found a whole new beginning just made for me.
I know only peace and I never feel pain.
Days are full of sunshine and never the rain.
I'm no longer old, I've recovered my youth.
And all my dreams have become the truth.
I can smile. I can laugh. I can walk. I can run.
I can hear every whisper. I can see past the sun.
My body is whole and my mind is clear.
I know all the answers and I'm free of all fear.
I know why you mourn me. I see how you weep.
Your heart's full of aching from a love that is deep.
And I'm grateful for loved ones who hold me so dear,
But remember, I've found a better place here.
I will be there beside you always nearby,
So don't mourn me too long, nor forever cry.
And whenever your sorrow bears down on your heart,
Think not of my ending but of my new start.
For on earth there's no joy that I'd trade you,
To compare to the joy of God smiling at me.

Gov. Ehrlich Moves To Return Borrowed Transportation Funds

by Fulvio Cativo
Capital News Service

ANNAPOLIS – Gov. Robert Ehrlich earmarked $25 million of his fiscal 2005 budget released Wednesday to start repaying the $300 million he borrowed from the state's Transportation Trust Fund last year to close a budget gap.

"It's simply a down payment on the $300 million," Ehrlich said during a news conference unveiling the new budget.

Transportation was one of Ehrlich's key priorities during his successful campaign for governor in 2002. He then promised to end gridlock in the suburban Washington, D.C., area and fund the Inter-county Connector, planned to link Interstates 95 and 270.

The $25 million is an initial installment in a multiyear payback, said Department of Transportation spokesman Jack Cahalan. He said the funds would not be assigned to any specific project until the General Assembly approves the budget.

Although Ehrlich tapped the trust fund for deficit reduction, Cahalan said that had "absolutely no impact" on the state's construction program.

The Ehrlich administration also deflated hopes that a gas tax hike could be used to fund transportation. Maryland Budget and Management Secretary James C. "Chip" DiPaula Jr. said the governor has not expressed much interest in raising the gas tax.

Yet the idea has strong support from transportation advocates, including the Maryland Chamber of Commerce. Stephen Del Giudice, chamber transportation coalition chairman, said the chamber backs a 5-cent gas tax increase to pay for highway projects. The tax hasn't seen a hike in 12 years, he said.

"It's getting to be critical," Del Giudice said.

Ehrlich acknowledged the need for more transportation funding during the news conference and said he hopes to work with legislators to create a plan for various road projects.

"It's one of the more difficult issues of this session," Ehrlich said. "Everybody wants projects. Everybody understands the Transportation Trust Fund has been neglected for almost a decade and everybody knows there needs to be additional dollars in the trust fund."

House Speaker Michael E. Busch, D-Anne Arundel, said the governor is obligated to repay the Transportation Trust Fund.

Busch also criticized a proposal by Delegate John R. Leopold, R-Anne Arundel, to permit the state to borrow from the trust fund only for emergencies, ensuring the majority of the money is used for roads, bridges, and transit.

"I think last year the governor had to do what he had to do when he borrowed the money from the Transportation Trust Fund, and he has an obligation to pay that back," Busch said. "But I think you have to have flexibility in government to be able to shift funds around from time to time."

zens to participate in this public meeting, as the commissioners recognize that every citizen has a stake in the continued vitality of the Deep Creek resort area," commented county administrator Monty Pagenhardt. "This public meeting will be a very important step in the process of completing this planning study."

Bear Plan

The draft version of the 10-year Black Bear Management Plan includes a discussion of bear population management options, including passive management, habitat manipulation, a regulated hunting season, and immunocontraception/sterilization techniques (fertility control).

The draft plan spells out the following goals for the state's black bear management plan:

•ensure the long-term viability of Maryland's black bear population through comprehensive research and monitoring;

•consistent with bear population objectives, conserve black bear habitat in Maryland, maximizing the quantity and quality of habitat available to the bear population;

•promote human safety, protect agricultural income, protect personal property, and address conflicts between humans and bears in such a way that maximizes CCC;

•ensure that public values are considered in various bear management scenarios, and that alternative forms of recreation are incorporated into Maryland's bear management schemes; and

The draft document also proposes that funding to help the plan meet its goals be generated from revenue derived from a bear-hunting program. The current Black Bear Conservation Stamp Program would be abolished once a hunting program and depredation permit system are implemented, and all compensation to landowners for agricultural bear damage would be eliminated. In the event that a black bear hunting season is not implemented, additional funding sources will be established to provide 100 percent compensation for bear-related agricultural damage.

The draft plan is currently available for viewing online at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/bbmgtplan2004.html, and written comments may be e-mailed to customerservice@dnr.state.md.us or submitted via the DNR Web site at www.dnr.state.md.us/wildlife/bbmgtplan-forum.html. Comments can also be sent by mail to Black Bear Project, Wildlife and Heritage Service, 1728 King's Run Rd., Oakland, MD 21550.

The public comment period runs through Friday, Feb. 13.

The proposed limited bear hunt will be the subject of a public hearing tentatively slated for March at a location yet to be named by DNR.

The facility could be a simple shell building with people renting booths and run by a paid manager and staff, or a cooperative venture with vendors taking turns running the market themselves, noted the consultants.

A manager may be needed initially to set up the retail business, but there are many managerial options to explore, Franz added.

The consultants will also examine the market's benefits to both the vendors and the county. "The production end is just as important as marketing," Probst said.

Local vendors would be able to supplement their family incomes by bringing their farm products and crafts to the market. It could also serve as an incubator, helping those vendors establish full-time businesses of their own, noted Franz. Additionally, the market could be an economic asset and promotional tool for the county.

On Tuesday, the consultants met with Economic Development staff and toured the county. They will probably make another trip to the county and meet with potential vendors, Probst noted.

"It will take two months to come up with the study," he said. An interim report will be presented before the study is finalized.

The idea of a year-round market place has been discussed before by county officials and others. "This all started before I came on board," said DeBerry.

Oakland mayor Asa McCain, who attended the consultants' meeting, said the Amish community had talked about establishing a restaurant/market in the town, however, no definite plans have been made. "They were just concepts," he said.

Jim Simms, former Garrett County Extension agent, had also talked about establishing a similar type venture at the fairgrounds.

"We'll try to inundate the firm with all these different ideas," said DeBerry about the various issues discussed at the meeting.

Her department has given the firm a list of potential vendors and craftspeople. Interested persons may call DeBerry at 301-334-1921.

Preston Takes

Preston said he believes that he will be able to better serve the Army Reserve and National Guard as he and his son, often discuss reserve-component issues, "the good and the bad.

"With 20 to 25 percent of our forces currently in Iraq being Guard or Reserve, their issues are extremely important," Preston stated.

Serving the nation in the military is tradition in his family, Preston noted. His mother Betty served in the Air Force and his father Oscar served in the Army, both during the 1950s. His parents were in attendance at the swearing-in ceremony. All of his uncles served in the military, during World War II or the Korean War. Four of those uncles—William, Jim, Owen, and Hack—were also present for the ceremony.

Preston, who joined the military within days of his 1975 graduation from Mt. Savage High School, has served in the Army for 28 years, mostly in armor units. Prior to his selection as sergeant major of the Army, he was the command sergeant major for Combined Joint Task Force 7 in Baghdad.

COLD MOUNTAIN

Rated R - Running Time: 2:35 - Released 12/25/03

Writer/director Anthony Minghella became well-known with his third film, The English Patient, which pretty much swept the 1997 Academy Awards, receiving 12 nominations and winning nine of them (including Best Picture and Best Director). Minghella's next film was 1999's The Talented Mr. Ripley, which also garnered several Oscar nominations (no wins), such as Jude Law's Best Supporting Actor nod. Now (after a 2000 film version of Samuel Beckett's Play, which was apparently only released in Finland and Sweden), Minghella and Law have reunited for Cold Mountain, another obvious Oscar grab which focuses on the American Civil War and boasts such impressive names in the cast as Nicole Kidman, Renée Zellweger, Donald Sutherland, Philip Seymour Hoffman, and Natalie Portman. Not too shabby for a director who's only on his sixth feature.

While last February's Civil War movie, Ronald Maxwell's lengthy Gods And Generals, was all about epic battles and high-minded speechifying, this film, adapted by Minghella from the novel by Charles Frazier, takes a more personal approach, focusing on the home front rather than the battlefield (although it does begin with a bloody scene from the battle of Petersburg, Va.). It is particularly about the trials of a young woman who waits for her lover's return in a small southern town. As we learn during the first hour or so by way of multiple flashbacks interspersed between scenes at the front, Ada (Kidman) had moved to Cold Mountain, N.C., only a few years before the war began with her beloved father, the widowed Reverend Monroe (Sutherland), who has reared his daughter to be an intellectual young woman capable of intelligent discourse on many subjects and also well-trained on the piano. After buying a piece of property called Black Cove Farm, they settle in and become acquainted with neighbors like Esco and Sally Swanger (James Gammon, Kathy Baker), and Ada begins a flirtatious near-romance with a wordless young farmhand of theirs named Inman (Law). However, while she likes the town and its people, Ada soon discovers how cold the mountain can get when she loses the two most important men in her life during the same short period: Inman goes off to war and Rev. Monroe dies at the dinner table.

Realizing that although Ada is well-educated in school subjects she is ill-prepared to run a home, Mrs. Swanger sends help in the form of Ruby Thewes (Zellweger), an outspoken farmhand claiming to be "as good as any man," who—unlike Ada—is ignorant of book learning but very well trained in practical matters thanks to the frequent absence of her father, a wayward traveling musician named Stobrod (Brendan Gleeson). While Ada and Ruby begin the momentous task of bringing Black Cove Farm back up to working condition, they form an increasingly close friendship, sparked in part by their common antipathy toward the malicious town guard run by Teague (Ray Winstone), who has an eye for Ada (and her farm) and often reminds her that Inman is probably not coming back. Teague and his men are constantly on the prowl for war deserters and those who harbor them, since desertion has recently been declared an offense punishable by execution. Meanwhile Inman, having lost his desire to take part in "a cause I don't believe in," has indeed gone AWOL, and is trying to make his way home to Ada. Along the way he meets a number of characters who affect his fortunes, including a lecherous minister (Hoffman), a treacherous yokel (Giovanni Ribisi), a young war widow with a sick infant (Portman), and an elderly healer (Eileen Atkins).

While Cold Mountain is an emotional story embroidered well by director Minghella's well-known visual technique and aided immeasurably by its able cast, it suffers from some unfortunate issues which tend to undermine its ability to be taken seriously, like an occasionally trite storyline, some equally stereotypical characters, and some glaringly anachronistic dialogue. While some aspects of the film are presented in suitably graphic detail to make it clear that the director is going for a certain level of authenticity, there will be something that pops up (like a white man calling another white man "man") which is so jarring, it takes the viewer right out of the scene, a disastrous occurrence for a period movie trying to be taken seriously. Moreover, the plot occasionally leans so obviously towards Gone With The Wind-style melodrama (especially toward the end), it becomes necessary to consciously resist rolling one's eyes in disbelief. Does absolutely everything have to go wrong for these characters? Do the villains have absolutely no redeeming qualities, or justifications for their purely evil ways? At times I thought Teague was in serious need of a big ol' handlebar moustache to twirl at the proper moments.

On the whole, Cold Mountain is an engaging story and another important acting credit for Law, Kidman, Zellweger, and the others. It is unfortunate that it occasionally takes itself too seriously for its own good. ★★★★

Adorable Adoptables

"VERY FRIENDLY" is how this young black and white cat is described by a Humane Society spokesperson. She and many other felines are available for adoption from the Garrett County Animal Shelter. Also at the facility is a male boxer mix who was picked up as a stray. "Please remember to put collars and identification tags on your pets. This helps to find owners quickly," said the spokesperson. "There is a required three-day holding period at the shelter, but many times the owners never call. We can usually tell that a pet has an owner somewhere, but aren't able to contact him or her." Last week's Lab mix, "Hank," was reclaimed by his owner. For more information about these or any other pet at the shelter, persons may call 301-334-3553.

Applications Now Being Taken For Heating Assistance

Persons may now apply for heating and utility assistance from the Garrett County Community Action Committee's Home Energy Program (formerly known as Maryland Energy Assistance Program). Any person who has not applied since July 1, 2003, may now reapply.

The office is located at the Community Action building on Center Street in Oakland. Regular office hours are Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., although persons may schedule evening appointments.

When applying, persons will need to bring proof of the total household income for the prior 30 days, the electric or gas bill (if gas is the main source of heat). If an applicant has never received assistance before, he or she will also need to provide a driver's license or birth certificate, as well as Social Security cards for every household member.

The income guidelines are as follows: For a household size of one person, the maximum monthly income can be $1,123; two persons, $1,515; three persons, $1,908; four persons, $2,300; five persons, $2,693; and six persons, $3,085. For each additional individual, the amount is increased by $393.

Under the Medical Waiver program, households that were ineligible for this assistance because of being over the income limits may now be eligible if receipts of medical bills paid over the last 90 days can be provided.

For more information or to schedule evening appointments, persons may call 301-334-9431, ext. 114, or 1-888-877-8403, ext. 114.

Medicines for Low Back Pain

Low back pain affects an estimated 15-45% of the U. S. population each year. Over 70% of the population will experience low back pain during their lifetime. It occurs more frequently in those who are sedentary than active. Usually the pain is constant but aggravated by movement. This type of pain usually has a gradual onset but can emerge suddenly, especially after lifting heavy objects improperly or from trauma such as from automobile accidents. Pain that persists is considered to be chronic. Although rest is recommenced, maintaining normal activities may actually speed recovery.

Rest and the use of ice can be beneficial in relieving low back pain. Drugs also can be helpful. Over-the-counter pain medicines like acetaminophen or aspirin are sometimes prescribed for mild cases. For low back pain that is caused or aggravated by muscle spasms, prescription muscle relaxants like cyclobenzaprine or carisoprodol can be helpful. Although not officially a muscle relaxant, diazepam sometimes is prescribed. Prescription pain drugs including naproxen may be prescribed for moderate back pain. Acetaminophen with hydrocodone or propoxyphene are sometimes used if the pain is severe.

OTT Slates Auditions For March Musical

During the fourth week of March, Our Town Theatre will present a musical titled The Spitfire Grill by James Valcq and Fred Alley. Auditions for the cast are scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 31, 1-6 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 1, 5-8 p.m.

Those interested in auditioning are encouraged to bring sheet music for a song that they enjoy singing. The production is in need of the following character types and voices:

One woman, 30s to 40s, folk soprano range to a D.

One man in his 40s, solid folk voice ranging to G.

One young man, 20s, strong folk tenor to G.

One woman, 40s to 50s, mezzo/alto range.

One man, mid-40s, no singing required.

The musical won the Academy of Arts and Letters 2001 Richard Rodgers Production Award and had a successful off-Broadway run, according to Jane Avery, director of the OTT show.

"The Spitfire Grill is a charming and engaging musical that embraces its audience. It chooses heart over glitz, warmth over irony, simplicity over sophistication. With a catchy, extremely listenable score, Spitfire is a musical theater rarity — a character study," said Avery, who will be joined by musical director Joshua Elmlinger for the production.

In addition to the cast, Avery and Elmlinger are searching for a stage manager and assistant stage manager for the production, as well as someone who is proficient on the accordion. Questions should be directed to Avery, who can be reached at the theatre by calling 301-334-5640, option 3.

GARRETT ARTISTS DISPLAY WORKS IN STATE HOUSE — The Garrett County Arts Council is sponsoring an exhibit of works by local artists at the State House in Annapolis. The exhibit, which will be displayed through the legislative session's April conclusion, features watercolors by Sue Arnson and Jim McNeil; oil paintings by Charles Evans, Sophia McDonald, and Chris Nelson; and photography by James Bowser, Bev Greaser, Guy Hinebaugh, Roger Lueck, Chris Schwer, and Bonnie Ulrich. "This engaging exhibit reminds legislators and State House visitors that western Maryland is home to many talented and creative individuals whose contribution to our culture should be valued and recognized," an Arts Council spokesperson said. Pictured as they were installing the exhibit earlier this month are, from the left, GCAC board members Arnson, Odette Lueck, and Tiddie Wheeler.

Senior Residents Asked To Submit Artwork To MDOA

The Area Agency on Aging is seeking artwork from adults age 60 and older to be judged and selected for submission to the Maryland Department of Aging (MDOA).

The artists must be willing to donate the artwork for permanent display in the department's suite in the State Office Building in Baltimore. Artwork of older adults from across the state will be forwarded to the Department of Aging. The artwork is not returnable.

Local artists may submit their works to the Area Agency on Aging at 104 East Center Street, Oakland. Submitted works are to be unframed oil or water painting, stained glass pieces, quilt samples, or photographs.

They must be no larger than approximately 18 by 24 inches and able to be matted and framed by the agency. Since only one work from each county will be displayed, Commission on Aging members will select the piece to be sent to the Department of Aging from Garrett County.

The deadline for submission of artwork is Tuesday, Feb. 17. When submitted to the MDOA, the artwork's matting will display the Garrett County seal and the local artist's name.

For more information, persons may call the agency at 301-334-9431 or 888-877-8403, ext. 140.

LEADERSHIP ACADEMY

The Leadership Academy offers these suggestions to live by: Jan. 19-23, "If you don't have anything nice to say, don't say anything at all" and Jan. 26-30, "Think of other's feelings."

JANUARY RAM BUSINESS PARTNER OF THE MONTH

Since 1994, 113 South 3rd Street, Oakland, has been the home to one of Garrett County's most dedicated and community-oriented businesses: Renaissance Learning Center. The Learning Center, which provides the community with a wide array of services and benefits, is also the January Ram Partner of the Month.

In the beginning, the center offered only after school tutoring for students. However, the Renaissance Learning Center has moved past these beginnings. While it no longer offers tutoring, it has grown to best meet the needs of Garrett County.

The center began offering MVA certified driver's education classes for Garrett Countians of all ages and continues to do so. The Renaissance Learning Center evolved again two years ago when it began offering pre-kindergarten classes for young children. The purpose of these classes is to involve young students in interactive educational programs.

Opportunities are now being offered outside school to expand the horizons of students by providing thorough driver's training as well as involving young children in positive interactive atmospheres.

According to the owner, Mr. Fred Gregg, "Our staff at the Renaissance Early Learning Center works very hard to provide pre-school age children with the skills they will need to succeed once they enter school. We also are dedicated to teaching safe and conscientious driving behavior at the Renaissance Driving School."

Thank you, Renaissance Learning Center – Your support is appreciated!

CALL FOR PARENT HELP TO ORGANIZE AFTER-PROM

Parents are reminded that time is running out to plan the 13th annual after-prom event. Only one parent and a guest attended the initial meeting on Parent Conference night in November. Parent organizers will need to start the planning process as soon as possible. Some of the duties that need to be accomplished include writing a fund-raising letter to local businesses and service organizations, planning menu items and all-night activities, ordering decorations to be used for this year's theme: "My Big Fat Greek After-Prom," planning the end-of-evening entertainment, organizing chaperones, soliciting prizes from local businesses, and coordinating the games for the evening. All of this needs to be accomplished by April 15. Interested parents need to attend the planning meetings so that decisions can be made for this annual affair. Meetings in February will take place on Wednesday, Feb 11, and Thursday, Feb 26, at 7 p.m. in Lisa Bender's room at the school. March meetings will take place on Wednesday, March 10, Thursday, March 18, and Thursday, March 25. The group will need to meet three times in April to wrap up the plans. The Junior-Senior Prom will take place on Saturday, April 24. Please consider getting on board and helping to continue this tradition that keeps our students safe.

CHRISTIAN CLUB SPONSORS WORSHIP CONCERT

The Southern High School Christian Club is sponsoring another Christian Worship Concert on Saturday, Feb, 7, from 7-9 p.m. in the Southern High School cafeteria. Free food and admission. The band's name is Solomon's Porch.

NEW INDUCTEES TO THE 1200 CLUB

In an effort to encourage students to both take and reach a successful score on the Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT), the 1200 Club has been instituted to reward those students of excellence. Recent inductees to the 1200 Club are Andrew Murray, Nick Perry, Andrew Goad, and Daniel Skipper. As a reward for setting such high standards for themselves and meeting the 1200 combined score threshold, students will receive recognition in SGHS publications, a certificate presented at the final Success Celebration, a movie ticket to the Garrett 8 Cinemas, a season pass to all athletic events from the time the 1200 score was earned until the end of the school year. They will have their name enshrined on a permanent plaque placed in the media center. It is the hope of SGHS that all students will strive to reach these lofty goals. Congratulations those who have.

JANUARY RAM STUDENT OF THE MONTH

Freshmen Mike Edwards was selected as the Perkins RAM (Random Acts of Maturity) Student of the Month for January. "Mike Edwards is a student in Mr. Bosley's physical education class, which shares a locker room with the special education physical education class. Mike took it upon himself to begin watching over another student in the locker room. Mike has made sure no one picked on the special student and has treated him with great respect and friendship. Through this experience, Mike has joined the Best Buddies program to further help those in need," teacher Steve Plum. Edwards was rewarded a gift certificate provided by Perkins Restaurant for his accomplishments by Principal Tom Woods.

DECEMBER RAM STUDENT OF THE MONTH

Senior Melody Friend was selected as the Perkins RAM (Random Acts of Maturity) Student of the Month for December. "With last minute notice, Melody was willing and able to design a poster to be distributed during National Red Ribbon Week. Using her talent and creativity, she was able to outline people and places to turn to if a student is concerned about a friend's drinking and/or drug use. A very professional-looking poster is now hanging in classrooms throughout the building. There should be no question about how to get help for a friend in need, thanks to Melody's work," said guidance counselor Kelley Beavers-Davis. Friend was rewarded a gift certificate provided by Perkins Restaurant for her accomplishments by Principal Tom Woods.
